The above is the name of the latest union of industrial interests in the Dominion which marks the growth among us of the system of combining the ability and capital of separate and rival enterprises in large and powerful organizations, which is the most striking and characteristic feature of recent development. The new company represents an amalgamation of the leading manufacturers of Canada, viz., the Massey-Harris Co., H. A. Lozier and Co. (Cleveland bicycles), the Welland Vale Manufacturing Co., the Goold Co., and the Gendron. These ocupanies are well known as producers of first-class articles. Their goods are in universal use, and their industrial success under competitive conditions is the strongest possible assurance of the brilliliant future which is before them now that their forces are united. As in other similiar cases the profiteraning power of the coalescing factors is increased by reducing the cost of advertising, selling, and distributing; by the improvements suggested by the varied talent of the directors: by the control of a large number of patents, special processes, and trade secrets; and by economies due to consolidation of the management, manufactories, of fice work, and financial arrangements. The Canada Cycle and Motor Co. is offering two million dollars worth of cumulative seven per cent. perference stock to the general public at par on Wednesday. September 6th. The stock is to be guaranteed by a special rest of half a million dollars, and is of so high a character that the amount offered is likely to be subscribed many times over.
