The Advocate was more than usually unfortunate last week in giving cause to many of its friends to charge it with using the position of Mr. Anglin in Gloucester in such an awkward way as to damage that of Hon. Mr. Mitchell in Northumberland. The pet policy of the latter gentleman—next to that of retaining sufficient influence in Northumberland to secure his return "once more"—is to injure Mr. Anglin. The Advocate has faithfully seconded all his efforts to that end, both editorially and by correspondence, although it has only once or twice, in seeking to aid Mr.
