MAY-TIME IN MYLAND.

BY M. J. CHIFFIN, EDITOR ILL. EXPRESS.

Large row of many trees that line the banks of the river's banks.
And overhead their arms outstretched;
Grey locks and pine in rearward ranks;
And, peeping up all round the feet,
Overgrown trees of stately height,
The early May flower's pink and white.

The blossoms lift their lips to feel
The kisses of the soft warm winds;
Sweet waifs of the soft wind, sweet
Low whisperings, through the tassel pine.
High overhead the falling breeze
Classed changing leaves in the sky,
And glimmering brightly through the trees,
The river, troubled, hurried by.

And leaped and foamed and dashed about
The rocks and shore, the water's break,
And leaped and foamed and dashed about
The rocks and shore, the water's break,
And leaped and foamed and dashed about
The rocks and shore, the water's break.
