You have five mo the second annual

By Alan Fox

Writing about a film festival before it has happened is a lot like bigamy or filling out UIC cards in advance. You can get away with it for a while, but sooner or later you're sure to get caught.

So it will be with this report on the Festival of Festivals, The Second Annual Toronto World Film Festival, as promoter Bill Marshall so humbly calls it.

Whatever changes occur (the Sun is the place to find out about them) the festival will probably live up to Marshall's claim of "something for everyone", even if it is just a taste of everything.

Even though the festival, by today, is half over (or half begun, for that matter), there's still five days of events costing from $125 to nothing (call 367-9999 for ticket info).

Conferences

There are two types of conferences: producer's conferences and craft conferences. Producer's conferences are concerned with how to raise money for films, how to choose projects, etc. They are really craft conferences for producers. The craft conference concerns other aspects of cinema, from acting to scoring for film. Both feature panels of famous and obscure, but usually knowledgeable people involved in film. Of special interest are the

Dr. J.W. CAPELL

and

Dr. M.L. GROSS

Man's hunger is the source of all change.

Hunger for wealth.
Hunger for beauty.
Hunger for knowledge.
(Plato, eat your heart out.)

A primitive example is how your own hunger
has brought a change
to our food service.

Stop!
Let me finish!
You can learn about the changes later!
(Being a philosopher today is strictly from hunger.)
