In analyzing these subscriptions, it is practically evident that the College has not the full sympathy of the larger Toronto churches, otherwise their subscriptions would be on quite a different scale. This is matter for serious consideration at your hands, for Toronto materially influences the churches in its immediate neighborhood. Cannot this be rectified by a frank conference on the subject? Will our Toronto brethren indicate where the dissatisfaction lies, if there is such, so that we may try if possible to remove it; or show us in what way we might revive and increase the interest in our College work among them? For the sake of our common weal as a denomination, let us in a fraternal and hearty spirit unite together, City, Town and Rural Churches, in one common aim; to make our College a thorough success; and I for one will have no fear of future deficits.

I may be called an enthusiast, but in my humble opinion, the work of training our young men for the work of the ministry in our own churches, is second in importance to no other denominational
