FARM HORSES.

A well-appearing, well-cared-for team of horses is the most apparent indication of prosperity and good farming. It is, therefore, right that every farmer should manifest a certain amount of pride in the general appearance of his horses. Men who have this proper pride are often somewhat discouraged, especially toward the spring, by a roughness of hair and an itchy skin. This is caused by the long course of dry winter food which cannot be thoroughly assimilated, and the trouble will develop into mange just so soon as the conditions are right for the mange parasite. Spring pasture will remove the trouble by supplying pure blood through the digestive organs, and Herbageum will do the same thing in the same way. Better, it will prevent the trouble, and it may be fed all winter, and the effect when fed regularly with the driest and coarsest of foods will be similar to the effect of the best June pasture. In like manner Herbageum will prevent or cure scratches, the first cause of which is indigestible food, which makes bad blood, and bad blood is sure to cause skin trouble. We give below a case or two in point, but the expense of testing the matter for yourself would be very slight.

"One of my best horses, which I now value at $150, was badly troubled with mange, and if he got heated in any way was particularly bad. During the last year I fed Herbageum to my horses, and there has been no sign of mange since, and I believe it was Herbageum that cured him." A. W. POOLE.

Prospect, Ont.

"Herbageum is just the thing for horses and colts. It keeps the kidneys healthy, drives away lice, cleans out worms and bots, and cures scratches.
It is excellent for the blood and improves the coat, eye and general appearance.
It gives strength to the working horse, and life and spirit to the driving horse.
Its regular use means a considerable saving in both hay and grain."

APPI-TONE STOCK FOOD

And what people say of it:

"I used Appi-Tone Stock Food with my stallion this spring. I never saw him look so well."
—F. B.

"To try Appi-Tone Stock Food, I gave it to a calf which I was feeding on skim milk. It is the best calf I ever saw."—M. S.

Many others say the same thing of Appi-Tone Stock Food. It is purely vegetable.

The Angle Lamp

NO UNDER SHADOW.

THE LAMP
FOR THE HOME,
THE FARM,
THE WORKSHOP
AND
THE CHURCH.

The lamp shown in the illustration, whether in brass or nickel, is an ideal one for a church. No trouble, no risk, a great saving in oil, and no annoying shadows cast on the hymn book directly under it. Brilliant as gas or electric light, and far cheaper. Once used, always used. We are showing below the names of some of our agents, with their districts.
