"Weakness has filled many months of my life with suffering.

"Through carelessness I caught a severe cold two years ago which settled in catarrh and seriously interfered with the regular functions of the body and made me nervous and irritable.

"I began taking Peruna and found in it a faithful helper, as it enriched blood and invigorated the whole system.

MOSLEM WOMEN'S SHRINES. Old Gun Covered With Prayer Symbol -The Tomb of Joshua

Arnong the ruins of the old city of Bagdad, to the left of the Tigris, stanus a large square brick structure in which a large square brick structure in which the Moslem keepers solemnly assert the body of Joshua is buried, says the Sunday School Times. It is useless to test their statements by the apparent age of the building, for the small square bricks of its walls, gathered from the ruins of the Arabic period, may indicate only a reconstruction.

The present building is not ancient. The entrance, protected by a portico, leads into a large open court, which surrounded by chambers.

At the further end of the court, occupying the entire rear of the building, is the shrine, a spacious windowless chamber, lighted only by the doorway and entirely destitute of furniture save for the coarse reed mats which cover the brick floor. Its centre is capped by a large dome, and the walls have recently been whitewashed, yet ir places beneath the thin white coat appear the more ancient Hebrew in Scriptions which were once the interior. criptions which were once the interior decorations.

The tomb beneath the centre of the dome is protected by a large rectangular panelled case of dark wood, and excepting in one place, where a panel is missing, it is invisible. At the head of the case are two tin projections, about which are tied a number of strings or rags forn from the garments of the visiting pilgrims. One day, while I was standing at the head of the sacred tomb, a young Moslem woman entered, and with eyes wet with weeping she tore a small rag from her garment and fied it about one of ber garment and tied it about one of the projections, while she mumbled a prayer to God that before a year hence, when she should come to untie the rag, she might present her husband with

It was but a repetition of the picture of Hannah, the mother of Samuel, while she was at the temple weeping and praying before Eli the priest. In the shrines of the East the picture is still common. Before the Government buildings at Bagdad stands a big cannon which the ignorant Arab women, aware of its tremendous power, believe can answer prayer. The old gun is half hidden with the strings and rags tied about it, each to represent a pray-er, and could it speak it might tell strange stories of the confessions which the confiding women have poured out to it. So with the tomb of Joshua. There the women gather, and pray for all kinds of favors, firm in the belief that the prophet will in some way cause them to be granted. Less than half a century ago the tomb of Joshua was in Jewish hands, but the Turkish officials caused a number of them to be arrested as they were bearing the body of a noted rabbi there for burial. They were imprisoned for attempting to bury a Jew at the shrine of the great prophet. They were fin-ally released upon the payment of large sums of money, but the care of the tomb was taken from them. Since then the tomb has been forbidden to the Jews, and, like most Moslem things. now shows sad neglect. Yet should we follow the Jewish woman as she crosses the old boat bridge we might see her turn toward the tomb and from a distance look longingly at the door-way which she is forbidden to enter, while her lips utter a prayer with the hope that the long buried leader, even so far away, may hear and answer it.
