Jaspar Dankers is the writer whose impressions of New York have thus been lost to the world, and in what has been preserved of his writings the chief thing that forces its attention upon the reader is the magnitude of the peach crop in these parts during the year of his visit. He was a religious enthusiast, the leader of the Labadists, a sect that flourished briefly on three continents toward the close of the seventeenth century, and his voyage companion was a minister of the same

But there is little of this in his diary against a great deal of what they ate and drank, and on occasions when they went to the little church in the fort where the custom house is now the fact is mentioned with some apologies, one service being attended "in order to avoid scandal and for other reasons" and others because "my companion is endeavoring to learn the lan-especially the peaches. "He first took us to the house of one of his friends, who welcomed him and us and offered us some of the fruit of the country, very fine peaches and full grown apples, which filled our hearts with thankfulness to God. This fruit was exceedingly fair and good and pleasant to the taste, much better than that in Holland or elsewhere, though I believe our long fasting and craving for food made it so agreeable. After taking a glass of madeira we proceeded. As we walked along we saw in lifferent gardens trees full of apples of various kinds and so laden with peaches and other fruit that one might doubt whether there were more leaves or fruit on them. I have never seen in Europe in the best seasons such an overflowing abundance. When we finished our tour and had given our guides several letters to deliver, we returned to his father-in-law's. He regaled us in the evening with milk, which refreshed us much. We had so many peaches set before us that we were timid about eating them, though we experienced no ill effects from

"I was surprised on waking to find my comrade had already dressed himself and breakfasted upon peaches." So it went every day. Toward the end of the week they crossed the ferry (for less than half a cent apiece) to Long Island, where the people made them "very welcome, sharing with us bountifully whatever they had, whether it was milk, cider, fruit or tobacco, and especially, first and most of all, miserable rum, which had been brought from Barbados and which is called by the Dutch 'kill-devil.' These people are very fond of it, and most of them extravagantly so, although it is

But on Long Island, as elsewhere, the peaches were as good as the rum was bad. "It is impossible to tell how many peach trees we passed, all laden with fruit to breaking down and many of them actually broken down. We came to a place surrounded with such trees from which so many had fallen off that the ground could not be discerned and you could not put your foot down without trampling them, and notwithstanding such large quantities had fallen off the trees still were as full as they could bear. The hogs and other animals mostly feed on them." The peaches in Harlem were as plentiful and still more delicious. When they went up to the north end of Manhattan island, we find this notice: omit supplying ourselves with peaches, which grew in an orchard along the road. The whole ground was covered with them and with apples, lying upon the new grain with which the orchard was planted. The peaches were the

"We came to a road which was enrely covered with peaches. We asked he boy why they left them lie there nd did not let the hogs eat them. le answered: 'We do not know what do with them, there are so many. e hogs are satlated with them and il not ent any more.' From this we judge of the quantity of them."-

Eastern Consolidated Oil Company Stock has Paid 20 per Cent. in Ten Months.

"Two things," declares a well known financial writer, "are bringng the Eastern Consolidated Oil Company prominently before the pubside of the controversy has been handlic just at this time.

"The first is the wonderful growth of this Company and the remarkably successful development of its oil pr perties in Ohio and California, the second is the unprecedented de-mand for oil as fuel by railroads, steamships, manufacturing plants and private citizens all over the United States and Canada."

Republican victory by a small ma-Oil is cheaper, cleaner and in every way better than coal for fuel, and the great captains of industry throughout the world are finding this out to their great advantalge. The steamship, "Mariposa," of the U. S. Navy, made a wonderfully successful trial trip on the Pacific burnquet of Laval University at Montreal ing oil exclusively, the big steam-ship trust with J. Pierpont Morgan to-night, and replies to the toast of at its head is experimenting with oil as fuel, the great Cramp Steamhip Company of Philadelphia has decided to burn oil, the Pacific Mail Steamship Company is converting its vessels into oil burners, the General Electric Company of Lynn, Mass., is figuring on burning oil for fuel-and so on. This list might be prolonged to fill a whole column. The Eastern Consolidated Oil Company has the oil to sell-which by the -way has advanced in price under pressure of this great demand. It has 105 richly producing oil wells in the State of Ohio; it has a rich tract of proven oil land in Kern River district, California, where a big well enormously productive has just come in, and work is being pushed with all speed on ten more. The Eastern Consolidated Oil Company sells for cash thousands of barrels of oil every month, and by January 1 will increase its output by at least 50,000 barrels more. Is it any wonder that the Eastern Consolidated Oil Company is a safe and very profitable investment? Ten months ago the stock sold for 25 cents a share. Then it jumped to 35 cents. Now it is selling at 50 cents a share for a short time but will positively be advanced to par ($1.00 a share) by January 1, 1903.

During the past ten months this Company has paid 20% in dividends to stockholders on their investments. An investment of $500 made last January is now worth $1,000 and has already paid $40 in dividends. On January 1 it will be worth $2,000! There is no better stock on the market to-day for a safe and en-ormously profitable investment than Eastern Consolidated Oil Company

Investors interested will find the advertisement of Eastern Consolidated Oil Company Stock elsewhere in ment at 50 cents a share is almost
