Baden Powell's Mounted Police.

South Africa.
We, the undersigned, of Baden Powell's Mounted Police have great pleasure testifying to the fact that E. R. O. cured us of Rheumatism and Sore Throat. One of our comrades when leaving Halifax fortunately secured a few bottles of the Oil, which he generously used in cases of Rheumatism. The equipment of our camp would not have been complete without this Rheumatic cure, and we have pleasure in bearing testimony to its wonderful curative power.

Yours truly,

A PAGE OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

THE TIME TO CUT HAY.—

The aim of our farmers in growing forage crops is to produce from a given area as large a quantity as possible of the digestible nutrients in a palatable form. The time at which a forage crop is harvested may effect the crop in three ways, viz.—in the quantity of material harvested, in the composition of the crop, and in the palatability of the fodder. As a general rule it has been found that the greatest amount of dry matter is secured where forage crops are allowed to fully mature and ripen. The only exception is in the case of clovers and other legumes, where the leaves rattle off and are lost, either before or during the process of curing.

It does not follow that when a plant increases in its yield of dry matter that its nutritive value has proportional increase. It is quite possible that changes in texture and composition of the dry substance may offset the greater yield. The dry matter of mature grass contains a larger proportion of crude fibre than the immature. The plant hardens in texture and loses, in both palatability and digestibility. It is, therefore, usually to begin cutting hay early, and where there is a large crop to be gathered work should begin early in order that it be completed before the grass seeds are ripe enough to shell from the heads of the late cut grass. Chemical analysis has shown that plants are richer in protein in the earlier stages of growth than when fully grown or nearly mature. The chief with which our feeders have to contend is the lack of protein in the rations made up of our common feeding stuffs, and they should recognize the fact that by cutting early, they can get two crops of highly nutritious fodder, where they only get one by late cutting. Cutting the first crop even before the heads are fully grown will tend to cause a vigorous new growth and in this way a good crop of rowan is secured.

The two crops are more valuable, especially for feeding dairy cows, than one mature crop on account of the increased proportion of protein. The early cut hay seems more palatable to stock, and weight for weight, more satisfactory. On the other hand by late cutting we secure a considerable larger quantity of carbo-hydrates, which are valuable for feeding, and of crude fibre which is of low feeding value.

For the Dairy cows and sheep, grass should be cut early, since these animals do not relish hay that is woody and lacking in aroma, as is the case with late cut hay. For horses and fattening cattle later cutting is allowable, as these animals subsist mostly on concentrated feed and hay serves more for filling, as horsemen say.

In tests made by Professors Sanborn and Henry in fattening steers with early and late cut hay it was found that late cut hay gave the best results. If cutting is delayed too long the stems of the grass become tough and stringy and the seeds scatter from the heads. Such hay has little aroma and lacks palatability if not nutritious. Though an indefinite quantity, the aroma of grass has real value in rendering hay more palatable. When the sun dissipates the dew from the drying grass in the meadow, we detect the escaping aroma, because the dew in rising, carries some of it into the air. This is one reason why hay should not remain scattered over the field at night. Green colored, sweet-smelling hay is really the best and prudent farmers will not overlook such seemingly small points as preserving the aroma and preventing bleaching.

CURING CLOVER HAY.

In a recent article I called attention to the desirability of cutting hay at a comparatively early stage of naturity. In this connection it may be of interest to have some notes from that well known farmer and Institute speaker, Mr. Henry Glendenning of Manilla, Ont., in regard to his experience with a new plan of curing clover hay. Mr. Glendenning says that he prefers to cut clover hay when it is in full bloom, or when the blossom contains the greatest amount of honey. Cut in the morning after the dew is off, that which is cut in the forenoon may be raked up immediately after the noon hour, and put in cocks. The hay should be put into the barn next day, and well tramped into the mows. This plan can be continued from day to day until all is stored in the barns. Three things must be borne in mind in curing hay by this method: First, Do not cut the grass until dry in the morning; second, do not allow the fresh cut hay to lie on the ground over night exposed to dew or rain; third, if any hay should get wet with rain, let it stand in the cocks until thoroughly dry before taking to the barn.

Last season Mr. Glendenning put up some 75 to 80 tons of Lay in this way, and reports it came out of the mows in the finest condition he ever saw. It was as green as when put into the barn, and the leaves and blossoms were all attached to the stalks. It appeared to have dried out without much heating, as all of the aliske blossoms were pink, and the red clover blossoms were from a pink to a light amber color. If any great heat had developed in the mow the blossoms would undoubtedly have been of a dark brown color. No signs of mould were visible and the hay was very free from dust. No salt, lime or other preservative was used.

Two of the mows in which the hay was stored are 22x25 feet with an average depth of 30 feet of hay. These mows are tight floored with double inch boards over basement stables. Another mow is 24x35 feet with a depth of about 24ft. and the floor on the ground.

The outside of all the mows are of inch boards without battens, with cracks between the boards averaging about three-eighths of an inch, such as are usually found in the barn. The sides of the mows next the drive floor were open. The hay which consisted of red clover, aliske and a little timothy, was equally good in all parts of the mows. Mr. Glendenning says that he knows three other farmers who have followed this system for several years with equal success, and it would seem well worthy of trial by our farmers generally.

HARD RACKING COUGHS.

During accidents, the person who gets along with the least amount of cough will live the longest. Of course, the right time to attack a cough is at the commencement, when it is a simple thing for the right treatment to drive the cough away. As a general thing, however, people spend so much time experimenting with various remedies that the cough is well under way before they know it. Then comes the long siege. You feel the hard, racking all through your system, and get relief from nothing. You fill your stomach with nauseating mixtures to no purpose. Then you use compounds containing narcotics, which deceive temporarily, and leave you slightly worse. Some coughs of this kind hang on for weeks or even months, and of course, they frequently develop into serious lung troubles. A true specific for all coughs is Adamson's Botanic Cough Balm, and it should be kept in the house against any emergency. With a cough that has become chronic the first effect of this remedy is a lessening of the dull sensation of pain which usually is felt with such a cough. Then you are conscious that the extremities are leaving you, and presently the desire to cough grows less frequent. All this process is brought about by the healing properties of the Balm. It is a compound of herbs and gums. You can test it. 25c. at any druggist. Get the genuine with "F. W. Kinsman & Co." blown in the bottle.

MESSRS. C. C. RICHARDS & CO.

Dear Sirs,—While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes—so badly that I thought I would be disfigured for a couple of weeks. I was advised to try your Liniment to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected—a few applications completely curing the irritation, preventing the bites from becoming sore. MINARD'S LINIMENT is also a good article to keep off the mosquitoes.
