Watch Russia. This is the word which is being passed along in the English press. When Grand Duke Nicholas was moved from the West Russian command to the Caucasus, some peo ple thought it was to get him out of the way of hig active operations. We ventured the opinion that it was an indication that Russia meant to take the Caucasus campaign more serious- day several of our fish laden vessels ly, and so it has turned out. Events so far have confirmed Kitchener's words, and now the eyes of the world are turned on the Grand Duke's doings in the eastern parts of Asia Minor. It should be remembered that when the Grand Duke took over this command the Turks were on the offensive, the army had to be organized and the lack made on the 81th of the month. Toof guns and ammunition made good. The operations of the British in the Dardanelles were initiated to relieve the pressure of the Turks on the Russians in this region. The Grand Duke has turned the tables on the Turks and this relief being no longer neceselles being found impracticable, the express with passengers and mails is British and French troops were with- due at 5 p.m. drawn from Gallipoli. The Grand Duke is making a great sweeping movement over an irregular line some night, 250 miles in length, with his right Game flank on the Black Sea, where he is aided by Russian warships. The objective on this flank is the port of Trebizond to Barburt across the Western Euphrates, through Armenia, to the west of Erzerum into the Bitlis tes through Mush to Bitlis, southwest
