Engineer Pushie Dies.

Engineer Nathan Pushie, who was injured in a train accident on shore line a few days ago, died at 7 o'clock last night, stated a wire received by the Nfld. Co. at 7.30 p.m. yesterday. He was in Antigonish, 50 years ago, Pushie came to Newfoundland in 1869 up to the time of his death engaged in railway work. Remembered by the officials of the Company as a reliable man, his loss will be felt. A brother of Mr. Pushie, who also was an engineer, lost his life some years ago while snowed out of the engine. A widow, Mrs. Alexander, are left to mourn Pushie's death.

Pushie is a wire received by the Nfld. Co. from Rev. Canon

HEART'S CONTENT, Jan. 22.

Daniel Pushie entered into rest last night. The Reids have an invaluable engine master, the public a most devoted servant and the community a true gentleman. He has grown into the life of the Nfld. Co. in a marvellous way. We are all sincerely mourning his death. While we thank God for his courage and marvellous service, I should like you to know that his wife and friends begged for rest on Saturday last, he refused to leave the Company, and have passengers on the road.

Half of his widow and all who loved Nathan Pushie, we the Company for all kindness in trying time. Pushie fell asleep only as a baby passes.

M. C. L. I. Debate.

The much-talked-of question of education and the proposal to institute interdenominational schools, were debated at last evening's convocation of the Methodist College Literary Institute. Supporting the resolution that "The time is ripe for the amalgamation of the Protestant Denominations of Newfoundland in Educational Work," were Messrs. H. E. Cowan, W. Clarke, W. White; against it were Messrs. J. S. Currie, Hiram Young and W. H. Oakley. The general argument of the affirmative was that unity meant power, that the amalgamation of forces would do away with overlapping and permit better work, and that the time was ripe because the need was great. For the negative it was contended that the time for amalgamation had not come, because there was no popular demand for it, that there was no guarantee of denominational cooperation, and that it would mean no great improvement in the educational work throughout the country because not much more than ten per cent. of the places would be materially affected by the change owing to the fact that our people had not greatly intermingled, but had settled denominationally. The discussion that followed, though perhaps, somewhat away from the point of the debate, was interesting and instructive. The decision of the Institute was in favor of amalgamated schools by a vote of two to one.

To-Night's Hockey.

SOMKERS, PLEASE TAKE NOTICE.

The contesting teams in to-night's hockey match are the Saints and Felidians, and a very lively game is looked for. The line-up will be as follows: SAINTS—Goal, Forsyth; left defence, E. Churchill; right defence, E. Munn; subs, McEhearn; J. Paterson, tre, C. C. Robertson; right wing, L. Munn; subs, McEhearn, J. Paterson, Macpherson, Chafe, Clarke.

If spectators at to-night's hockey match, would refrain from smoking, while the game is on, they would confer a benefit on the players and themselves because letting a strenuous game, to play at all, is best all the fresh air possible is necessary. So if you wish to see a good game don't smoke but use your lungs to encourage your favorites.

Don't Miss It.

Dr. Lyman Abbott, keen and alert as ever, has observed his 84th birthday. The author-editor-preacher gave the same time to the Outlook on that day as is his custom. He is confident that the League of Nations will become a reality.

It's Up to Master Mariner.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—This morning, a letter appears in the "Post" over the signature of "Master Mariner," in which he asks me certain questions concerning how I obtained my Certificate. All these are very pertinent questions (and the absence of any abuse is very refreshing). I am prepared to answer every question only on one condition, and that is—if the Master Mariner will sign his own name. For fear he will act the coward and back down, I would ask him what he means by saying that I got it under the "Thorburn Government." Is it not a fact that lots of others got it under the "Thorburn Government" too?

It is not a fact that the late Capt. Sheppard went to school with me and obtained his ticket a few days after me? Is it not a fact that the late Capt. P. Delaney was in the class with me at school and passed his examination some time after me? Was ever "Master Mariner" anxious to know how much foreign time Captain Delaney put in? When he answers these questions and signs over his own name, I will answer his, and give the public substantial reasons why so many of the Captains were dissatisfied when I got my ticket and why there are so many dissatisfied now.

Yours truly, A. KEAN.

A Boys' Retreat.

The vital thing in arranging a child's room is, in the majority of cases, either overlooked or ignored, says a writer in the "House Beautiful." This vital thing is the taste or the desire of the child himself. It is himself more often than himself, because girls have a way, while yet very small, of asserting an individuality in matters of taste that boys do not seem to develop until much later.

Think of the children's rooms that you have seen. They are of diverse sorts, dainty, artistic, suitable or merely careless and scrappy. In how many of them, boys' rooms at least, has the occupant had anything to say about their arrangement or fittings? Not so very many years ago, any sort of place was considered good enough for the boy of the family. In some homes this is still the case. Odds and ends of furniture are good enough. Possibly there is no furniture other than a bed.

On the other hand, in these days of artistic house furnishing, there is the likelihood of going to the other extreme. We follow a plan that gratifies our sense of the aesthetic and cannot permit anything that is a jarring note. And the things the average boy likes are nearly all jarring notes of the average mother.

Happily, we realize now that the habits, tastes and fundamentals that go to make up a character are in the process of building from the moment that sense perceptions are first registered on the brain. But to train and educate a personality, we must cooperate and not compel.

To particularize—if you want a boy to grow up orderly give him a dresser with capacious drawers, a roomy closet with hangers for coats and trousers, a chest or spare closet for his toys and the precious "junk" that every real boy must collect. If you want him to grow up a manly, athletic, out-of-door boy, provide him a receptacle for tennis racquets, bell clubs and boxing gloves. Respect his possessions. If you want him to acquire education and cultivated tastes, furnish him with books and with bookshelves to keep them on. Incidentally, let him have some voice in the choosing of the books. Even a few dime novels or penny thrillers, read openly with a wise parent to instill discrimination, are not going to hurt him. Besides, if you forbid them, he will read them anyway, and that will be really dangerous. If you want him to be businesslike and to keep his young affairs with system, give him a substantial desk and its fittings. In pictures, let him have what he likes to start with. It is his room, not yours. In proportion as you are able to train his taste, his room will reflect the growth.

So Tiresome.

(From the Philadelphia Press.)

Don't you get awfully tired hearing it repeated so constantly that the people are to blame for the high price of commodities because they will only buy commodities that are high priced? Don't you get awfully tired hearing clothing dealers and shoe dealers say their wares are high priced because people only buy the expensive grades? Don't you get awfully tired paying all the way up to twenty-five cents a pound for sugar because the Government has fixed a high price for the Louisiana crop and takes no steps to secure the cheaper Cuban sugar? Don't you get awfully tired pretending that a Government that talks all of the time and does very little any of the time is efficient Government? Most people do.
