EXPERTS WHO PROVE A DEFICIT.

The advocates of electrification try to obscure the financial details of the scheme by a cloud of phrases about "monopoly" and "private interests." They have refused to analyze and compare the experts' reports because these are fatal to the project.

Take the Warfield estimate of the cost of construction, $706,000, which is $6,000 more than the bylaw provides for. Add to this the Warfield figure of $765,000, representing the outlay on the road in its present condition. Here is a total of $1,471,000, which, at 5 per cent interest, entails an annual fixed charge of $73,550.

But depreciation must be taken into account. All the new construction—electric locomotives, cars, wires, substations and other equipment—would be of a depreciable nature. For this purpose $35,300 yearly must be charged, being 5 per cent—a very modest rate for depreciation—upon $706,000. In addition, a certain portion of the present property—such as stations, culverts and bridges—is also depreciable. Valuing this kind of property at $165,000, another depreciation item of $8,250 yearly must be allowed for. Here are total depreciation charges of $43,550 to be added to interest charges of $73,550, making total fixed charges of $127,100.

The electrificationists have been asked to show wherein these calculations of fixed charges are excessive.

The annual operating expenses are estimated at $111,000 by Mr. Warfield, and nearly $135,000 by Mr. Eastman. The difference is accounted for largely by the inclusion of $15,000 for car rentals in Mr. Eastman's report. This is a necessary charge, which Mr. Warfield admits that he overlooked. Yet if Mr. Warfield's estimate of freight earnings were correct, nearly $40,000 would be required for car rentals.

Take the Warfield operating expenses, $111,000, add $15,000 for car rentals, and $117,500 for fixed charges, and the total annual outlay would be $234,500. Yet the Warfield estimate of annual receipts is $233,000; the Eastman estimate $210,000, and the Marshall estimate only $205,000. This would leave a deficit in every case.

If there is anything amiss with this figuring we should like to have it pointed out.

SWINGING AROUND.

Only two years have elapsed since the last election campaign. The people have not yet had time to forget the arguments against the trade agreement. Were we not told that traffic north and south would ruin our east and west railroads; that it would be a blow to business in Canada; that it would imperil British connection? Not least, was not our pride appealed to against allowing our tariff to be fixed at Washington?

It is a very short time in which to change tactics, and reverse policies. But already our Conservative friends are swinging around. The new United States tariff, while it admits most natural products free, retains a duty on wheat, with a provision, however, that the duty may be taken off whenever other countries take off theirs.

Of course, under the two-year-old Conservative policy, Canada should not take off the duty we now impose on wheat; on the contrary, the proper thing to do would be to raise it, and thus prevent any facilities for north and west traffic, which would endanger our imperial relations. And yet here are three Conservative papers actually advising the Government to remove the duty on wheat, and thus allow free trade in wheat and flour between the two countries. The Ottawa Citizen is out with a strong anti-food tax article that covers more than grain. The Toronto World in urging duty-free wheat, contends that such a course would make the C. P. R. bring down its rates—a very poor reason, because the Railway Commission controls rates, and can keep them as low as it likes. Then the Toronto News, while not quite so outspoken, still gives clear indications of following the World. Other Conservative papers are not saying anything yet. Two years ago they would have been loud in their denunciations of the World's proposal. The arguments against a free exchange of food stuffs are just as strong today as they were two years ago; only their real weakness is more apparent. The fact is, it only needed a little time to show up the inconsistency of the Conservative campaign.

Our trade with the United States was an injury to us two years ago. But it has gone on increasing without damage to our pockets, or our loyalty, and now some of the leading Conservative papers want to increase it still more. Reciprocity was opposed because it meant having our tariff fixed at Washington. We all know it did nothing of the kind. There was only a mutual agreement to take off certain duties which either party could reimpose whenever it saw fit. But now we are asked to take off certain duties because Washington requires us to do so under penalty of imposing duties on our exports. And the cry that our duties will thus be regulated by the action of the United States Government is not heard any more.

We agree with these late converts to lower tariff rates, because that is the Liberal policy. And it is the right policy. Taxation on what people eat is the worst kind of taxation. There is the tax that presses on the poor man, while it is hardly felt by the wealthier neighbor. Take off the duty on wheat by all means. It would have been done two years ago if the Liberals had remained in power. But do not stop at that. Years ago we followed the example of the people of the United States in putting heavy indirect taxes upon the people. Our neighbors have seen the folly of their past action, and are trying to lighten their burdens. We followed their bad example; it is time to follow them when their example is good.

MEMORIALS OF HISTORY.

The meeting of the Ontario Historical Association at Chatham has had the effect of stimulating the movement for the erection of some memorial in honor of the renowned and loyal Indian chief, Tecumseh, who lost his life at the battle of Moraviantown in defence of the British flag. The matter has been taken up by some of the leading citizens of Chatham, and we may expect that it will be pushed to a satisfactory conclusion. At present there is some controversy as to the shape the memorial shall take, whether it shall be a monument or a building to serve as an historical museum. This, of course, is something to be decided by the people who will advance the money for the work.

In matters of this kind, however, we must confess our preference for a memorial building. Where the subject to be honored is purely personal, there is much to be said for a simple monument. But where it takes on largely an historical character, a building is not only appropriate, but particularly useful. The Chatham News suggests that a building should be erected, to serve as an historical museum, in which could be preserved documents and relics, not only of Tecumseh, but of the war of 1812, and of the early history of Kent County.

The suggestion seems reasonable. We are beginning, though rather late, to interest ourselves in the memorials of the past. Local historical societies are trying to gather up the records, both public and private, of the early days of Canada. The life work of our pioneers was not only valuable to us from a material point of view. Its record is equally valuable as an evidence of what energy and self-devotion can accomplish. Its history is as interesting as any romance. Public documents tell but half the story. Private letters, diaries, deeds, and papers of all kinds; old implements of agriculture and household utensils, are necessary to complete the picture.

Our historical societies, in their endeavor to secure these old records and relics, are hampered by the lack of accommodation for storing and exhibiting them. That is the case with our own society. Some of its material is stored in the public library; more of it is in the possession of the officers. It is doubtless safe enough for the present. But it is of no value to the public, as it is not accessible. In Kent County, we presume, the same condition exists. The members of the local society have no place for any memorials of the past they may collect. For this reason, a building, which could be of such an architectural design as to serve all the purposes of a monument, could also be made of use as a museum.

We have suggested this same course for London on more than one occasion. The oldest building in the city—the first court house and school house—is occupied by the waterworks commission as a workshop. It is on ground belonging to the county, and the county council has warned the commissioners to take it away. The probabilities are that in a short time it will be pulled down and destroyed. There does not seem to be enough local pride and patriotism in London to preserve this interesting memorial of the first days of the city, and utilize it as an historical museum, and a memorial of the work of the men who made London and Middlesex.

In this connection, we note an interesting incident reported from the city of Minneapolis. It is not as old as London, though very much larger. The first house erected on the site of that city was to be destroyed by its owner. The city purchased it, and found a place for it in one of the parks. It was placed on rollers; long ropes were attached, and the school children drew it to its new location. Has no one in London sufficient enterprise to follow this example? The building is too large for our school children to move it. But money and energy will accomplish the purpose.

What a pity the Chateaugay River doesn't flow through East Middlesex!

The weather is highly favorable to the Government candidate in Chateaugay. Work on the dam goes on bravely.

A stampede of Canadian cattle to the duty-free American market has set in. Are we powerless to prevent this sordid and seditious process?

In spite of Ottawa disclaimers, it is probable the Government will place wheat on the free list. A little thing like consistency never stood in its way.

The householder whose cellar is periodically flooded for want of storm sewers will not be found voting to spend $700,000 upon a luxury like electrification.

There would be practically no business for the London and Port Stanley Railway divorced from steam road connections, between the closing and opening of navigation.

Taxpayers are asked to add $1,125,000 to the city's debt at one stroke. We opine that they will consider $425,000 for sewers and breakwaters enough for one day, and will let the $700,000 bylaw slide.

The steamer City of Ottawa (Capt. McKay) arrived at Port Stanley yesterday, having on board 170 tons of freight for London importers.—London Free Press.

Is it possible this could happen without electrification?

Where is the Hon. Clifford Sifton in this crisis? He went through Ontario two years ago predicting that fearful calamities would follow the free export of Canadian grain to the United States. Isn't another trumpet call of alarm due from this patriot?

 George Bernard Shaw makes the announcement that Christianity has been a failure. There are indications, however, that a large number of good people are disposed to give it another trial.

TIRED OF LIFE.
 [Montreal Herald.]
 A Chicago girl committed suicide after trying to live on a weekly salary of $3. Food experts in your tea, 29-cent dinners contained all the elements necessary to support life. Yet human nature is such a foolish thing. Sometimes it craves more than the mere elements necessary to keep body and soul together.

OVER THE TEACUPS.
 [Chicago Record-Herald.]

An open fire, blue tea things on the table and a tea-kettle singing a little song of comfort are the proper stage settings for this little anecdote. An Irish hostess, when she asks if you'll have sugar in your "tay" holds out the bowl and absent-mindedly goes on with her conversation, or stirs the fire, allowing you to help yourself.

An English hostess asks, "One lump or two?" and carefully drops the sugar into your tea.

If you should ask a Scotch hostess for a little more sugar in your tea, she would demand with a note of surprise: "And hae ye stirred it yet?"

THE TACTLESS ONE.
 [Chicago Record-Herald.]

"I will confess to you," she said, "that I am older than I look. I will be 31 my next birthday."
 "Really?" he replied. "Hardly anyone would guess that you were more than about 29."
 "That's the last time," she said when he had departed, "that I'll ever try to be nice to a brute."

SPINELESS.

 "Yes," said Mrs. Twickenbury, "you seldom see Mr. Twickenbury without a cigar in his mouth. He's a most inveterate smoker."

COMPETING CONSUMERS.

[Washington Star.]
 "You used to say 'competition is the life of trade.'"
 "So it is," replied Mr. Cumrox, "only instead of competing to sell things, the idea now is to corner 'em up and get people competing for a chance to buy."

WILL BE TAME.

[Washington Star.]
 "Do you think your wife will be happy when she gets the divorce?"
 "I'm afraid she won't," replied Mr. Meekton. "Merely going to the polls and casting a ballot will seem pretty tame compared to organizing these great suffrage demonstrations."

OVER 3,000 BIRDS FOR POULTRY SHOW ON THE HOLIDAY

Thanksgiving Day Exhibition Will Be Finest in City's History.

HELPED BY MERCHANTS

Event That London Is Still the Poultry Hub of Canada.

Arrangements are now complete for London's great quality poultry and pet stock show on Thanksgiving Day. The London breeders have been hard at work for some time, and they have been greatly encouraged by the splendid manner in which London's businessmen have co-operated by subscribing to the prize list, which far surpasses anything ever before offered in Canada. The business people of London evidently appreciate the publicity given the city by the fanciers. Londoners have exported chickens to almost every country on the globe, and are certainly doing their share in keeping the city on the map. Mr. F. C. Dulmage, the energetic secretary, is receiving large entries from all parts of Canada, and it is expected that over 3,000 birds will be on exhibition at this great show. London is still the poultry hub of Canada.

TAKE NO PRISONERS IS ORDER NOW TO FEDERALS

Troops Are Acting With Far More Inhumanity Than Rebels.

[Canadian Press.]

Vera Cruz, Oct. 7.—A report on affairs at the capital brought by Nelson O'Shaughnessy, charge d'affaires at the United States embassy in Mexico City, was laid before John Lind, the personal representative of President Wilson, in an overnight conference. It was said that he brought no roseate but reported assurances from the National Palace that fair elections would be held and early pacification of the country accomplished.

A number of mining men who arrived here today from the State of Durango assert that the federal troops there have been acting with far more inhumanity than the rebels. They say that in pursuance of their instructions the federal soldiers kill all wounded rebels, and that one man was dragged from a hospital immediately after one of his legs had been amputated and was placed before a firing squad and executed. In the coast country to the south of Vera Cruz the federal soldiers have been ordered not to take any prisoners. It is reported that this order is to be extended to the State of Puebla. A force of rebels who lately attacked the town and camp were repulsed and are said to have received fresh supplies of ammunition. From other portions of the same state minor uprisings are reported.

GENERAL LI YUEN HENG IS NEW VICE-PRESIDENT

Comparatively Young Man But Has Had a Long and Great Experience.

[Canadian Press.]
 Peking, China, Oct. 7.—General Li Yuen Heng, province vice-president of the Chinese Republic, was today elected vice-president for a term of five years by the united houses of the Chinese Parliament, receiving 610 votes out of the 719 cast by the representatives and senators present.

General Li Yuen Heng is a comparatively young man, having been born 49 years ago in the Province of Hupei. His military studies have been very thorough. He was, however, at first a soldier, and passed through a course of six years at the Pen Yang Naval College, after which he served on board a cruiser during the Chinese-Japanese war. He then went in for land service and assisted in the organization of the modern Chinese army. He took a long leave of absence to study fortification in Japan and subsequently served in several branches of the army.

During the revolution against the Manchus, General Li Yuen Heng for a long time believed it would prove unsuccessful and refused to join in the active operations against the imperial government, but when he did throw in his lot with the revolutionists he became their most able leader.

After a long period of severe fighting, in which the rebel forces were victorious, General Li Yuen Heng devoted his energies to bringing about the Shanghai peace conference between the imperialists and the revolutionaries.

SOCIAL SURVEY WORK IS NOW UNDER WAY

Executive of Men's Federation Furthers Plans For Its Campaign.

A meeting of the executive of the Men's Federation of London, held in their rooms on Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock, was addressed by Dr. W. A. Riddell, of New York. A comprehensive outline of the work and also that of the several committees was given and a general discussion entered upon. Questions of religious survey were brought up for discussion and it was decided by the members of the executive to recommend to the meeting to be held tonight in the First Presbyterian Church that if possible the services of Dr. Meyers, of the committee on religious education of the Presbyterian Church be secured for the survey of religious conditions in the city at the same time as the general survey under Dr. Riddell.

Rev. D. C. McGregor, of the Presbyterian board of social service and evangelism, was present at the meeting and spoke of the social service work. "As far as I can see," he said, "London is more advanced than any other city in Canada in organization for this work, and the cities throughout the country are observing the work in London with a view of organizing along similar lines if the movement in this city is successful."

During the progress of the meeting a resolution of thanks was passed to the London Life for the use of the office they have supplied for the federation's use. A resolution of thanks to St. James' Men's League was put before the secretary.

The Interdenominational Union of the Young People's Societies of London are in favor of co-operating with the federation, and have forwarded a resolution to this effect to Secretary Lyons. It was decided to accept the co-operation of the young people and the federation is devising plans for the inauguration of that organization in the work.

The resignation of Mr. G. N. Hazen, chairman of the educational committee of the federation, was accepted, and Rev. W. J. Knox appointed to the office. Mr. Hazen to remain a member of the committee.
 The work of the several committees was classified and are as follows: Executive committee—General oversight of the federation, Sum-commit-
