by the small margin of a 2 to 1 score. Only Two Hits Off Lill. When it is pointed out that the locals only solved Joe Lill's varied assortment for two scratchy infield hits, the importance of Lage's wild throw will be readily recognized from a London standpoint. It was one of a half-dozen boots made by the Ottawa team during the fracas, and three of them figured in the scoring. With Lill pitching the kind of ball he was dishing up, his teammates had to be pretty bad to lose, and they were. Chaput Was Good.
