These figures may or may not be correct. If they are, they show us that if Canada has built up the United States seaports of Boston and Portland the States are contributing to the maintenance of Canadian railways. But there is the difference that while our railways are patronized because they carry cheaper than the United States roads, Canadian importers and exporters are building up their ports when Canada's own routes are as good or better. It would be well if Canadians would realize this and pursue the

A disadvantage under which the Canadian publisher labor as contrasted with his competitor across be border is called attention to by The Canadian Bookseller. Under the United States postal laws paper books issued at stated intervals and classed as "libraries" are carried at the rate of one cent a pound, but in Canada the publishers must pay four cents a pound. This is a heavy handicap on the Canadian publisher and one that presses very hard on him when, as is frequently the case, certain books are being published at the same selling price by houses on each side of she line. "The matter is recommended to the attention of the Department.

The fisheries has been talked to death almost, but The Times does not seem to have grasped Canada's position, not even after Mr. aurier's great speech.

The announcement is made that the Treasurers of the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec are to visit Ottawa next month for the settlement of the financial difficulties between the Dominion Government and the old provinces of Canada. And high time it is that provinces of Canada. And high time it is that this snarl should be straightened out. The matter should have been adjusted years ago instead of the parties quarreling as to where to lay the responsibility for the delay. After the settlement we shall have the satisfaction to lay the responsibility for the delay. After the settlement we shall have the satisfaction of being a little nearer to a knowledge of what Ontario's surplus is. We hope the anarundel. Umpire—Curry.
