THE EXTENSION OF GERRARD-STREET TO EAST TORONTO.

What Aldermen and Prominent Citi

a long and urgent letter to the City Clerk, pointing out the need of better street car accommodation in the northeast portion of the city. The letter was read at the follow-ing meeting of the council and referred to the Board of Works. By the latter body it was favorably received and was handed over to the City Engineer for report. What is petitioned for is the extension of the present street railway in Gerrard-street east to Jones-avenue and thence northward on to Danforth-road. This would undoubted on to Danforth-road. This would undoubtedly be a convenience to those residing in the district concerned, but it will not be anything like the improvement which is also at the present time being advocated, namely, the extension of Gerrard-street straight through into East Toronto.

Ald. Lamb, chairman of the Board of Works, said yesterday that he and the aldermen of Ward No. 1, who were familiar with the needs of the district, very favorably entertained the proposition of ex-Ald. Galbraith. As the streets for which the proposed extension are not very much built on Ald. Lamb said the city would not be warranted in putting down a permanent foundation costing $20,000 a mile.

An Agreement is Being Drafted by the City Solicitor, which will probably be accepted by the council and the Street Rail-way Company, by which these roads can be formed of ordinary ballast by the Street Railway Company, the city foregoing the nileage of $800.

Does Not Fully Meet the Case, But good as this proposal is, and it would be better it included the extension of the street railway service to Little York, which loes not meet fully the requirements of the Under clause 24 of the Street Railway Company's agreement with the city it is provided that trolleys shall run in Gerrardstreet to Greenwoods-avenue within three years from the date of the contract. This three years expires Sept. 1 next.

If the railway service were extended to Greenwood-avenue it would not be long before Gerrard-street would be opened through the Ashbridge estate and thereby give us a new highway from the country to the city. The extension of Gerrard-street for a mile would connect it with the Kingston-road. Being half way between Danforth-avenue and Queen-street this new thoroughfare would be a decided convenience both for city and country residents.

Heartly Favors the Scheme.

Heartily Favors the Scheme. Ex-Mayor Fleming is neartily in favor of this Gerrard-street extension. He says it would be the best improvement in the eastern part of the city that he knows of. It would not only open up a direct line between East Toronto and the centre of the city, but would be a safe line to travel, as it would avoid two or three dangerous level crossings. How much better, said he, for public safety to drive in a straight line from East Toronto and under the Gerrard-street railway bridge than by the Kingston-road or the round-about Danforth-road? The proposal was a good one and he should be glad to see it carried out. It was quite feasible and would give much public benefit at a comparatively slight cost, which might be shared between the township and the city.

Others who know the requirements of the locality have spoken to The World to a similar effect. this Gerrard-street extension. He says it
