Public Schools, 1896.
" 1895.
Separate Schools, 1895. In connection with the number of candinates writing, it should be under stood that about one-third of the Beparate Schools are found in French or German districts, where usually the children begin school life without knowledge of English, and remain too short a time to permit their prepartion for such examinations. Then in some subjects the text-books are not always the same as those used in the Public Schools, which latter is the series upon which the examination questions are based. When these drawbacks are considered it speaks well for the thoroughness of the seaching in Separate Schools to find that 75 per cent. cf their candidates for this examination passed success fully, without any undue favors from its various local boards of examines. As to Toronto, it should be explained that having a system of Oatholic high classes doing the work of High Schools to the junior leaving inclusive, it has not heretofore sent candidates to the entrance examination. This year, with but little notice, some of the sevior fourth class girls of one school tried the examination, with the result noted above.
