only that it may be, for "One day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thou- by Canon Taylor's paper which we may sand years as one day."

There are other considerations suggested advert to next month.

Editorial Arieflets.

No. I. IN ROME.

JEXT to Jerusalem, Rome! Of all other cities in the world the most interesting-ancient, mediæval, modern, and new Rome are, each and all, worthy of profoundest study. Founded, they say, B.C. 752, ancient Rome reached its greatest splendour, probably, about the time of Christ, when she ruled almost the whole of the then known world. Three or four amid the ruins of her own greatness." If the door of the railway carriage and sung in a single line,—"The Goth, the Christian, Time, War, Flood, and Fire," to which may be added Earthquake. Gradually, under a long line of successive Popes, Rome rose slowly again out of its ashes—the materials of magnificent palaces and pagan temples being used to create and embellish the city cathedrals and churches, convents, colleges, and monasteries that we see to-day.

Let others describe their emotions on approaching the "Eternal City," when, from hundred years later, "having filled the the Campagna, they first caught sight of "The world with her renown, she fell at length Cupola !" When our conductor opened we ask, how? Byron supplies the answer out "Roma!!" with full suphonious emphasis