SHOCKING STEAMBOAT ACCIDENT.

(From the Globe.)

We regret to announce that a most frightful accident occur-Ted to the Steamer Passport on Thursday evening, on her trip up from Montreal to Kingston. We have as yet received no accurate account of the lamentable affair, except what we have been enabled to glean from passengers who reached here last evening, but we believe that the following narrative will be found substantially correct .--- cently been appointed, to a better situation, and his successor not having been appointed, the boat on the night in question, was in charge of the second Engineer Unfortunately at the time of the accident, the 2nd Engineer had retired to his berth, leaving an inferior officer in command—he being, as afterwards appeared, an illiterate person, unable to read or write.

About 9 o'clock, P. M., the Passport was off Lancaster (16 miles below Cornwall), the under-deck being loaded with steerage passengers-when the bost took the ground. O:ders were given to stop the engine and back out; it appears that to do this, from the pecaliar construction of the engine, the engineer should have opened one cock and shut another. He opened the first, but it is said neglected to shut the other. The steam in con-consequence rushed from the cylinder, through the hot-well, in among the access of the second which followed mong the steerage passengers-and the scene which followed may be imagined. The shrick which broke from the unhappy sufferers we are assured was frightful and was heard several miles off. The utmost consternation struck all on board, the character of the accident being for some time unknown; four leared the other two were drowned.

Captain Bowen and his officers were most energetic, and the Captain Bowen and his officers were most energetic, and the simple nature of the disaster having been ascertained and con-fidence somewhat restored, every exertion was made to relieve the sufferers. A surgeon came off from Lancaster to their as-sistance, and the scalded passengers having been brought on deck, it was found that 44 were severely injured. We are told that the scene during the night was horrible in the extreme; the cabin was strewed with men, women and children suffering the most frightful agony, and the shricks of the dying rang throughout the night. After some delay the boat proceeded to cornwall, by which time nine of the sufferers had expired. A Cornoer's inquest was held by Dr. McDonald and Mr. Dickson, ner's inquest was held by Dr. McDonald and Mr. Dickson. and evidence taken-but we learn that no verdict was rendered, enquiry having been adjourned.

sufferers in this unfortunate affair were all immigrants. About twenty of them were left behind at Cornwall, and the temainder were brought up to Kingston. We understand that four additional deaths have resulted since the Coroner's inquest sat, and the second sec nd that many others are very seriously injured.

We may here mention that Mr. Palmer, the Engineer for one of the Companies, came down at the same time, and in passing along Yonge Street expressed his admiration not only of the fertile country through which he passed, but of the ex-cellent manner in which it was farmed He "could not believe he was in Canada."
