

Questions

Mr. MacEachen: Mr. Speaker, as I understand it, the proposal is that instead of having a vote tomorrow night on the motion that will be put forward, we expect, by the official opposition, an additional motion in the next period will be a voting motion, and that the number of motions in the session will not be increased. If that is the understanding, then this is certainly agreeable to the government.

Mr. MacLean: That is correct, Mr. Speaker. My reason for raising this point at this time, of course, is that a notice has to be put in within the next few hours.

Mr. Speaker: Is it agreed and so ordered?

Some hon. Members: Agreed.
