NEW YORK, April 5.—When the hands of the office clock pointed to twelve last night the key was turned in the front door of the Sinclair House, at Broadway and Eighth-street, for the first time since the place was opened as a roadhouse in place was opened as a roadnouse in 1840.

The old building is to be torn down to make way for a modern twelve storey commercial building. With the disappearance of the Sinclair House the Astor House is left as the single relic of an age when New York's farmer bootleries were far downtown.
