GOOD COUNSEL FOR YOUTH

The Times has received from A. Turner Howard of Fredericton a new year message to all his young friends in St. John. In his quaint way Mr. Howard sets out to tell the young people how to be happy in the new year and all future years.

"You are," he says, "to be strictly honest and true, and scorn a lie as you would the devil."

Mr. Howard cites the case of a boy who went astray by lying to get a temporary advantage over a companion, and continued the habit and acquired other bad ones until he landed in prison. Mr. Howard adds:—

"Hate lying with all your soul. You will tell your how, when you are at work for your employer, whether manual or clerical, bank or office, simply by not doing your best, shirking your work, and saying to yourself, 'I am not getting much pay for this so I'll not do my best.' Boys, you could not do a thing more fatal to your future success. You are laying the foundation of your manhood now, and be sure and make it a good one. Let the four corner-stones be truth, truth, truth, truth. If you build on this foundation all the powers of evil cannot harm you. Remember that your employer's success is yours and his business is yours as long as you are with him. If all men acted on this principle there would never be another failure in Greater St. John."
