To Be Successful the Colonies Would Have to Surrender Very Substantial Powers.

Ottawa, Oct. 13.-The visit of Sir lakes were swept last night by the heav- bridge in 1903, and that she fell in love Frederick Pollock to Canada draws par- make with her and with other colonies ticular attention to the latest phase of such commercial treaties as may suit the Imperial Federation movement. Put briefly, Sir Frederick's plan is to form a permanent advisory council at of any recommendations of an unauthoricraft. A forty-mile southwest wind last gave her a receipt. This was on May which all the integral portions of the tative council, and by proving more sat-British Empire would be represented, but isfactory will strengthen the sentimental which would have no power beyond what he calls "persuasive authority." Speaking of this council he says: "My own expectation would be that, if such a council were once effectually con-stituted, including the fitting persons and furnished with proper information, its advice would come to have great weight, and ultimately take a definite place in the customs of our constitution. But it would no more detract from the general responsibility of the King's min-isters than the committee of imperial defence does at present; and in the same way it would not affect the constitutional powers or responsibility of any colonial ministry. It canont be supposed, however, that a council of this kind could of-ten meet in its full strength. Whatever its exact relation to the conference of colonial premiers might be it must include, on special occasions, colonial statesmen not habitually residing in England. Therefore provision will be ed not only for keeping minutes of the council's proceedings, but for interim communications by letter or cable, or by the delegation of occasional representa-tives for special purposes. This is as much as to say that a permanent se tary's office is required; and it must not be dependent on any existing department, but immediately under the president of the imperial council or committee. Further, we want a more systematic method of preparing the way for profitable con-sideration of many kinds of affairs touch ing imperial interests. The existing means of the colonial, Indian and foreign offices are not sufficient or appropriately organized for this purpose. The new cretariat should have at its disposal both the best and most recent information and the conclusions of expert comco. yesterday, A. D. Since the days of Molesworth the tendency of imperial legislation has been to dency of the denc Foundation Stone Laid by the King-His been that to-day the empire is bound to-gether by stronger, if merely sentimental, acted as a special in charge of the prise gether by stronger, if merely sentimental, acted as a special in charge of the prise gether by stronger, if merely sentimental, bonds than have ever before in the world's history bound together the ineral post office buildings on the site on sons to fight for the Motherland against ers of Europe, who hoped thereby to break the strength of Great Britain, and that the members of the combine stood aghast as they saw that those who touchd the lion must reckon also with the on's cubs. It is recorded in an ancient book that the stones of the Tower of London have remained in place so long because the ement was mixed with blood. The stones omposing the British Empire had stood in juxtaposition up to the outbreak of that war, but then they became cemented together by the blood of the sons of all the portions of the empire, and if Presented to the Emperor By United States Minister Griscom.

The sentimental ties that strengthen this bond are allowed free scope there is little fear of the dismembers. mpire, but any attempt to strengthen them by statute is a very dangerous ex- say. periment, especially when it includes decolonies of any part of the iberty they have won.

Supposing, however, that Sir Frederick's council were formed, who would it represent? There would be probably two members of the council representing Canada, but how far would they represent the great divergence of opinion hat exists in the various portions of Canada and amongst the different communities relative to all questions of trade and ommerce? It will only be necessary to ake the reports of the evidence submitsee how hopeless a task it would be for any two men to undertake to represent Canada on such a council.

The divergencies of opinion in Canada would, however, be easily reconciled in comparison with those which exist throughout the various parts of the em-pire. This may be shown by a very apt illustration. Last year Mr. Chamber lain sent the chairman of his committee to South Africa and New Zealand to as certain the feeling of those colonies i regard to his policy. When in New Zea land Premier Seddon and he were talking over the wheat trade and the necesendeavor to capture and kill all the Moros sary preference. Mr. Chamberlain's emsary preference. Mr. Chamberlain's em-missary stated that six pence had been mentioned as the probable preference on graphy must, however, be given in Ruswheat. "Six pence," replied Mr. Seddon. "Why New Zealand will want one shilling and threepence in order to compete with the Argentine republic the matter of transportation only." Here is a case where what would suit Canada, will take any stock in Sir Frederick Pollock's scheme because the council would have no authority, and would not fully represent any section of the empire, and also because the management of fiscal affairs has been relegated to the self-governing colonies to deal with as may suit their several requirements, and as far as present is made apparent no scheme can be devised which will suit all the requirements of all the colonies Great Britain will not relegate to the col onies or to any council representing all or any portion of those colonies the right of making her tariff to suit her own ne cessities, nor is it likely to brook any nterference with her fiscal policy, comfrom whatever quarter it may. next general election in Great Britain will probably decide, for many years to ome, the question as to along what line she will legislate as regards her tariff, and when she has decided that question, it will remain open for each colony to their several conditions. This course will parties interested than will the results
