

Pack's Point, Ont.
August 9, 1955.

Dear Mr. Meighen:

I have your two letters of August 4th to answer. First let me say again how much we appreciated seeing you and Mrs. Meighen at the service a week ago. It was certainly good of you to come up, particularly in view of the oppressive heat which prevailed.

I am familiar with one or two of Hector Charlesworth's books and am not inclined to place too much reliance on him as a recorder and interpreter of events. However, I shall borrow the books from you the next time I'm in the city as they may contain some useful material. When that will be I can't say at the moment but will let you know in advance as you request.

Now as to the Kincardine trip I do not know what to say. Dad's death has left me with more than usual to look after here in the short time left before we have to be back in Regina. Also I am weary. A week before Dad passed away I had taken my family for a short visit to New York to stay with my wife's sister and family, whom we hadn't seen
