

Article XI.

Any article of this Constitution may be altered, amended, or suspended for any period by the consent of two-thirds of the members present at any Special or General Meeting convened for that purpose, or at the Annual General Meeting, provided that such alteration, amendment or suspension shall have been specified in the notice summoning such meeting.