In this issue of Farm and Dairy a number of farmers record their experiences with labor saving machinery. So great has been the improvements in farm machinery that Farm and Dairy deems it well to devote special attention at this time each year to this subject. The Self Binder is one of the most remarkable and most needed farm machines of the day, but there are numerous others that have become almost as essential and that are large profit makers. Farm machinery when purchased judiciously in spite of the heavy cost involved, soon pays for itself.
