RUM-RUNNING OUR DISGRACE

(Evening Mail, Halifax) Severe criticism of the methods used by the authorities of the Maritime Provinces in coping with the traffic in liquor was contained in an address delivered by Mrs. H. P. Newcombe, National Secretary of the W. C. T. U., under the auspices of the Provincial Branch of that organization in the Vestry of the Robie Street Church.

"Rum-running," said Mrs. Newcombe, "is becoming the national disgrace of Canada. The government of the United States, which is endeavoring to enforce this new law—the prohibition law—in a vast country populated with many different types of people, is not receiving the support and aid that she should from the government of Canada. Why, I ask you, should bonded warehouses be situated at Woodstock and St. Stephen in the province of New Brunswick? Why were those towns right on the border line chosen? You know, and I know, they were chosen with a dishonest purpose; that the contents of those warehouses might the more easily leak into a dry country.

"Shame on us as Canadians! The government at Ottawa should be ashamed of itself; for the existence of those houses in our border towns is not only a provincial shame, they are a national dishonor.

"We must work for better law enforcement. This work belongs to the attorney-generals and their departments in our several provinces. It is so easy for these departments of our governments to slide the responsibility onto the shoulders of the extra prohibition officers, but these officers should always be considered, as aids of the attorney-generals' departments, and ways and means must be devised by that department for enforcing this new law with all the dignity that they attempt to enforce the murder law or any other law. The responsibility lies at the door of this department of the government."

AGAIN WINS COVETED PRIZE

Donald D. Foster, a science graduate of Acadia University, class of 1920, who won the Loomis Fellowship in physics at Yale University last year and also the year before, has again won this valuable and coveted prize.

The prize is worth approximately six hundred dollars and the winner is determined by competitive examination. It is the highest departmental fellowship in physics. Mr. Foster is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Foster of Torbrook, West Annapolis county.

The Loomis Fellowship in physics was established in 1902 by Francis E. Loomis (B. A. 1864) by the gift of $10,000. This fellowship is open to recent graduates of Yale College and the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University and to graduates of other institutions who have spent at least one year in the study of physics in the graduate school of Yale University. It is granted to the candidate who passes the best competitive examination in physics (descriptive, mathematical and laboratory practice). The holder must be a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy and must make physics his chief study.

WINDSOR CAPTURES CHAMPIONSHIP OF VALLEY LEAGUE

WINDSOR, Feb. 22—Windsor won the championship of the Valley tonight when they decisively defeated Digby by a 10 to 1 score before 800 people. This makes a clean sweep for the locals who have not lost a game this season. Referee Harry Butler, Halifax Crescents forward, handled the game in an impartial manner and held the teams in check throughout, there being only four penalties, three to Digby and one to Windsor. Many people entered the rink expecting to see a repetition of Tuesday's clash at Digby, but they were disappointed in this respect. After the game the visitors were royally entertained by the home players. Sammy MacDonald scored the first goal on a rush down left wing. Poole followed on a pass from Sammy. Poole got the third from a rebound. The period ended 3 to nil.

Windsor sent on a new forward line in the second period, Clarke, Hughes and Cochrane playing. Clarke scored on a neat rush and duplicated a minute later on a pass from McCann. N. Wier scored Digby's only goal when the puck struck Smith's pads and rolled between his legs. McCann scored again before the period ended.

J. MacDonald scored from a face-off at the opening of the third period and Mosher followed on a pass from Poole. Poole got another when Mosher passed neatly, and the former got the final goal when Sam MacDonald assisted.

Digby—L. Wier, goal; Muise, Hutchinson, defence; Baxter, Andrews, Melanson, forwards; Wilson Syda, Donnelly, subs.

Windsor—Smith, goal; S. MacDonald, McCann, defence; J. MacDonald, Mosher, Poole, forwards; Clarke, Cochrane, Hughes, subs.

SHORTER SKIRTS WITH KNEE TO HEM FULLNESS, SAYS RUMOR

The Boston Traveller says: Obviously styles are definitely established at this season, but one is ever looking ahead and it is not the present but the future which holds our attention.

The well-established styles are the ones for sports and semi-sports wear, those straight line dresses which will be worn by well-gowned women this winter as well as next summer. The styles that are governed by such rumors as the importers are bringing back from Paris from week to week. The most arresting of these is that skirts are going to be much shorter, and another is that which contends that the Cheruit influence, which means fullness from knee to hem, will be effective this season.

These details may not be definitely fixed till after the spring openings in Paris; whatever new influence is introduced there will play a strong part in the summer fashion.

The few who follow latest whim of the mode will be most affected, but the majority will wear what is shown now by the New York window-dressers. As has been said the straight line dress of crepe will be worn for resorts and this is made with the V neckline in most cases. Next most popular is the bateau neckline while the very new note is the square neck not any lower than the bateau line but much closer so that shoulder straps are in no danger whatever of showing.

Short sleeves are the rule, most of them reaching to the elbow and a few that adhere more closely to the French types, being a good deal shorter. The set-in sleeve and wide armhole are more frequently seen than the kimono effect which though it is used, is not as new or as smart as the other.

Of course, the full-pleated skirt which accompanies the overblouse is a dominant style for the coming season. This is made in crepe de chine and is either hung from a bodice or made on a loose belt that hangs from the hips rather than from the waist line. Eight or nine inches off the ground is the accepted length at present.

THE PRINCESS AND THE DINNER

Perhaps no English Princess has ever had so thoroughly a training in domestic economy as the Princess Mary. Under the eyes of her Royal mother she has passed through every stage of practical household management, and so to-day she is able to superintend her husband's establishment at Chesterfield House, etc. When a girl of twelve she learned the first principles of cookery and it is recorded that at fourteen she was responsible for a dinner that was pronounced "creditable" by the Royal chef.

A visit to the wine-cellar of Buckingham Palace is interesting.

At one time these capacious cellars were filled with wines valued at about forty thousand pounds. It will be recollected that King Edward accumulated a vast amount of sherry of which he was very fond, while the stock of port and claret was also very valuable. But to-day very little alcoholic liquor is laid down.

As a matter of fact a great deal of the costly and heavy wine at Windsor is being disposed of.

It may be noted that the Prince of Wales has inherited from his Royal grandfather an "intelligent interest" in cookery. Indeed, when quite a lad there is a story told that he wandered into the kitchens of Buckingham Palace and watched with fascinated interest the white-capped head chef preparing dinner. Later he essayed to try his hand at culinary concoctions and astonished his parents by producing a rather fearsome mess announced proudly as his own handiwork. It was eaten with some misgivings, but pronounced "splendid". For cookery of a more exquisite kind it is probable that Marlborough House will again become famous, as the Prince is hoping to instal a certain famous chef there whose name is a household word among lovers of really good culinary work.

FRANCE AND THE RUHR

Thomas A. Edison, in his birthday talk with a host of reporters, declared the British debt settlement a good settlement but added: "I think we should have less interest. There was a half per cent there in the space separating pure business from pure sentiment. We made it a business proposition and took that half per cent. We should have shown a finer sentimental regard for what had taken place in the war by forgiving that half per cent. What we did, I would say, was not exactly nice." In the same interview the aged inventor declared his approval of the French occupation of the Ruhr. On the same day another distinguished American, Major General C. R. Edwards, retired, who commanded a division in France, told a great gathering in New York, "I hope that France completes her occupation; and makes the handcluffs secure. If she asks us later for our good office, I hope we answer, 'Most assuredly, but upon one condition, that the army that is there stays there until every franc due from Germany is collected.'" Other distinguished guests at the Lincoln banquet in New York spoke in the same strain. The applause of the vast majority of the great audience of upwards of a thousand representative men was a clear indication, not only that their sympathies are with France, but that it was their belief that Germany has all along been playing a game to deceive the powers. The end of the French occupation is not in sight. Indications today are that it may take a very long time to bring the desired results, but day by day changes in the situation all point to a French determination to remain in the Ruhr until Germany fulfils the terms of the Versailles treaty. The pinch of the occupier is being felt in Germany today, and time is all on the side of France.

U. N. B. WILL NOT ENTER MARITIME COLLEGE FEDERATION

Fredericton, N. B., Feb. 21—The University of New Brunswick will not enter the proposed federation of Maritime universities, it was announced by Premier P. J. Veniot here Tuesday night.

"HAD A NARROW ESCAPE"

"I never realized until a few months ago how risky it is to neglect a cold in the chest. I have always had such good health, that a cold either in the head or chest, while unpleasant, never gave me any worry. Outside an occasional cold, I had never known what it was to be laid up even for a day in all my life, until last December. One afternoon I got a chill and no matter how close I got to the stove, I couldn't seem to get warm. This chill was followed by a cold in my chest. As usual I neglected it and it kept getting worse and worse. Finally I had to go to bed and send for the doctor. His examination showed that I had pneumonia and a bad case at that. By careful nursing on the part of my husband, my children and some friends, I managed to pull through, but the doctor told me I had a narrow shave. And here's where my troubles began. While I was now out of danger, I was anything but well. I was still very weak from the effects of the pneumonia. Although I had lots of life and energy before my sickness, I was now worn out and tired all the time. I slept fairly well, more because I was exhausted, but my sleep didn't refresh me because, while I appeared to be asleep, I was conscious most of the time of what went on around me. Although all kinds of tempting dishes were prepared for me, I had no relish for food. This sickness had already undermined my health to such an extent that I was a living skeleton. I was getting discouraged as nothing I took seemed to do me any good. 'I wonder if Carnal wouldn't build you up,' a friend said one day. 'It did me a world of good. I was completely run down and you can see for yourself how well I look today. Why don't you try it?' 'Thanks to this friend's advice I am in perfect health again, as healthy and as full of life and vitality as I have ever been.' Carnal is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money. 9-622 Sold in Wolfville by H. following a meeting of the Legislative Council, which adjourned shortly before midnight. The announcement did not give any details, but a statement of the reasons for the government's decision will be issued here today, Premier Veniot said. The government approved the recommendations of the university senate, which were adverse to the inclusion of the college in a proposed federation of Maritime universities at Halifax.

UNSETTLED The editor of a country newspaper received from a subscriber the query, "Can you tell me what the weather is likely to be next week?" In reply he wrote, "It is my belief that the weather next week is likely to be like your subscription." A SMALL THING BUT MUCH TALKED OF

In the centre of this group is the much discussed gun captured by the British at Bunker Hill in 1775. Bunker Hill is just outside Boston, and the engagement in which the gun was captured began the War of Independence. Bostonians have displayed much interest in the little trophy, so much so that they have proposed that the gun be returned to them as an evidence of Canada's friendly feeling for the United States. For many years the gun has stood on the parade ground in the Citadel of Quebec. As the above photo shows it is not very big, and its death-dealing efficiency was probably not high, although it most likely made a fair amount of noise. American visitors to the ancient city are always keenly interested in it. In the above photo is seen a group of Knights Templar and their ladies from Boston, part of a large party who enjoyed the excellent winter sporting facilities of Quebec during the latter part of January. Just at the time that the proposal was made that the gun be returned to its original owners. Beyond the Citadel is seen the top of the new tower of the Chateau Frontenac which has been added as a new crown to that splendid example of French Chateau architecture, and to provide three hundred rooms to accommodate the growing number of visitors to Canada's most historic city. Every year sees Quebec growing more and more popular for both winter sport lovers and summer sight-seers who find there a vast fund of interest in the city's rich store of historic places and buildings. The other illustration is of the famous Chateau as it now appears with its new tower.
