AMENDING THE ELECTIONS BILL.
The assembly has at last given some little evidence of some little independence. It has taken the grip with Mr. Blair and amended his election bill. It has taken the advice of the Government rather than Mr. Blair's wishes and interests. It has practically erased that objectionable section of the bill permitting the government to pass over the assent of a county and issue the writ of election to any person they may wish to select, and substituted a section making it binding on the government to issue the writ to the sheriff, and to none other, except in cases where that officer is mentally incapacitated, or interested in the election by way of relationship with the candidates. We congratulate the house on the position it has taken. Had the bill passed as drafted by Mr. Blair, the government would have had at their command a powerful lever to defeat the will of the people in elections. Sheriff, for instance, with a high sense of duty and a determination to do the right, might readily be passed over and the writ issued to a being of the reputation of John R. Dunn, of Queens. The will of the people could thus very readily be defeated, as was the case in Queens. No government, however honest, should have such power as this bill would have given had it not been amended; a certain such power in the hands of so corrupt a man as Mr. Blair would have been a very serious matter to the people of this province.

It will be remembered that when Mr. Blair, a few years ago, professed allegiance to the liberal party, he was very loud in his condemnation of the dominion government for making just such a provision in their elections act as he endeavored to induce the assembly to pass in his. It was positive evidence of his real intentions. But then Mr. Blair has since sacrificed the interests of the liberal party in York and taken a variety of twists and sharp turns beside.

SCOTT ACT ELECTIONS TO-DAY.
Elections in politics making the repeal of the Scott Act are being held to-day in fourteen electoral districts in Ontario, viz: Peterborough, Lincoln, Victoria, Ontario East, Northumberland and Durham, Frontenac, Wellington, Lanark and Adirondack, Simcoe, Lennox and Glengarry, Carleton and St. Thomas City. Telegraphic notices this morning are to the effect that tremendous efforts are being made in all of these places to defeat the Act. The liquor element, with all the corrupting influence, has been into the contest since the early hours of the morning, and it is quite confident that to-day it will add largely to the series of defeats sustained by the Act in Ontario last spring. On the other hand the temperance people are doing good work, and though not expecting victory in all of the contests, they seem to be quite sanguine that at least a good majority of the districts will declare in favor of the Act. The temperance people, however, are laboring against great odds. The machinery of the Ontario government has been set in motion against them; leading Tory electioneers are into the contest with all the energy at their command; and the government have gone so far as to appoint as a returning officer for Carleton a strong friend of the liquor party. We have not heard that Mr. Foster is this time taking any active interest in the temperance party, but an explanation of the cause of the government of which he is a member appointing as a returning officer a pronounced friend of the liquor party, will be eagerly looked for.

LAST EVENING'S MOTIONS.
The discussion in the assembly in passing either. Had the substance of the motion been made an amendment to the election bill, and pressed to a vote, when there was the possibility of accomplishing something, then the expressions of opinion could have been very differently viewed, and been of some interest. However, we presume the issue will have something to say about them.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.
Mr. Laurier's amendment to the franchise bill.
Ottawa, April 2.—In the commons to-day, Hon. Mr. Foster, in answer to Sir Richard Cartwright, admitted that the government proposed to amend the franchise bill in such a way as to prevent the sinking fund of the loan in purchasing bonds unless such bonds were held at an unreasonable premium at a price produced by artificial combination. Sir Richard Cartwright said that after the answer received he deemed it his probable effect of such a course as that proposed. In his budget speech the finance minister stated that the terms on which the loan was effected were exceedingly favorable. He (Foster) then stated that there was no sinking fund attached to that loan; that statement was correct. In June last, the high commissioner had effected a loan at 1 1/2 per cent, payable in 40 years, without any sinking fund at all.

of the loan and prospects dimly; that a clause had been inserted which involved serious loss to the country. In their prospectus the government had stated that with the aid of rendering the government sinking funds more effective than formerly, that fund was to be devoted to raising bonds then about to be issued. He (Cartwright) believed that such an arrangement would compel the dominion to apply $250,000 sterling a year in repaying the government bonds and the practical effect would be that instead of $250,000 a year, the government had effected one or two million in 10 years in addition to the $250,000 such and they were further bound to re-purchase Canadian securities, at the current market rate, which was considerably above par. He asked if Mr. Foster could confirm this extraordinary arrangement.

Mr. Foster asked for time to prepare an explanation and the debate was adjourned.

The house then went into committee of supply and passed the immigration estimates after long discussion, in which the opposition severely criticised the government's management of the immigration service.

The committee rose and reported progress.

The house adjourned at 10 o'clock.

BLACKVILLE.
The biggest loss ever sustained by a property owner in Blackville—destroyed by fire.

BLACKVILLE.
Blackville, April 2nd. David Coughlin claims to have out the biggest pine-wood house in the county. It was owned by Joseph Greely, while walking up the road yesterday afternoon, was struck by one side to let it pass when the other knocked him down and ran over him. His injuries are serious, and he is now in a hospital.

THE EASTERN INCIDENT WHICH FURNISHED THE THEME OF A SCOTTISH SONG.
It is not generally known that the incident which forms the subject of the ballad Scottish song, "The Evening of the Door," which also occurs in the "Night" of St. Stephen, is of eastern origin. In an Arabian tale a block-head having married his pretty cousin, gave the customary feast to their relations and friends. When the festivities were over he conducted his guests to the door, and from absence of mind, neglected to shut it before returning to his wife.

"Dear cousin," said his wife to him when they were alone, "go and shut the street door." "It would be strange, indeed," he replied, "if I did such a thing. Am I just made a bridegroom, clothed in silk, wearing a turban, and a dagger set with diamonds, and am I to go and shut the door? Why, my dear, you are crazy. Go and shut it yourself!" "Oh, indeed!" exclaimed his wife. "Am I, young rebel, in a dress of lace and precious stones, am I to go and shut the door? No, indeed! It is you who have become a block-head, and I am a woman of sense. Go and shut the door!" "Oh, indeed!" exclaimed his wife. "Am I, young rebel, in a dress of lace and precious stones, am I to go and shut the door? No, indeed! It is you who have become a block-head, and I am a woman of sense. Go and shut the door!"
