

BAYFIELD SHOW.

A Large Crowd in attendance—Full List of the Prize Winners. The Stanley show at Bayfield is always the last of the season and is generally a success. While last it is by no means least in importance. It was held on Thursday and Friday last on the new and commodious grounds. Everybody had on their best, and smiled with good nature, as the immense crowd surged along to witness the various attractions. Godefrich hand was on the ground and added greatly to the day's amusement. The weather was disagreeable, but that did not prevent the crowd from being large. The exhibit in the various departments was on an average as good as previous years. The competition in buggy, agricultural and general purpose horses was keen, and the show of sheep and cattle really good. In implements, &c., Messrs. John Pollock, L. Beatty and others attracted considerable attention. On the whole the management are to be congratulated on their success. Below is a list of the prize winners:

"The true gentlemen," said she, "will never inflict pain and I never can respect a man who is not a true gentleman." "Then, Mary," he said merrily, "I suppose that I can hope for your love no longer?" "Why not, Edward?" "I am a dentist, you know."

"And is this to be the end?" said the deeply-enamored travelling man to the beautiful young lady who kept the books on one of the regular customers in the little inland town. "It is, Mr. Thompson," she replied; "I can never be anything to you but a friend."

"Then," said the drummer with tremulous voice and a face of ashy paleness, "it only remains for me to say farewell. I shall be here again," he continued, consulting his memorandum book with rapidly recovering self-possession. "In thirty days with a full line of samples in millinery and dress goods. Save me your orders, please. Good afternoon."

Danlop.

During the runaway of Sowerby's team, Joseph Thompson and Ben Go team, Joseph Thompson for water, showed great skill with the lines in avoiding a collision. After passing, the team they drove followed the example set by the other horses and ran off with the tank, running against a telegraph pole, which stopped them quickly, giving Jos. a hip-sprain. Our jovial engineer was soon on hand and attended to J. S. The arm was bruised a wee bit, but by rubbing it manfully with Allen's Liniment it is fast mending.

A new scholar arrived at Lunsdowne farm on Wednesday morning, and will answer the school roll in the new school-house when built. It is a girl.

The tooth of the mill whistle to start hands to work, made J. Sowerby's greys from Godefrich township start for home with a half a load of lumber on. In their haste they took the lake shore when turning by the hotel. The reach broke and scattered the load, and with the front wheels ran against several telegraph poles near the windmill which stopped them. Mounted on the fleet Arab of Mr. Host, John Sowerby overtook them there, and his brother Tom on foot joined him. The frightened team were soon adjusted. No serious breaks but the reach. Henceforth Tom will unhitch traces at a sawmill.

PERSONALS.—Miss Clutton and Miss Elith Horton, of Leeburn, who have lately joined a Band of Hope there visited the different families in our busy for some time. Their visit was very successful. Both ladies are earnest workers in the temperance and church works, and under their leadership, the Band of Hope has energetic, painstaking teachers.

ONE UNDER.—About 7 weeks ago we recorded that our warlike gobbler had undergone a surgical operation, by his crop being taken away from it, and that it was sown up. The thread rotted away, and the bird wandered off in a severe storm and died before he was missed. Diligent search was made for him, but to no avail. Two children were saved from his fury when he struted about with his feathers erected, and would have been killed by him. Though a cross bird he was useful in killing potato bugs by the billion, etc., last summer. And the assessor won't be timorous when he comes next year.

Godefrich Township.

HOLMESVILLE, Oct. 10, 1887. Council met today pursuant to adjournment. Members present: Messrs. Godefrich, last meeting read and passed. A letter from Alfred Jarvis was read, protesting against the closing up of road on 11 and 12 con., north of his property. Moved by J. McAllister, seconded by J. Whately, that no action be taken on the protest of Alfred Jarvis relating to the closing up of part of 11th and 12th con. north of his property, as said Alfred Jarvis has ingress and egress to said property as the law in such cases requires. Carried. A bylaw for stopping up aforesaid portion of 11th and 12th con., was read and passed. A bylaw confirming the sale of aforesaid portion of 11th and 12th con. north of his property, as said Alfred Jarvis has ingress and egress to said property as the law in such cases requires. Carried. The following accounts were paid:—J. Lindsay and A. May for use of scraper two days each 20c. per day, $1; Wm. Collins, indent, $18.75, same for shoes, $1.50; J. L. Haid, out trees planted in 1884, $3; G. Haid, out trees for 1884, $2; Mrs. Trambly, taking care of R. Bay and wife to date, $6; two cords of wood to same, $4. Council adjournment to meet again on the second Monday in November next.

JAS. PATTON, clerk.

PRESERVED TOMATOES.—Scald and peel small, smooth, pear-shaped tomatoes, prick with a large needle and put their weight of sugar over them. Let stand over night, pour off the juice and boil till it is a thick syrup, skimming carefully. Put in the tomatoes and cook till they are translucent. A sliced lemon cooked in the syrup improves the flavor.

TRUE LOVE BURNING SMOOTHLY.—She—Do you remember the lovely moonlight ride we had at Newport last summer, Charley, behind that cute little donkey? He or (with great respect)—Do I remember it, love! As if I could ever forget it! She—You are nice to say so, Charley, and you know, dear, I never see a donkey without thinking of you.

The granulation of honey in cold weather is the best test of its purity. If adulterated with glucose it will not become solid, and if granulated sugar is used it will become caky and have crystals of sugar through it. If honey "candies" or granulates, set the dish containing it into one of warm water until it melts, keeping the water close to the boiling point.
