The Evening Chit-Chat

By MOTE CAMERON

There is a certain portion of my ancient history, which I don't think I shall forget to my dying day. It is the description of the way in which the barbarians punished an offending general. He was chained down on the desert, face upwards under the burning African sun, then his eyelids were cut off and he was left powerless to turn away his eyes from the terrible rays, to suffer until he died or went mad.

Horrible, isn't it? And yet somehow I was reminded of it when several of my letter friends urged me to speak up for the babies whose mothers, fathers and caretakers while not intending to be cruel, actually do mistreat the little ones, by exposing their eyes to glaring light.

Writes one woman, "Can you exhorted mothers to shade the eyes of their babies from bright light? I so often see poor babies blinking that I hope you can protest. The little caps are wretched covers for eyes. I once met a man in the business streets wheeling a baby tilted back to the blazing sunshine, so that the child was winking and blinking in evident discomfort. I mustered courage to say, 'Your baby's eyes!' He promptly and emphatically replied, 'The sunshine is good for him.' Of course, it is good for his body but not for his eyes. I know a man who went blind, because he was left asleep outdoors with the sun shining in his eyes."

Surely this is something about which mothers and fathers cannot be too careful. Yes, of course, seven-eighths of them are already taking every precaution.

But it isn't for those that this is written.

I was calling on a neighbour of mine the other day, when her little boy, who is only four years and a half old, came home from an errand on which she had sent him.

The errand was one which had taken a ten minutes walk, including two crossings.

"How do you ever dare let him cross those streets?" I questioned.

"I wouldn't," said the mother. "If it were not for the training we have given him, Philip never steps into the street until he has carefully looked both ways and seen that nothing is coming."

"Ever since he was old enough to know anything at all, I have trained him that way until it is just as much a habit as it is for him to eat with a spoon instead of with his fingers. Even when he is playing and his ball rolls into the street, he never runs out after it until he has looked both ways to see if the road is clear. Of course it has taken a good bit of talking, insisting and some punishments, but I think it has all been worth while, for I feel so safe about him. Besides I think the habit is one which will be good for him to have all his life."

Since that day I have seen Philip alone two or three times and seen him cross the street in just the same manner his mother described, so I am sure she has reason for her confidence.

Now, don't you think her method of inculcating a habit of carefulness is a better way to guard a child's safety, than simply to grasp his hand when you come to a crossing and tow him willy-nilly across?

Of course towing him across is a very simple and safe way when you are with him, but you can't always be with him, especially as he grows older, whereas the habit of looking both ways before he tries to cross a street, if deeply enough inculcated, will be his constant companion.

Philip's mother said further that even when she and his father were out walking with him they did not take hold of his hand at a crossing but simply reminded him to look sharp, and thus taught him to assume responsibility.

When one sees adults alight from a car and start to the sidewalk or launch themselves into a busy thoroughfare, looking neither to the right nor left, one can fully endorse the idea that this habit of keeping his eyes open will be a unique and much to be desired safeguard to Philip.

And incidentally to any other child,

Stomach Blood and Liver Troubles

Much sickness starts with weak stomach, and consequent poor, impoverished blood. Nervous and pale-people lack good, rich, red blood. Their stomachs need invigorating for, after all, a man can be no stronger than his stomach. A remedy that makes the stomach strong and the liver active, makes rich red blood and overcomes and drives out disease-producing bacteria and cures a whole multitude of diseases.

Get rid of your Stomach Weakness and Liver Laziness by taking a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—the Great Stomach Restorative, Liver Invigorator and Blood Cleanser.

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate an invigorated Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Why We Hate the Manchus.

BY A CHINAMAN.

People wonder at the massacres of the Manchus that have accompanied the revolution in China. But that is because they do not understand. No Chinaman is surprised.

For nearly three hundred years these strangers have oppressed us, robbed us, murdered us. Now the day

A BROKEN-DOWN SYSTEM. This is a condition (or disease) to which doctors give many names, but which few of them really understand. It is simply weakness—a break-down in all the vital forces that sustain the system. No matter what may be its cause (for they are almost numberless), its symptoms are much the same: the more prominent being sleeplessness, sense of prostration or weariness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary affairs of life. Now, what alone is absolutely essential in all such cases is increased vitality—vigour—

VITAL STRENGTH & ENERGY to know of these mental feelings, and experience proves that as night succeeds the day this may be more certainly secured by a course of the celebrated life-reviving tonic.

THERAPION No. 3 than by any other known combination. So sure is it that it is taken in accordance with the printed directions accompanying it will the patient's health be restored.

THE EXPIRING LAMP OF LIFE LIGHTED UP AFRESH and a new existence imparted in place of what had so lately seemed "burnt-out" and "dead." This wonderful medicinal preparation is pure vegetable and innocuous, is agreeable to the taste—suitable for all constitutions and conditions, either sex; and it is difficult to imagine a case of disease or debility, whose main features are those of vitality that will not be speedily and permanently benefited by this new medicine. Its positive essence, which is destined to cast into oblivion everything that had preceded it for this wilderness and unpopulated human abodes.

THERAPION is sold by Chemists throughout the world. Price in Enclosure 17 and 48. Purchasers should see that the word "THERAPION" appears on the label and Government Stamp in white letters on a red ground affixed to the wrapper by order of His Majesty's Stationery Office, and without which it is a forgery.

THERAPION may now also be obtained in Dragee (Tasteless) form.

of reckoning has arrived. It is likely to be a terrible one.

The Manchus were originally savages from the wilds of Manchuria, a desert region of rock and sand. It is as if a horde of Arab tribesmen from the hinterland of Tripoli, were to swoop in upon London, capture it, conquer Britain, and reduce the British people to the condition of a subject race.

Each Hate and Despises the Other.

In such a case no bond of love between conqueror and conquered could, of course, ever exist. It is the same with the Chinese and their Manchu conquerors. Each hates and despises the other.

The Manchus, because they were savages, treated us savagely, have always done so. Until quite recently no Chinaman was permitted to walk on the same side of the street as a Manchu. The Chinaman was made to don a different and distinctive dress from that worn by the Manchu. We were not even allowed to wear our hats as it suited us. We were ordered to let it grow long. Hence the familiar Chinese "pigtail."

The Manchus are known everywhere throughout China by their short hair. Only a few years back a Chinaman who dared to presume to crop his head, would soon have no head to crop.

No Manchu man could marry a Chinese woman, or vice versa. Nor were the two races permitted to enter into business relations with one another. The wealthiest Chinese merchant, meeting in the street the poorest and most humble Manchu, was compelled to bow-tow to him, make way for him, stand aside.

The Manchu women, in order to differentiate themselves from our wives and daughters bound their feet so tightly that they were unable to walk, and had to be carried about by our men-folk. They degraded us, in fact, to the level of beasts of burden. In order the more effectually to show their contempt for us.

Kept in Idleness by the Chinese.

And for all these indignities that were put upon us, we got nothing in return. The Normans, when they conquered England, rendered service for the people they conquered, and your ruling classes—mainly their descendants—have continued to do so to this day. But no Manchu ever did anything for China.

They are an idle race, kept in idleness by the Chinese. Every town and village throughout China has its Manchu colony, the members of which are entitled to be fed and clothed at the public expense.

Even the humblest and poorest Manchu claims his daily dole of rice. Those who have power and influence build themselves palaces, surround themselves with every luxury. They are like innumerable leeches, sucking the life-blood from the country, giving nothing in return.

The Manchu is a loafer, and glories in the fact. He lets his finger-nails grow to an enormous length, in order to make it plain to everybody that he never has worked and never intends to.

The poor simple Chinaman works, and works, too, far harder than any Britisher would ever dream of doing. There are no Bank Holidays in China, no Sundays. It is work, work, work, all the year round, from daylight till dark, every day and all day, from the cradle to the grave. And on this senseless toil the Manchu fattens.

But retribution is overtaking him: his overtaxed mind. No race can cultivate idleness as a fine art, and continue to exist. The Manchus who conquered us three centuries ago were savages, it is true, but they were fine savages, stalwart, big men, and brave. The Manchu to-day has no bravery left, and his only bigness is in his stomach.—P. W.

Dramatic Ending

To a Murder Trial at London Last Night.

London, Nov. 17.—A trial for murder at the staff order assisted ended under dramatic circumstances last night. Just as the jury was about to pronounce their verdict of guilty, the electric lights went out and the whole building was plunged into darkness.

After a long and painful silence candles were procured by court attendants. Two lights were placed on the Judge's dais, and one was held in front of the prisoner, who stood erect in the dock waiting to hear his fate. The candles were put on the jury box and the barristers' table, and in this dim light the jury formally delivered its verdict. The prisoner, who was accused of murdering his sweetheart, was then sentenced to death.

Neuralgia and Sciatica

Caused great suffering for 25 years. Nothing effective until Dr. Chase's Medicines were used.

"It affords me pleasure to speak favorably of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills," writes Mr. W. T. Collins, Morpeth, Ont. "I had been a sufferer for 25 years from sciatica, lumbago and neuralgia and tried nearly all the remedies advertised without one particle of benefit until I began the use of Dr. Chase's medicines. Before I had finished two boxes of the Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills I noticed considerable benefit in my condition. I have so much confidence in these medicines that I have recommended them to dozens of my friends."

In severe cases of this nature the combined use of these medicines brings results which are both surprising and satisfactory. The Kidney-Liver Pills regulate the action of kidneys, liver and bowels, while the Nerve Food enriches the blood and builds up the nervous system. MORPETH, DATES & Co., Toronto.
