

Peculiar

To itself in many important particulars, Hood's Sarsaparilla is different from and superior to any other medicine.

Peculiar in combination, proportion and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom.

Peculiar in its medicinal merit, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

Peculiar in strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses one dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Peculiar in its "good name at home"—there is more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other home purifiers.

Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time. Do not be induced to take any other preparation. Be sure to get

FOOTBALL.

Upward of 200 football matches were played in England during the week. Only one match in the series of the counties championship was played in England last week, that being between Lancashire and the Midland, Lancashire winning by two tries to none. A sensation was caused in the play for the English association cup last week, when the famous Preston North End team was beaten by the North Forest, and went to the North Forest and England beat Wales and Ireland respectively. Scotland won with one goal and one try to one try, while England disposed of Ireland with one goal and one try to nothing.

Gave His Babe Strychnine by Mistake.

WATKINS, Ont., Feb. 2.—The 2-year-old child of John Lemcke complained of being unwell and feverish. The mother, thinking that its teeth was the cause, requested her husband to go to the cupboard and mix up one of the teething powders she had bought.

Not seeing the powder was the expected result, it looked around and discovered a powder in a dish which he supposed was what he desired, mixed it up and gave it.

Ten minutes later the child was dead. The drug was strychnine, which had been purchased a few days previous to kill mice.

WARD FOUR WIRE-PULLERS.

Meeting in the Interests of Mr. Carling.

Addresses by I. F. Hellmuth, E. Meredith, A. B. Cox and Others—A Rather Tame Assembly.

A large number of boys, as many young men without votes and some electors of the fourth ward, made up the audience that half filled the old Fall Mall Street Church last evening, when the Conservatives held a meeting in the interests of their candidate, Mr. Carling. The boys did the applauding, and a long line of W. D. Buckle occupied the chair, and on the platform were a few local politicians.

A. B. Cox was the first speaker. There was something wrong with the Reform party judging by the results of the late bye-elections. A splendid excuse had been dished up every morning by the Advertiser and other Liberal papers. There was really something wrong with the Reform platform. The leader of the Reform party was a mere stripling in years. The policy produced by Sir Richard Cartwright had a strong smell similar to that of Goldwin Smith—one the people would not subscribe to. There were several objections to it.

Hon. Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Richard Cartwright held a conference and decided that it was not going to work. This policy nearly swept the country and nearly placed the Liberal party in power. The reason it did not was because there were some cool-headed Grits, who saw that the wall between the United States and Canada were thrown down the ultimate result would be that the trade policy of the United States would be destroyed. The Hon. Wilfrid Laurier was a coward and disloyal. There was one man in this city, George C. Gibbons, who was practically the leader of the Liberal party. He had been foolish enough to write a book on the trade question. If we adopted commercial union with the United States it would mean that we would adopt the same rate of tariff against the other countries of the world as the United States had adopted. Unrestricted reciprocity without discrimination against the mother country could never be obtained.

John Drumgoole could not speak of Canada, but sang a song relating to our country. E. Meredith, Q.C., said he thought that the large number of electors present augured the coming election of Mr. Carling. As a result of the general election on March 5 last the Conservatives had a majority in the House of Commons of 27; now they had 40, and on March 5 next they would have 50. Was it not absurd to send Mr. Hyman to Parliament? He would be in the cold shades of the Opposition. He did not agree with those who state that the election of Mr. Hyman should be protected by the "grossest corruption imaginable." Mr. Meredith then regaled the audience with tales of pigs' feet and beer at Colborne street school house, beer at the colored band room and beer among the Italians. He urged the electors to go to the polls and exercise their own judgment and vote accordingly, and to accept no money or beer. He believed that the "black bottle brigade" was in ward 4 already, and that the Reform workers labored "all night long on the Sabbath day." The Advertiser would not believe when it said that Mr. Carling should be elected. To elect Mr. Carling the electors would be doing their duty to the country.

John Christie was suffering from a severe cold, but was pleased to see so many Ward 4 electors present. He knew what it meant. He wanted to see every man turn out on election day and do his duty.

H. Macklin did not expect to be called upon to speak. The more the arguments of Mr. Hyman's supporters were sifted the more their weakness was brought to light. Mr. Hyman, during his term in the House, had shown himself a capable man. The man in which the Government was treating the bootleers was in bright distinction to the way in which the Reformers treated them when they were in power. The people of London should rally around Mr. Carling when the present Government was treating the bootleers the way they were. The pamphlets circulated by the Reform party last year had been dropped like hot potatoes. Mr. Gibbons was a clever and intelligent man, but had a deplorable idea of the state of Canada at present. This country was making wonderful progress. The speaker compared the increase in population during the last 50 years of Canada and the United States. Unfortunately, he said, the Reformers had been dragged through the political mire by their so-called loyal leaders. The electors would be mad to vote against Mr. Carling.

"I struggle here sang 'There's a Dear Sp' in Ireland."

A. J. McCray said there were men in the Reform ranks who were trying desperate means to elect their representative. The National Policy of to-day was not so much to be admired as it was fifteen years ago. No wonder young men were leaving Canada and going to the United States. There was a premium for them there. Canada would yet be as great and prosperous a country as the United States.

I. F. Hellmuth spoke with reference to the Franchise Act. He was prepared, as soon as Judge Elliot gave his decision regarding the revision of the voters' lists, to meet any man the Liberals should see fit to appoint. The Franchise Act was not at all a bad one. A man in England who would dare to insult a revising barrister would be ducked in the nearest horsepond and told to cool off. Why did not the Advertiser discuss honestly the war and secret ballot under the Ontario Legislature. They should discuss the bogus member for Toronto by unlawful means. The Conservatives wanted a free and open election. To talk purely and to act purely were two very different things. If Conservative party compared them with our neighbors across the line, Mr. Hellmuth believed that the Conservatives were a true and better educated class of people than the Reformers.

Sam Woods sang a song that he called patriotic.

Mr. Jillett, of St. Thomas, came to the meeting by accident and did not intend to speak. Mr. Jillett had indicted on the people of East Elgin an hour of political rubbish. In strong terms the speaker eulogized Mr. Carling. Mr. Jillett is a workman who worked hard for Mr. Ingram in East Elgin and his address was of the kind that suited Conservative workmen.

The meeting closed with cheers for the Queen, Mr. Carling, Mr. Hyman and the speakers.

The Ottawa Free Press says the story circulated by Conservatives to the effect that the timber limits operated by Messrs. Jas. MacLaren & Co. in Ottawa county is held in the name of Mr. J. B. Some of the MacLaren shanties have been closed as reported.

The Department of Agriculture has decided to vigorously renew its efforts in the Dakotas to induce immigrants to cross into the Dominion. Operations, however, will not be confined to the Dakotas, for it has been decided to carry on an active campaign in the border States of Michigan and Minnesota as well. For some time past the Grand Trunk Railway authorities have been keeping their eyes open, and that one eye has been specially directed on the conduct of their servants employed on train runnings between this city and Halifax. Things were evidently not all what they should have been, if it is fair to judge of the cause by the effect. Anyway the company have dispensed with the services of no less than eleven railway conductors on this route, and the request of the discharged ones for an explanation was met with a reply from the manager that "the company had no further use for their services." The Charges Against the County Crown Attorney Too Indefinite—The Dohrn Case.

(Special to the ADVERTISER.)

TORONTO, Feb. 22.—In the Legislative Assembly to-day Mr. Tooley asked whether it is the intention of the Government to take any action with regard to the resolution passed at the last sitting of the Middlesex County Council with regard to the removal of Mr. Charles Hutchinson from the position of county attorney of the county.

Mr. Mowat replied that the usual action had been taken. They had called upon the county attorney for an answer to the resolution. The resolution, however, was in general terms, and the Government could not take action unless the charges were made specific.

Mr. Tooley also asked whether it is the intention of the Government to take any action in the case recently tried in London in which Mr. York and others were convicted of debauching a certain number of cattle, and if so, what action is proposed to be taken.

Mr. Mowat said that a commission would be appointed immediately to inquire into the whole question, and in the meantime the fines imposed would not be enforced.

Among the petitions presented were three by Mr. Tooley from the county of Middlesex, praying, (1) that all county officials appointed by the Government be paid by salary, and that all fees derived therefrom be paid to the county treasurer to be applied to the general fund of the county; (2) for an amendment to the Municipal Act, and (3) for an amendment to the administration of justice act.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Crucity to Readers. To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

I ask to be permitted to commit one last act of cruelty to the readers of the ADVERTISER, which can hardly be denied without the well-deserved imputation attaching to the act of striking a fellow at such disadvantage as to give him no chance of defending himself—generally considered a mean thing to do. I address myself to the writer of the article headed as above which appeared in last evening's paper, and which struck me like a slap in the face, administered without notice or warning of any kind and taking me quite unprepared. However, I see now that the writer did this probably hastily and unadvisedly, while feeling resentful at what he perhaps considered my unjust aspersion on ministers he reveres. This view of the case inclines me not to take such deep offense as I otherwise might, and to let the matter pass, as perhaps soothing to his wounded feelings, and not hurting me very much.

Let, however, I should have been too outspoken in my anxiety to combat what seemed hurtful to the cause I have so much at heart, I would like to say, that as regards anything said or written to or of these ministers, I have had no other motive than the above. How could it be otherwise, indeed? I have known Mr. Murray long, and I need hardly say, favorably; while as to Mr. Clark, although I only made his acquaintance recently at one of our jail services, I was most favorably impressed by him on that occasion. Indeed it was feeling thus toward all these ministers that I was moved to write the article in question, and being openly made at the meeting of the Ministerial Association, and reported in all the papers, I had undoubtedly the right to comment upon freely.

I have little more to say except to notice the remarkable similarity in the want of similarity in your comparison of the readers of your paper to the poor, cruelly-treated cows, and in Mr. Murray's, of the cruel cutting off of a cow's horn and asking a lady to remove her tail bonnet in a theater. The readers of your paper are not obliged to read my letters any more than your editorials, so in either case they can avoid the cruelty—so also can the ladies refuse, as they often do, to remove their bonnets; but the poor cows, fastened to stanchion and windless, must perform under the cruel saw applied skilfully or otherwise as the chance may be. How the thoughts of men long associated together are apt to run in similar grooves! Notwithstanding this disagreement I hope we shall be friends again some day. Meanwhile, farewell.
