Virgie quietly declined this offer, however, and thanking her for her speedy compliance with his request, Mr. Eldrige took his leave, though, to his credit be it said, with considerable shamefacedness and embarrassment.

The next morning Virgie sent to Dr. Knox for his bill, paid it, dismissed her nurse, notwithstanding her urgent plea to be retained even at reduced wages, and then she quietly disappeared from the place, leaving no trace behind her to point to her destination or future iplans, and, after the gossip consequent upon such a choice bit of scandal had died away, she was, for the time at lerst, forgotten.

"No, sir; that is impossible; my husband left me here with the understanding that I should remain here until he same for me, and there must therefore be some very urgent reason for such a strange proceeding on your part."

"Yes, madam," said the man, driven to "Yes, madam," said the man, driven to the wall. "I—have been informed that that you are not Mrs. Heath at all; that the gentleman who brought you here was not what he represented himself to be."

"What authority have you or making such a statement?" Virgie demanded, haughtily.

"This," answered the hotel keeper, producing the paper, containing the notice of the marriage at Heathdale, which Mrs. Fanum sivily laid upon his desk, with the marked paragraph uppermost. She was very careful, however, not to appear in the matter herself.

She had determined to get Virgie away before Sadie's return from Coney Island, which she feared; too, the coming of Sir William to investigate the cause of his wife's long silence.

One glance was sufficient to tell Virgie what paper it was, and she flushed to her brow, "I see," she said, scornfully, "those who

He had spent the latter portion of Sunday evening at the St. James' Club with a number of friends, and about lo'clock this morning left the club, going home to his rooms on Dorchesteret, only a few yards from the club house. Some time after the other occupants of the house were awakened by smoke issuing from Mr. Allan's sitting from When the door was opened the flames were speedily extinguished, and the young mar was found sitting in his easy chair dead.

Investigation showed that he had probably fallenasleepand dropped his glowing cigar into the waste paper basket, and that death by suffocation from the smoke had ensued. Mr. Allan had been in poor health for some time, suffering from sore throat. Great Interest Excited in New England Over the Cape Breton Coal Deal. Over the Cape Breton Coal Deal.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 16.—The Herald says: Great interest has been excited in Boston and throughout New England by the announcement that Henry M. Whitney and a syndicate of Boston capitalists have obtained control of the coal mines of Cape Breton. From information gleaned in Boston it is probable that the deal consummated is of even more gigantic dimensions than this and embraces not only the coal mines but a large area of undeveloped amineral properties and the rail-ways connecting the raines with navigation. Many millions of Boston capital will, it is said, be invested in this enterprise, which is understood to include a great extension in the output of coal in that island, the construction of a railway from Sydney, where it will connect with the Intercolonial system to Louisburg, a port on the scaboard open all the year round; the opening up of iron, copper and gypsum mines and the establishment of smelting furnaces and other industries.

All the coal mines have been consolidated under one lease, and the period of the lease, it is said, is fixed for 60 years.

Kidder, Peabody & Co., of this city, have undertaken toffoat the bonds of the company, $4,000,000 of which will be issued as soon as the terms are ratified by the Nova Scotib Legislature. The name of the company will probably be the "Old Provincial Mining and Transportation Company."

Untold elisery—What a Well-Known Commercial Traveler Suffered, and How He Was Cured.—Gentiemen,—About five years ago I began to be troubled with dyspepsia, and for three years suffered untold misery, from this terrible complaint. I was at that time traveling for Mesers. Walter Woods & Co. Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but all to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, one day I was induced to try a bottle of Northrep & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon began to improve. I continued using this medicine, and when the third bottle was fluished. I found I was entirely cured; and as a year has elapsed since then, I feel confident that the cure is complete and permanent. To all afflicted with this distressing complaint I heartily recommend Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, believing that the persistent use of it will cure any case of dyspepsia. (Signed.) T. S.
