The Obnorious School Regulations

Chief Superintendent Crocket got rather a warm reception at the recent meeting of the Albert County Institute. not as Mr. Crocket we presume, for he is generally popular with the teachers of the Province, but as the representative and administrator of the obnexious School Regulations of the Blair Government. The teachers of Albert evidently, are an independent lot of men and women, and speak their mind freely, The teachers of the Province generally have taken a determined stand against the recent changes in the School Law. but those of Albert are to be congratulated upon having assumed a bolder position than those of any other county. quite apparent, did not deter them from giving full expression to their opposition to the School innovations.

The Maple Leaf furnishes quite a full report of the Institute proceedings, and its perusal will satisfy our readers that all the FARMER has published in criticism or condemnation of Blair's tinkering with the School law is fully corroborated by the teachers of Albert.

He had always in the words used by Mr. Jones, "Hew! wood and drawers of water have been, and hewers of wood and drawers of water ye shall remain."

Mr. Jones had just finished reading his gaper, when Chief Superintendent Crocket took the floor and criticized the paper very severely. The report says "He appealed to the teachers present for sympathy; claiming that Mr. Jones had in his paper used language discourteous to the board of education, himself, their inspector and the teachers present He claimed that the recent changes were a financial necessity; that the amount expended for educational work would be the same : that it was only fair to those teachers in schools which were ineligible for classification, and by reading from statistics that the teachers of New Brunswick should not complain as they were better paid by the government than those of either Nova Scotia or On tario. Mr. Crocket asked the teachers to express their opinions freely. He haped for the sake of the teachers of Albert County that Mr. Jones' paper
