MONDAY MORNING, NOV. 2, 1885.

The North-Western University. The board of Adam Crooks as minister of education is more deserving of censure than that of chartering with degrees.

No one questions the propriety of the establishment of Queen's and Victoria universities. At the time their charters were granted there existed in the province no such educational institutions as we now have.

The Western university, this ill-starred offspring of the late bishop of Huron, this child born under an unlucky constellation whose horoscope portended a world unprepared and unwilling to receive it.

The energy of its nurses and other obstetrical attendants seems, however, not entirely exhausted. And we now have a proposal to cast off the remnants of the dead and habitate its ghostly remains in the garments of life.

Without for a moment disparaging the talents of the members of the legal profession in this city, we think the effort will prove abortive, because it violates what we consider a canon in teaching, viz., "What teacher to be truly successful must place his labors before everything. Not only must his heart be in his work, but his entire soul and even desperate. They are cited, defendant and even desperate. They are cited, defendant and even desperate.

One Montreal despatch discloses the attitude of the Canadian parties. There is evidently a storm on the St. Lawrence which may change to a cyclone. The French are restless, excited, defiant and even desperate.

But Riel will probably be saved. He must be saved. The Canadian press is on fire. The Canadian people are abashed, and they beg to see the monster Riel.

The French Canadian of Montreal is peculiar. Evidently he reveals in small proportion the health officer; he tears down the placards; he, and especially she, needs to be told that another is in the next house to advise the first opportunity of going in and catching it.

of death goes on at the rate of 800 a week! There are 2500 cases in the city alone; the suburbs have as many more. Nearly 3000 have died. It is a fearful sight to see the hospitals overflowing with the sick, and for 1500 more patients is called for.

The young man who takes to whisky discounts his future to a much greater extent than did his father who took to strong liquor thirty years ago. There is never a room for whisky-heads in positions of trust or where nerve and care are required.

In blinding their men not to connect themselves with any labor organization so long as they remain in their service, the street railway company is violating its legal right, but the pledge is humiliating to the men and repugnant to the spirit of our free institutions. The right of workingmen to combine is one recognized by employers generally, and also by the law of the land.

The New York Herald and the New York Sun, the two bitterest anti-English papers of this city, are altogether too fresh in their manner and matter, of telling the Canadians how to deal with Riel.

The betting men of New York are laying odds on the republican candidate for governor. Betting men are supposed to be especially sharp observers of political signs and tokens, but they sometimes make bad mistakes, as a very many of them did in the election of Cleveland.

Her unhealthfulness prevents New Orleans from occupying the proud position she ought to occupy among the foremost cities of the union. It looks as though smallpox may do for Montreal what fever has done for New Orleans. The latter's situation is most insalubrious, but Montreal ought to be one of the most healthful cities in the world.

It seems that seven out of every ten plays put upon the stage nowadays have themselves the stage for subject. Another weakness is that the characters must have names that are unpronounceable.

Dr. Nichol of Montreal pronounces the stories of French Canadian uncleanliness "pitiful slanders." He states that the French Canadians are "the most cleanly of people," and much given to washing and scrubbing. The whole trouble with them is their aversion to vaccination.

Every fifty years the ancient Jews held a jubilee, when every man was forgiven his debts. It would be a good thing for many people if this Jewish custom were christianized. It was almost as good as our own old bankrupt act.

A St. Louis paper says that low railway fares do more to shorten the distance between cities than anything else. They also shorten the controversy between the board of trade and the commercial travelers.

And now Sir Adolphe Caron has gone to Niagara to see Senator Plumb! And yet we hardly think the Bard will be the new minister of finance. A New Brunswick man will stand a better chance.

The Glebe made a column presentation over the mobbing of Lord Lorne by torse, but it had nothing to say of the mobbing of Lord Lorne by torse, but it had nothing to say of the mobbing of Lord Lorne by torse.

of Louisiana, there has been no difference in the exhibition and enthusiasm shown by both. The two races have worked together, fought together, and have exchanged customs and habits, and even exchanged they have come together and married in thousands of cases.

The assimilation has been rapid, and the people of South Louisiana already show the good advantages of both the Gallic and American races. That the French tongue still survives is not to be wondered at; but the proportion of Creoles who do not speak both languages has become small indeed.
