The Financial Sit which common expectation has fixed as the beginning of a recovery in the stock market. For some time past the opinion has been more or less general that prices have not recovered from the deciline incident to the panic to an extent corresponding to the intrinsic merits of many stocks. This feeling has given stay to prices and has kept alive a "buil" element of some force out of the see offset by the stocks. has kept alive a "bull" element of some force, but it has been offset by the caution growing out of the recent crisis, and something has been constantly occurring to postpone operations for a full recovery in values. The railroad situation is improved, if not by any general recovery yet at least by more moderate counsels among managers, by the absence of reckless "cutting," by moderate gains upon the large gross earnings of last year and by a more considerate attitude managers, by the absence of reckless "cutting," by moderate gains upon the large gross earnings of last year and by a more considerate attitude of state legislatures and state commissioners in the granger sections. Any general advance in rates is not to be expected under the present light forwarding of wheat and corn to the east, but it is a good symptom that, notwithstanding this deficiency of grain freight, rates are so steadily maintained. The movement of machandise, however, is of healthy dimensions, so that although the grain receipts at the seaboard for January and February were 10,00,000 bushels less than for the same months of 1880, yet the general traffic of the roads has exceeded that of a year ago by about 5 per cent. The condition of the winter wheat crop is for the most part unusually encouraging and the prospects are so far good for getting, in the spring crops under good conditions.
