

John Burnet of Barns

"As regards the Scot I have already spoken of, I may mention for your satisfaction that in person he was tall and thin, with black hair, and the most bronzed skin I have ever seen on a man. . . ."

When I read this letter to Marjory, her eyes were filled with tears, and for myself I would speak to no one on that day.