of our products in the departmental theatre — including the 10 minute inspirational film, "Dream on the Horizon".

The second film in the co-sponsored series takes an in-depth look at each of the major sports involved in the Winter Games. Spectacular footage of bobsledders, lugers and aerial ballet skiers gives a good sense of the thrill the Games bring to participants and spectators alike. The film also relates interesting facts and figures on the sports, their history and the Calgary facilities. Headquarters staff will have their chance to see this film around the time of the Games □

Radio has not been forgotten in this process. By working with the shortwave service of Radio Canada International (RCI), we were able to distribute a series of three-minute programs on such topics as the sophisticated technology that has gone into making the Olympic facilities among the finest — if not the best — in the world. There is no international radio network to compare with television and language is more critical in radio. But RCI works in many languages and countries using those languages have audiotapes to pass on to local radio stations.

Finally, there is the Torch Run, which will continue until the opening ceremonies for the Games on February 13. On December 16, the day the torch was carried in front of our building, the lobby was decked out with Olympics banners and the staff were invited to witness the occasion. We invited departmental staff to a film showing of some
