

ARTICLE 10

TRANSITION

1. A period of transition shall be provided for the transfer of power from the outgoing Government to the incoming Government. The period shall be determined by the outgoing Government and shall not exceed 90 days from the date of the election.

2. The outgoing Government shall remain in office until the incoming Government has taken office.

3. The outgoing Government shall ensure the continuity of the public services and the stability of the country during the transition period.

4. The outgoing Government shall ensure the continuity of the public services and the stability of the country during the transition period.

5. The outgoing Government shall ensure the continuity of the public services and the stability of the country during the transition period.

6. The outgoing Government shall ensure the continuity of the public services and the stability of the country during the transition period.

7. The outgoing Government shall ensure the continuity of the public services and the stability of the country during the transition period.

8. The outgoing Government shall ensure the continuity of the public services and the stability of the country during the transition period.

9. The outgoing Government shall ensure the continuity of the public services and the stability of the country during the transition period.

FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF
THE REPUBLIC OF CANADA

FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF
THE REPUBLIC OF CANADA

[Signature]
MINISTER OF JUSTICE

[Signature]
MINISTER OF JUSTICE

1982

1982