

- iii, 27; bequests to his friends, iii, 30; not sanguine of success, iii, 78; policy of, iii, 82; on the heights, iii, 84; forms his line of battle, iii, 118; takes possession of a house on the Ste Foye Road, iii, 118; the disposition of his forces, iii, 119; his statement of the strength of the army of attack, iii, 124.
- Wolfe, conceals his forces, iii, 126; orders his troops to advance, iii, 147; Monckton and Murray in command of the right wing, iii, 121; wore a new uniform on the day of the battle, iii, 149; his appearance before the battle, iii, 151; reiterates his orders to men to restrain fire, iii, 152; often in imminent danger, iii, 160; mortally wounded, iii, 160; position of when wounded, iii, 202; prepares to lead his troops in pursuit of the foe, iii, 203; the place where he fell identified by means of the "King's Map," iii, 204; his wounds described in the fragment of a journal, iii, 205; his death, iv, 269, 293; v, 23; death of, iv, 293; various accounts of his last moments, iii, 206.
- Wolfe, his last words compared with Nelson's, iii, 217; makes provision for his servants, iii, 220; controversy on the sword of, iii, 226; remains of placed on board the Sterling castle, iii, 227; determination of, in face of difficulties, iii, 233; brief review of his life, iii, 232; remarkable letter of, iii, 298; ungenerous treatment of by historians, iii, 298; misunderstood by his Brigadiers, iii, 300; left nothing to chance, iii, 302; mourning for his fate, and rejoicing for his victory, iii, 329; arrival of his body in England, iii, 330; monument, iii, 331; proposal to erect a monument to, iv, 157; Montcalm on, iv, 4; last despatch received in England, with list of casualties to date, iv, 148.
- Wolfe, examines the town, iv, 267; "attacked with a fever," iv, 267; proclamation issued by, iv, 285; prepared to meet French, iv, 298; orders sketch to be made of enemy's works, iv, 313; at head of 400 men, iv, 250; letters to his parents, extracts, vi, 29; letter to Whitmore, vi, 37; letter to Barrington, vi, 46; letter to Amherst, vi, 52; letter to Monckton, vi, 68, 69; letters to lord Sackville, vi, 73; his letters to Rickson, vi, p. 1, 3, 6, 7, 13, 14, 18, 20, 21, 24, 25, 26; his last letters, vi, 60, 61.
- Wolfe's dying moments, chapter on, iii, 201.
- Wolfe's Cove, description of, iii, 73.
- Wolfe's field, part of the Price estate, iii, 85.
- Wolfe, Colonel Edward, i' 2.
- Woulfe, George' i, 2.
- Woulfe, James, i, 2.
- Wolfe, Mrs, iii, 28.
- Works of British at Orleans, iv, 260.
- YANKEES, two companies of, i, 115.
- York, Captain, in command of the British gun, iii, 132.
- York, Colonel, i, 23.
- Young Pretender, the, iii, 49.
- Young, Col., story relating to, iii, 66; receives a mortal wound, iii, 160; ordered to proceed to St. Anthony, ii, 230.