New Way to Banish
All Hair Growths

(Modes of Today.)

Many people will be interested in the new and simple treatment by which hair or fuzz can be permanently removed from the face, neck or arms. This consists in making a paste with plain powdered deodorant and water and applying to hairy surface. After two or three minutes it is rubbed off, the skin washed and every trace of hair has vanished. This is a painless, harmless method and seldom requires the second application to remove even a stubborn growth, and it is so simple to use that failure cannot result. Straggly eyebrows can be made to grow thick and beautifully lustrous by rubbing pyroxin on frequently, and to make short, straight eyelashes come in long and silky, apply pyroxin to lash-roots with thumb and forefinger. Use care and don't get any pyroxin where no hair is wanted.

MERELY HIT HIM
WITH TYPEWRITER

Manager's Wife Nagged So There Wasn't Much Fun in Office.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Woman is hourly broadening and making her influence felt in the business world. Her influence has changed the complexion of whole business establishments; it has also changed the complexion of H. Adams Tillman, office manager for a large factory in the West Side Court his usually cheerful smile was caught up at one end with a rosette of pink courtplaster, and he bore the imprint of a typewriter (marked) in the waste area, to the southward of his right temple.

H. Adams Tillman ran true to form on hereditary traits; he made it clear just how much he got his middle name from by blaming the whole trouble on woman. He sneered at Henry Emburg, the complainant, as an office manager, expected to sneer at a mere bookkeeper, and addressed his remarks to the magistrate. In a voice surcharged with suppressed-annoyance he told the old tale of the man who married the telephone girl, and aroused the enmity of the office force.

Back in the lower slumland period H. Adams Tillman was a happy man. He had one of those high desks in the office, and flanked by good and true friends on either side he would keep books from 9 until 5. Moreover, H. Adams Tillman was unmarried, and in that he stood alone in the office force. Corresponding to the eight other employees were eight women to call on the telephone at sundry times and wonder why and where. Especially was the wife of Henry Emburg, who was a bookkeeper, too, you understand, and Saturday afternoon, when I'm supposed to be off.

"And is that why you hit him with the typewriter?" asked the magistrate. "I hit him with the typewriter," said Emburg, "because the letter press went wild. One thing led to another, and I called a policeman. That's why we're here."

The case was dismissed.

"Oh, she was a wife, all right. She tried to make me promise every morning before I left for the office that I'd do something during the day to humiliate Emburg. Not only that, but she would call me two or three times to see if I'd done it. Once I made Emburg act as a sort of flunky for half day and Emburg didn't let Mrs. Emburg forget it for half a month."

"She came down to the office, too, and tried to order me around," broke in Emburg, "and then telephoned to my wife that she had heard my work was getting unsatisfactory."

"That doesn't explain the decorated countenance," said the magistrate. "Or, that," said Emburg. "Yes, Saturday afternoon Tillman told me I'd have to stay in the office and clean up things before I left. Me a bookkeeper, too, you understand, and Saturday afternoon, when I'm supposed to be off."

"And is that why you hit him with the typewriter?" asked the magistrate. "I hit him with the typewriter," said Emburg, "because the letter press went wild. One thing led to another, and I called a policeman. That's why we're here."

FEAR THOUGHTS

In view of the wonderful imitative nature of the child, we are able to make of him just what we will. That does not necessarily mean that a child's goodness will become a marvel of goodness, but simply a child who knows his place and who possesses the power of self-control.

A child's imagination is most vivid between the ages of two and six years. At this time also the imitative instinct is strongest. Surely then this is the best time to initiate good habits and lay the foundation for the future character.

Of course, as we have said at least six times in as many months, a baby's education begins with his life. But when he is old enough to observe, and imitate is the time when his strongest educational forces are at work.

It is unfortunate that at this very time some parents fill the child's mind with the most unhealthy fear-thoughts. "The policeman will come for you if you don't mind." "The big black man will get you if you are naughty."

These are familiar threats and nothing could be more shameful. Such efforts made to terrorize a child into obedience distort the mind, destroy affection and disorder the nervous system. Physiology and psychology will prove that the effects of such a nervous shock may not be wiped out in a lifetime.

Some parents extend these threats to include the Deity and warn the child that "God will punish naughty boys." This creates an entirely false impression of the Supreme Being and may shape the religious beliefs that will come to a child with age.

How can you convey to a child who dreads his Creator the beautiful teaching of His fatherhood and the consequent brotherhood of man?

A threat may do what you want it to do for the moment, but it will not increase your self-respect, and it will hurt your child.

ST. PETER'S SCHOOL
CARRIES OFF PALM

Twenty-two of Twenty-Three of Sister Isadora's Pupils Pass Entrance Exam.

The honor of having the highest percentage of pupils of any school in the city was successfully maintained by the high school entrance examinations given to St. Peter's Separate School, Bathurst street. And the credit for this goes to Sister Isadora, the principal of the school, one of the best known and most popular teachers on the staff of the Separate School Board. To her already high reputation she has now added the remarkable accomplishment of having twenty-two of twenty-three of her pupils enter the examination pass it successfully.

Mrs. M. E. Constantine of Buffalo and internationally prominent in literary circles, is spending a fortnight at Muskoka. She was recently entertained at Port Carling by the chief executive and prominent citizens, and reports are current that it is not unlikely that she will permanently locate there.

7891 Child's Dress, 2 to 6 years.

IN MIDDY STYLE WITH ROUND SQUARE OR HIGH NECK, SHORT OR LONG SLEEVES, OR IN RUSSIAN STYLE, WITH STRAIGHT PLAIATED SKIRT ATTACHED TO BODY LINING.

Both middy and Russian blouses are attractive and fashionable for the little folk and this model, that can be made in either way serves a double purpose. However the blouse is treated, the straight skirt is plaited and joined to an under-skirt so that it is quite separate. The middy blouse is made with a short laced opening and with the seams laced at the sides and is a very attractive mid-summer garment. The Russian blouse suggests cooler weather and can be utilized both for immediate needs and for the future. The use of two materials made in one view makes a good suggestion. The treatment is fashionable and it is so practical as to appeal to every mother of little girls. The belt may be worn or omitted and, when worn, it can be slipped through slashes or adjusted over the blouse.

For the 2 year size, to make of one material the dress will require 3 yards of material 27, 2 1/2 yards 36 or 2 yards 44 inches wide; to make as shown in the small view the blouse will require 1 1/2 yards 27, 1 1/2 yards 36 or 1 1/2 yards 44 inches wide and the skirt 2 yards 27, 1 1/2 yards 36 or 1 yard 44 inches wide.

PLAYED BASEBALL AND RAN RACES

Royal Garment's Employees Held Successful Picnic at Olcott Beach.

The annual picnic of the McElroy Manufacturing Co., Limited (Royal Garments), was held yesterday at Olcott Beach, N.Y., when some 250 employees and friends enjoyed a most delightful outing. At noon a full course dinner was served at the Olcott Beach Hotel, and in the evening supper was served on the steamer "Chicora." A splendid program of sports was run off and a most interesting and enthusiastic baseball game helped to make the day's proceedings strenuous, but withal enjoyable. The married men, after a keenly contested game, were defeated, owing, they claim, to the regrettable absence of "Bill Blake," the team's baseball expert.

It is earnestly hoped, however, that Bill will be on hand next year when the married men hope to win the game without much difficulty. The president, Mr. Stapells, presented the prizes to the successful contestants on the return journey. The committee in charge, Messrs. Shropshire, Robson, Muft and Godwin, and Messrs. Raycraft, Frost and Summers, assisted by the members of the firm, were indefatigable in their efforts to make the day a memorable one.

Mrs. Clifford B. Harmon, daughter of E. C. Benedict, has broken ground for what is to be the most elaborate home for cats in this country. Mrs. Harmon, who is a noted cat fancier, has among her 28 cats and 24 kittens many prize winners of American shows. The new cat home will cost $15,000, and will cover more than two acres of ground on her father's property at Indian Harbor. There are to be 8 rooms, with 19 cat runs, hot and cold water, electric lights, gas for cooking, 2 baths, a kittens' nursery, steam heat and other improvements.

ENGLISH DRAMAS
LACK THE "PUNCH"

American Producer Says Public Is Tiring of Teacup Comedy.

THAT YANKEE ACCENT

Prejudice in London Against American Actors, According to Wm. Brady.

Special Correspondence.

LONDON, July 16.—William A. Brady, a New York theatrical producer now on his way home on the Mauretania, told The World correspondent before he sailed that he had secured three plays, one by a well known author, and two by unknown dramatists. He was unwilling to disclose any name.

"English unknown dramatists," he told The World correspondent, "are writing better plays than ours but their plays lack the 'punch' which ours more often have. Every one is tired of teacup comedy. At present there is really nothing for the American manager to see in London. The successful plays are either revivals of old plays or new American pieces."

"I think I was the first to tell this Americanization of the London stage. I predicted it four years ago, tho it is difficult even now to get an English manager to consider American successes, as they are mostly actors themselves and base their judgment on whether the leading part suits them."

Frohman First.

"Frohman began the great American invasion of London, but I think he would have done better if he had not started producing English drama in London. Directly he did, a sort of conspiracy or silent war was begun against him by the leading London managers. And I know who is responsible, but I am not going to mention any name. Anyway, gradually they work him down until now he has very little in London, altho he still holds a strong position in America."

A certain prejudice still remains in London against American actors, too. I don't know whether their accent offends, but there is a type of elderly person who will stand fifteen or twenty minutes of an American performer in vaudeville who won't listen to an American accent through a whole evening. It is this sort of person disappeared because the constant interchange between the stages of both countries is growing until the

Want the Dollars.

"It is time, too, that English actors got rid of their curious ideas about American salaries. For instance, in engaging actors in England I find they often ask me to give them $100 a week, tho they are in the habit of getting but $20 in their own country, explaining a reason for this demand:

"Oh, the cost of living in America is so extraordinary high."

"London and New York taste is growing very similar. For instance, Russian opera takes on here and then we immediately have a boom in America. Recently we had a boom in rag time music and tango dances. You followed suit in London. We have lately had a run of crime plays, and now I find four running in London, and I think it quite likely you will have more presently. This similarity in taste is to our mutual advantage."

"I am speaking with twenty-five years' knowledge of stage conditions, for each year I have made a visit to London."

STOLE FROM EMPLOYER.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., July 16.—(Special.)—A boy from the Stratford Home who has been working in the country near here was charged before the police magistrate this morning with petty thefting from his employer. He is a young Englishman and has been in this country about 12 years, during which time he has got himself into the police court on various occasions for stealing. He will likely be sent back to the home.

William South and Wife Recovering — Horse Was Frightened by Auto.

KINGSTON, July 16.—(Special.)—William South of Croydon received serious injuries and his wife minor injuries when their horse took fright at an automobile and bolted, dumping them both out on the road. A despatch sent out from Napawan Tuesday night to Toronto stated that both had been killed by a reckless driver of automobile, but over the long distance phone today Dr. Burroughs stated that this was not the case. Both patients will recover.

The motor car is owned by Curtis Tarring of Tunworth. Mr. South's grand child, aged two, was driving with them and was thrown out, but escaped injury.
