

MORE MONEY IS REQUIRED FOR RIGHT KIND OF POLICE

Chief Grasset Says So in His Annual Report—Crime Statistics for 1905.

The annual report of the police department shows an increase of 2263 in apprehensions, making a total of 15,965 in 1905, but 7555 charges were withdrawn. Drunkenness and minor breaches of bylaws caused most of the trouble, an increase of $63,869, $54,714.46 was recovered.

A re-arrangement of the addition to the staff will be necessary, says Chief Grasset, who declares that while boys and young men still linger in gambling places of public resort for such are said to be non-existent and outwardly, at least, the morality of the city is satisfactory.

Liquor prosecutions are more numerous but for minor offences. The trade being "conducted in conformity with the law, as a rule, and illegal traffic is being kept to a minimum."

The treasury records show: Habitual truants, 1904, 1905, 282, 430. Casual transients, 197, 210. Absentees, 5096, 5024.

A new police signal system is needed, at a cost of over $20,000, and stations A, B and C need repairs.

An addition to the force of twenty-two men to the strength of 335 is desired and "to the best of the chief's belief more money should be forthcoming."

The appropriation for last year was over-estimated by $225,646. License receipts were $42,580.60, a gain of $250.56.

There is imperative need in Toronto at the present time for hundreds of new houses. The overcrowding of families has reached a limit here not equaled by any city of its size on the continent. With a steady stream of people flowing in from the United States, and from England, this condition is likely to become more and more emphatic, and those who build values that can never depreciate, but are sure to grow with the city. As a matter of mere speculation, Dundonald Street property is decidedly attractive, and for those who want to build within easy walking distance of down-town there is nothing in sight that begins to equal this for the money.

DUNDONALD STREET

Between Yonge and Church

now are more than sure of good returns for their money. To go out where land is cheap means just as much investment for building and the risk of a new locality. To buy a lot on Dundonald Street means absolutely safe conditions, because of the class of residence streets round about. The entire surroundings are solid and substantial, representing real estate

The whole proposition resolves itself into a question of faith in the city's future. If you believe with us that Toronto will soon have 500,000 population, such values as we're offering on Dundonald Street seem ridiculous in comparison with what the future holds in store.
