Cornell, representative, and Andrew Dodds, solicitor, after dining at Wallace's, paid a visit of inspection to the new Union Stock Yards, Toronto Junction, meeting W. W. Hodgson, the general agent. The delegation were most cordially received, and expressed their high appreciation of the vast amount of superior work that has already been accomplished in so short a time, with the magnificent plant erected, and perfected plans being pushed to completion as speedily as possible, thereby giving to the large and growing live stock trade in all its branches the finest accommodation on the continent.
