

OCTOBER.

The Sun enters the eighth sign of the Zodiac, Scorpio or the Scorpion, on the 23d of this month. This constellation contains 44 stars, and was so called from Orcon, a lover and constant companion of Diana, being killed by a scorpion, sent for that purpose by the Earth, who was sorely displeased at his presumption in boasting that he could outrun and subdue the wildest and fiercest beast.—He was afterwards carried to the Heavens and placed among the constellations.

Pea Straw.—In Scotland, the haum of peas is used as fodder for working horses instead of hay; and when well harvested, forms a very excellent provender, insomuch that it is considered to be of almost equal value to the grain itself.

The first few days of this month will be dry and clear, with slight frosts during the night, but temperately warm at midday. On the 11th this weather will break up with a violent gale of wind from the north west, accompanied with rain, which will last 24 hours; afterwards to the end of the month the weather will be broken and rainy. On the 31st a shower of snow will fall but will not lie.
