Pilot of Montreal-Boston Passenger Faces Imminent Death For Himself by Sticking to His Post.

But Coaches Remained on LOVE MUST HANG Track - Another Bridge Goes Down Just After Train Passes Over.

LYNDONVILLE. Vt., March 22.-Facing what appeared to be imminent death for himself, the engineer of train from Montreal for Boston today brought the crowded coaches to an abrupt stop on the edge of a tottering bridge. An instant later the structure, weak ened by a flood, gave way under the weight of the locomotive and the engine, with its crew, plunged into the teachers a treem ice-choked stream.

The 125 passengers who scrambled out of the cars to learn the cause of their sudden shaking up received a second shock when trainmen reported that another bridge over the Passup-sic River, a mile back, had been swept away a moment after their train had cleared it.

The engineer and fireman, by a lucky chance, dropped in open water and swam ashore not much the worse their experience.

German Monopoly of Smokes and Drinks

BERLIN, March 22.—The Berlin Government, in order to cover the continually increasing expenditure on the army, is contemplating the establishment of government monopolies in the sale of cigarets, matches and alcohol, according to The Lokal Anzeiger.

It was originally intended by the government to rely on other sources of revenue for this purpose, but opposition from several of the federated states was encountered.

Election Within Year, Perhaps Three Months

Constitutional Authority Give s Opinion That if Naval Bill is Put Thru by Closure Sen ate Will Thow it Out and Government Will Be Forced to Pass Redistribution Bill and go to People.

OTTAWA, March 22.—(Special.)—A constitutional authority who refuses to be quoted, but whose knowledge and experience cannot be doubted, and who had been in the fullest touch with the situation, including a perusal of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's last manifesto, sizes things up about as

Unless a compromise is reached there is no chance of the Canadian parliament passing the Borden proposal of $35,000,000 for three dreadnoughts to increase the effective naval forces of the empire.

The only way the bill can get thru the house of commons will be by closure, and closure means a long fight over the rules and their amendment. It will be a fight, as the Liberals will contend, for freedom of discussion. They will resist, so they say, to the point of physical encounter. If the bill is put thru the commons under such conditions the Liberal majority in the senate will throw it out on the ground that it was carried by closure, that it had not been a question in the late election, and that a redistribution of seats is due, and, therefore, they will only be following precedent by sending the government to the electorate for final and authoritative settlement.

But this would not necessarily dissolve the house. 'The government could say that they intended to reintroduce the bill the following session, and if they had closure they would force their other measures up to the senate. But in the end it will be a general election within a year, perhaps

But no naval vote will be passed by parliament until after the people have spoken.

Closure Will Give Opposition Clear-cut Issue for Appeal

Contrary "Authoritative Statements" Scarcely Disturbs the Truce at Parliament Hill-No Criticism of Speaker Sproule Involved by Promised Discussion of House Rules.

By Tom King.

OTTAWA, March 22 .- The "authoritative statement" seems to have taken the place of the old-fashioned manifesto and the prime minister in this way crossed swords this week with the leader of the opposition. It was not a serious encounter, scarcely disturbing the truce which has been in force since midnight of Saturday last. Mr. Borden intimated that the government would carry the naval bill even the a resort to closure should become necessary. Sir Wilfrid Laurier undeterred by this threat says the Liberals will continue the fight. Many believe that closure will give the opposition a more clean-cut issue and one that will more directly appeal to the mass of the people. On the other hand history affords no record of closure being repealed after it has once been adopted. The mild Gladstone closure of 1882 was denounced by the Tories but subsequently the Balfour Government made it more drastic. Today the Unioonist party inveighs against the Asquith guillotine altho they can still obstruct by their control of the upper chamber. In the United States since the Democratic victory of 1910, the speaker has been shorn So fast did the flames spread that it was impossible to save anything.

The building was owned by Mrs.

Joseph Wilson, and her insurance is a contested presidential election of 1876.

A Contrast With Washington A Contrast With Washington.

Should closure be adopted in the Canadian House of Commons the United States Senate will be one of the few national legislative bodies of the world without rules to restrict discussion and to end debate. The senate has persistently refused to adopt the closure and it must be confessed that it steadily grew in power while the house steadily lost prestige after the Reed rules were put into force. In this connection it may be averred that the change of the rules at Washington seemed to be the more drastic because the speaker of the house of representatives was and is frankly the leader of the house and makes no pretense of occupying a quasi-judicial position. The Canadian speaker aims at being more like the British model, but he does so under difficulties inherent to the method of his selection and Speaker Sproule is Fair.

Mr. Speaker Sproule is an old and experienced parliamentarian. He has sat in the house for many years both as a government supporter and as a member of the opposition. He was as a private member insistent upon his rights and would be loth as speaker of the house to have any member on either side treated unfairly. The Liberal members, especially those long in the house, would probably prefer him to many other government supporters. Indeed in the general discussion upon the rules of the house which they are anxious to have take place at an early day, they will insist that no criticism of Speaker Sproule is involved. They do insist, however, that Mr. Q-Speaker exceeded his powers last Saturday night. That he has the right to take the chair at any time ed a high note in the naval debate when he for the purpose of quelling disorder suggested a workable compromise between is not disputed; it is also admitted the opposing parties. How much better it that he may, upon his own motion, would be if the Dominion Parliament could adjourn the sitting whenever there unite solidly on the question of imperial and arises a scene of grave disorder. It home defence. The moral effect of such a is contended, however, that Speaker move would be heightened many fold and a Sproule exceeded his powers when he directed the chairman of the commit-tee of the whole to terminate the debate and to put the question to the committee. The point may be a technical one, but it will be insisted upon and the authorities seem to support the opposition. Still, it must be remembered that the house is the judge and effecting an amicable solution. f its own procedure, and that its decisions cannot be questioned by any
