hall. He did not remember the exact wording of the two letters but he knew what they meant. Dr. Baxter pressed the witness hard but he persisted in his original statement.

Miss Anderson reported that she had not been able to find in her notes anything further relating to the Nevins case.

Mr. Jones submitted minutes of the City Council about the Harris case, which City Clerk Chestnut had been asked in the morning to have transcribed. Mr. Jones read them to the jury. They showed that on Dec. 6, 1920, a letter claiming $200 damages was received from Mrs. Harris, and it was referred to the city solicitor. A later minute showed that on Jan. 4, 1921, it was moved on action be taken. In February it was noted that the claim was again up and submitted to the city solicitor. Later he advised that no action be taken. The matter came up again several times, until June, 1921, when the solicitor advised that the case be settled.

SAW no ground for granting the appeal and was constrained to refuse. Gregory Bridges Testifies.

Gregory Bridges was then called and examined by Dr. Baxter. He said he was in Mr. Hanson's office in November. He was in the law library in November and heard a conversation between Mr. Hanson and Dr. Allen. Witness described where he was and where the others were in the library. It was easy to hear conversation there. They were talking about an alteration in a document. Witness did not know what document, but he heard Mr. Hanson say, excitedly:

"I did not do anything of the sort. I never did anything of the sort."

Then Dr. Allen said:

"Well, all I can say is I made the alteration as a result of a telephone message from someone in your office. I could not say it was from you personally."

To Mr. Jones witness said this was the substance of what Dr. Allen said. He would not say they were the exact words, but that was the substance. He remembered the impression made upon his mind. To Mr. Jones he repeated the conversation and a little later did so again, being pressed by counsel as to his memory of the incident. Witness said he told Mr. Hanson about hearing this conversation. That was after The Gleaner article appeared. It was before this he had been in Mr. Hanson's office. He had a hazy recollection that there was once a conversation between Mr. Hanson and Mr. Dougherty in the office about some fiction between Mr. Hanson and Dr. Allen. That was either before or after the library incident. He had seen a letter from Mr. Justice White but had no recollection of conversation about the Nevins case. Witness explained how he came to be in the library and how his attention was attracted by Mr. Hanson's excited voice, and he could not help hearing what was said. Mr. Hanson asked him to write down the substance of what he had heard and he did so, and gave it to Mr. Hanson. There were no other persons in the library at the time he heard the assertion of Mr. Hanson and Dr. Allen's reply. He was then in Mr. Hanson's office. Witness said he knew Dr. Allen was a man of standing in the community. He could not say how long the two had been talking in the library. He could not swear the conversation related to the Nevins matter. It might have related to some other document. Witness did not see The Gleaner article of Dec. 17. He did not hear the matter talked over by lawyers or other persons.

This concluded the examination of Mr. Bridges and court adjourned until Tuesday afternoon at half-past two.

HON. WM. PUGSLEY 74 YEARS OLD TODAY

Sends Optimistic Message on Future of the Maritime Provinces.

In reply to a request sent by The Telegraph-Journal to Hon. Dr. William Pugsley, Dominion commissioners for hearing reparations claims, for a message on the occasion of his birthday, the following has been received from Charlottetown, P. E. I., Sept. 26:

Accept my thanks for your kind telegram and request for a message for seventy-fourth birthday. First of all I desire to take this opportunity of extending to The Telegraph-Journal my most sincere thanks for its kind and pressing interest in my personal and family during my long and critical illness which began about a year ago and from which I have only recently recovered. While to me death, if one has done his best to lead a decent and honorable life, seems but the passing on to a better and happier state, yet it is a glorious thing to be well and strong again, and to be able to take my part in a measure whether it be large or small, in promoting the welfare of the community in which I have spent so many happy years, and that of my native province which is the peer of any of the provinces of Canada.

In the discharge of my present duties I have had occasion to see more of the Maritime Provinces than ever before, and I am convinced that no where in the world is there better opportunity for living comfortable and happy lives.

The people of these provinces have, it is true, grievances which are great and burdensome. But they can, must, and I am firmly convinced, will, be remedied. They had their origin for the most part in the free hand which in 1915 was given to the Canadian National Railway board to violate previous parliamentary compacts, and to ignore that grand Canadian ideal previously prevailing of carrying Canadian traffic over Canadian railroads and through Canadian ports. This pernicious course seems, I am sorry to say, to have been continued by the present board. Public faith has not been kept with the Maritime Provinces, and the keeping of public faith is essential to the creation of a truly national spirit and unity. The speeches of influential public men there is strong evidence of the development of a broader national spirit, and of a deeper and more just appreciation of the grievances of the Maritime Provinces as well as of a determination to have them removed. I have every confidence that this happy result will soon be achieved.

(Sgd.) WILLIAM PUGSLEY.

New York, Sept. 27.—Unless negotiations now under way are successfully completed by Monday there will be a strike of chorus girls, chorus men, ushers, dressers and doormen in five Jewish theatres in this city, according to a statement by R. Gushkin, manager of the Hebrew Actors' Union.

The union has made a demand for a wage increase of between 10 and 20 per cent. for the 209 employees affected, the increase to go into effect at the beginning of the new theatrical season on Monday. Mr. Gushkin said also that the managers of eight Jewish theatres had agreed to the terms of the new contract.

The managers have refused the union demand on the ground that the employees involved perform unskilled labor and that they are paid well enough for the work they do. They have shown some inclination to pay a

THREE DAY RUN

Imperial—Monday

Another Superb Historical Drama. ENGLAND IN THE TIME OF GEORGE IV. Elaborate and Sumptuous.

John Barrymore as the Dandiest of all Dandies

Beau Brummel

Based upon the play by Clyde Fitch with MARY ASTOR, CARMEL MYERS, IDENE RICH, WILLARD TUCKER & Directed by HARRY BEAUMONT

Beau Brummel's faith in love and women shattered. The turning point which changed a lovable youth into a sneering cynic who rode to success on a clotheshorse, whose only fortune was his fascination and whose fame lay in his follies.

A Popular Dandy Who Dare Snub the Prince of Wales And Play Havoc With the Hearts of Noble Ladies—A WONDERFUL CAST—

BEAU BRUMMEL, the most vivid character that ever shot through the social sky of England; the superbly insolent dandy whose wit attracted and incensed royalty; who was his own master of the fair, and who besieged by the fiercest of the fair, and who hid his broken heart behind the fripperies of clothes—JOHN BARRYMORE.

LADY MARGERY ALVANLEY, the one real love of the Beau's life. Loved her to the last—MARY ASTOR.

GEORGE, PRINCE OF WALES, the fop who absolutely dominates the social life of his day. His affections, his coarse glances, his comic mannerisms, are in dramatic contrast with the pomp of his surroundings. WILLARD TUCKER.

FREDERICA CHARLOTTE, DUCHESS OF YORK, a great and gracious lady, who sits in state—and knits! She is a housewife doomed to play the part of princess.—IDENE RICH.

MORTIMER, VALET TO BRUMMEL, the abysmal snob, with a very human quality of devotion which manifests itself in Brummel's adversity—ALEX. FRANCIS.

LADY HESTER STANHOPE, the type of woman who lives for love. She can love intensely, but her love can turn to venomous hate when repulsed, as Brummel learns.—CARMEL MYERS.
