INSANE WITH POWER.

(Toronto Star.)

Premier Mussolini of Italy considers himself a man of destiny—a Napoleon, a Cromwell, a Muscoli. He is nominally a premier, but as the head of a party, he has been a lawless one. He told Parliament in so many words that if it did not do what he wanted he would abolish it and rule without it. His right to rule is based on might, and he boasts of it.

The despotic speak of the stand Italy takes against Greece. It is Mussolini, not Italy. This so-called premier's career has been a lawless one. He told Parliament in so many words that if it did not do what he wanted he would abolish it and rule without it. His right to rule is based on might, and he boasts of it.
