CIRCUS A GREAT ONE; THINGS IN THE GREAT TENT

A Notable Array of Acrobats, Trained Animals, Splendid Horses and Jolly Clowns.

The two performances given on Clark's field by the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus were enjoyed by large crowds and the general opinion is that it was the best circus shown in St. John for many years. The performance commenced in the afternoon at two o'clock, but the side-shows were open to the public at one o'clock and many attended the novel attractions in the various tents before the main performance started. In the menagerie was found a wonderful collection of wild beasts including lions, tigers, leopards, bears, kangaroos and other animals, which were studied with keen interest. There were twelve elephants of different sizes and the intelligence displayed by them in their performances was remarkable, for they understood perfectly what was expected of them and they did their part well even though they seemed so awkward and some of the stunts were apparently almost impossible. In the main tent two attractive performances were given and the three rings provided continuous amusement as

As about two years ago the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus organization, which played here yesterday, suffered a severe loss in a train wreck on the Michigan Central railway at Ivanhoe, Ind.; 107 persons losing their lives. The circus is now being reformed and the parade through the streets yesterday.

Claims by administrators of the victims aggregating more than $1,000,000 have just been instituted against the railway. The headquarters of the circus is at Baden, Indiana.

The ring work was exceptionally good and the bare back trick riding was appreciated by all for besides the attractive appearance of the neatly costumed riders their feats were the source of much pleasure, and the willing patient horses also deserve mention.

The trapeze and aerial swing work was very fine and sometimes hair-raising. A remarkable feat which brought loud applause from the crowd was that in which a young lady danced and balanced herself on a large round ball while treading it rolled it up an incline and down again without even a slip. She performed several juggling stunts also while on the sphere. A hat juggling act by three clowns was greatly appreciated. The tight rope artists were particularly good, especially where a man and two ladies performed acrobatic stunts on the wire, almost unbelievable.

In the centre of the great tent a very notable wild animal performance was given. A nery trainer made six lions perform together in a large iron caged cage, even striding the back of one animal and putting his head over its mouth.

He wrestled with a huge black bear and made a lion ride on a horse's back.

The show from start to finish was a continuous performance of clever and astonishing feats together with the novel entertainment provided by the clowns.

the glorious horses and the good menagerie.

At the conclusion of the ring work show was given which included sleight stunts and trick riding as done in the west years ago. Not only were the main tent and side-shows an attraction, but the way in which what enormous colony was cleared up and moved back to the cars and ready for transportation to their next stop, seemed to be as interesting as anything, for no false moves were made and each man had his part to do and did it.

A certified hat world famous Barnum-Bailey mammoth circus visited here.

REDUCTION OF SHOE PRICES.

Montreal, July 14.—Joseph Daoust, of Daoust, Lalonde & Company, at this morning's session of the National Shoe Retailers' Association, stated that it ought to be possible to sell shoes a little cheaper than they were quoted just before the present crisis set in. After fully reviewing the various causes for the high price of shoes, he suggested a ten per cent. reduction which he thought might be arranged without injury to the trade, but finally said that this would be the limit.
