Todd Rundgren (Bearsville-WEA BR2133) Todd Rundgren is one of the few musical individuals we have around these days. His mastery of the recording medium allows him to carry out his slightest whim, his International Feel, which Side two is much more takes up all of side one, is the result of Rundgren's free flow musical mind. At first I was really put off with this mn piece but on closer listening especially through headphones - it really does make sense: not a lot of sense but it is interesting, if somewhat far reaching Never Never Land, a cut from Peter Pan, is a work of genius. Short concise and very fantasy like, it seems to sum up Rundgren's approach to his music. The remaining cuts on side one blend in an abstract way to form a very eclectic and at times penetrating musical statement.

down to earth. Rundgren does a superb job on a rhythand blues medley, containing such tunes as I'm So Proud, Ooh, Ooh Baby, La Means I Love You and Cool Jerk

In an age where old rock

cuse for lack of originality, Rundgren takes four tunes while they do fit somewhat into that vein, remain as valid as they were when they first came out.

Does Anybody Love Love You is perhaps the best cut on the record. Employing his love of keyboards, he uses piano, both accoustic and electric, along with a Putney syntheizer crating a music ped that is a perfect vehicle for his interesting lyrics. The phrasing on this tune, running one thought another, is particularly effective.

It is an interesting record, but it doesn't have the immediate likability his other records had. He has advanced his musical ideas and matured sophisticated style. God only knows what he's going legend, for those of you who didn't know it! His command of just about every stringed instrument makes him a heavily used session man. For years David stood out of limelight but within the last few years he has gone around Playing country, gaining adoration from guitar players players guitar everywhere, he's done well for himself to say the least.

This second album, while superb, isn't as powerful as Bromberg in person. He's a strange looking man With his enormous talent, and insane sense of humor his in-person efforts will put you on the floor.

His albums, are choked full of the most imaginative riffs you've ever heard. He uses the same one twice. But somehow it just isn't as good as watching probably trying to get him as him - lanky and grinning ripping off riff after riff, just knowing you're tongue is out, and loving 4 ALLOW not allot. Since "a dealf-requires an indeterminate amount of "time," neither "party" knowing just how much discussion will be necessary before coming to terms, allot (as though the exact time could have been predetermined) is less apt than the wider ALLOW.

6. INDOLENCE not insolence. The sort of impertinent "youth" who would need to "be admonished" for insolence is too cocky to be disconcerted (i.e. "flush") by a rebuke. A lazy one, however, "might well" be em-barassed, as the clue indicates, if 'his boss admonished" him for his INDOLENCE."

TALES not talks. "TALES about jungle headhunters," i order to make them "exciting, will tend to be lurid and so "are likely to be frightening to a group of little girls." In "talks about" them to such an audience, the gruesome aspects will be dwelt on far less and thus not necessarily "frightening." 9. DESK not deck. "Of an old DESK," such as a school DESK, "pitted" by the jabs of pens and penknives, etc., over the years, yes. "The surface of an old deck," will rather be "worn" quite smooth by the tramping of feet over the years.

12 ACID not avid. More apt of ACID which is in direct contrast to the fact that the "girl" is "popular." She, herself, could also be avaricious by nature and his having an "avid nature" (i.e., is anxious to acquire as much as he can) might make him even more Appealing to her.

14. WALL not hall. WALL makes a comprehensive answer for should he "discover" this, it would be with the first WALL of the hall, or whatever else "he" was "papering."

19. STAR not stir. If the "movie" was said to have "created a STAR," the odds are that, in fact, it was the indefinable magic possessed by a truly great STAR that made the movie," in which case "A remake" is almost certainly doomed to "be a dismal flop.", If the original "movie created a stir," the implication is a good one and should prove usually successful again.

21. CROCKS not clocks. "Old CROCKS," makes a clear-cut answer "because some people" are fascinated with the craft. Not "simply old clocks" since clock enthusiasts and collectors go for the unusual, as well as the "old"

"point to," favors "SPA water."
Enjoying the sea elements

1. SIESTA not fiesta. The average Spaniard is likely to agree fully with fiesta, since fiestas are intended to be the high spots of the year. "Strangely amused," better fits SIESTA as the is an accepted day to day this is an accepted day to day habit in Spain. Furthermore, the remark is bound to be intended as

8. SPATTER not scatter. "In a war movie" such scenes of a joke, anyway.

that the story line is intrinsically bombing "the enemy target" are good one and should prove usually depicted rather exaggeratedly, making the more accurate and profuse SPATTER (defined as: "to fall or strike in as in a shower") better than the sparse scatter.

9. DRIVES not driver. If "cantankerous," surely "her" complaints would be rather with in clocks.

22. SPA not sea. The specific, POSSIBLY including the driver, but hardly confining herself "continually" to him, which would be out of character.

11. PLASTIC not elastic. "A strap made of PLASTIC," but rather a piece "of elastic" in place of a strap.

13. MAN not map. The clue wording, "given to you," favor the animate answer, MAN rather than the inanimate, map from which "you" would read "the information you" require

16 BOOTS not bolts. Truer BOOTS, since the feet inside shape them to their own contours with time, but bolts will tend more likely to "get" stiffer later with corrosion, etc.

17. TOWN not gown. "Nor-mally" only "for a TOWN you like very much." yes, but, oc-casionally "you" might." express admiration for a gown" without 'liking it very much," just to be polite.

18. RACE not pace. "A fast" total "RACE is unlikely," though even "on" such "a track, a fast pace" may indeed be managed in a spurt during the RACE, or at Back in 1937, a young man won the Spingold Team-of-Four Championship.

The man I am referring to is Morrie Elis. That he has not lost his touch can be observed in this deal, which was played in the Team-of Four event. He was the South declarer. West's opening lead of a spade was taken by East's ace, and the ten of clubs was returned. Had Elis played the ace, he would have gone down, for West could then not have been prevented from subsequently winning a second club lead with king. A diamond return by West would now have made a winner out of East's king

But Elis allowed the club

Variety night proceeds go to Ivor

The proceeds of a Grade 13 variety night at Gordon Graydon Secondary School have been donated to the Roy Ivor bird sanctuary

The students raised about $250 at their Feb. 28 show About 600 persons attended spokesman for students said the bird sanctuary had been selected because "a lot of schools seem to be using money to buy things for the new zoo.

"We wanted to donate to an organization dedicated to saving animals rather than one that puts them in cages, the spokesman said.
