THE MARKET

Yesterday Chatham had an excellent Wednesday market. Crowdss of country matrons with their splendid dairy and poultry produce filled the sheds and found rapid sale for their stuff.

All of which sets the market citizen a-thinking.

The autumn is upon us, and soon the bleak and wintry days-the days of dismal dampness or chilling winds -will be here.

So far nothing has been done to alleviate the discomfiture and serious conditions confronting the marketer in such seasons. It is sometimes an almost piteous sight to note the disgraceful and discreditable manner in which the women who frequent the market are forced to endure the unrestrained attacks of the elements.

This is a matter which has been talked about often-and now would be a good time to prepare to deal

A WORD TO OUR YOUNG MEN

The well-merited and peremptory punishment meted out to the repre-centative of a Yankee species called "mashers" by a young and athletic Chathamite the other evening, suggests a word of advice and counse to our own young men.

It isn't The Planet's province to sermonize-and this journal wouldn't take to the job if it were. But it must strike every one of us-if we but take a moment to think the matter out for ourselves-that it isn't the most enjoyable or elevating sight to witness gangs of young men adorning our street corners, sometimes by the hour, these pleasant fall evenings. And if one stays and listens to the talk the regret only deepens.

The sight of a score or so of young fellows loitering thus together, smoking cigarettes, chewing tobacco and talking empty rubbish-or worse -isn't conducive to the credit of the town, let alone of the youth who demeans himself by so doing.

None of us want our citizens of to-morrow to get their ideals from the language and customs of the street corner crowd.

No, The Planet isn't going to preach. It just wants the young man to think it out for himself.

ABAD BILL

A bill has been introduced in the House of Commons by Mr. Fielding to curtail the powers of the Auditor-General. It is not likely the people will take kindly to such a measure. They have a good deal of confidence in the Auditor-General. He was appointed by Hon. Alexander Mackenzie. He has been in office a good many years, and his integrity, reliability and independence have never ham. been questioned. He has been called the watch dog of the treasury, the one reliable and effective check on irregular and unauthorized expendi-

W. Bennie, our former teacher, we may be sure, have caused a great outcry from the Liberals. But to the credit of the Conservatives it must be said that, though they must often have felt irritated by his troublesome insistance on strict adherence to the letter of the law, no attempt was made to interfere with him. The importance of the office was recognized and the integrity of the man respect-

It is unpleasant to think that the Liberals themselves are the first to seek the removal of one of the few safeguards remaining in which the confidence of the people has not been shaken.

Come to think of it, this is the 842nd day of the North Renfrew vacancy.

The opening of the West Kent Fair by the Hon. Raymond Prefontains to-day, was somewhat more than a mere yearly incident, even apart from the fact that one of the cabinet members was present.—Banner.

A Mouse Mill.

Thrift is generally acknowledged to be one of the leading characteristics of the natives of Fifeshire, and it never was more forcelly exemplified than in the person of David Hatton, a native of Dundaryline description. fermline, who actually proved that even mice, those acknowledged pests of mankind, eguld be made not only to earn their own living, but also to yield a respectable income to their owners, says the "Scotsman."

About the year 1820 this gentleman actually erected a small mill at Dunfermline for the manufacture of thread—a mill worked entirely by mice. It was while fasting Perth prison in 1812 that Mr. Hatton first conceived this remarkable idea of utilizing mouse power. In an old pamphlet of the time, "The Curiosity Coffee Room," he gave an account of the way in which the idea dawned on him.

"In the summer of the year 1812," he wrote, "I had occasion to be in Perth. and when

of the way in which the idea dawned on him.

"In the summer of the year 1812," he wrote, "I had occasion to be in Perth, and when inspecting the toys and trinkets that were manufactured by the French prisoners in the depot there my attention was involuntarily attracted by a little toy house with a wheel in the gable of it that was running rapidly round, impelled by the insignificant gravity of a common house mouse. For a shilling I purchased house, mouse and wheel. Inclosing it in a handkerchief, on my journey homeward I was compelled to contemplate its favorite amusement. But how to apply half-ounce power, which is the weight of a mouse, to a useful purpose was the difficulty. At length the manufacturing of sewing thread seemed the most practicable."

Mr. Hatton had one mouse that ran the amazing distance of eighteen miles a day, but he proved that an ordinary mouse could run ten and one-half miles on an average. A halfpenny's worth of attendad was sufficient for its support mouse could run ten and one-half miles on an average. A halfpenny's worth of catmeal was sufficient for its support for thirty-five days, during which it ran 736 half miles. He had actually two mice constantly employed in the making of sewing thread for more than a year. The mouse threadmill was so constructed that the common house mouse was enabled to make atonement to society for past offences by twisting, and abled to make atonement to society for past offences by twisting, twining, and reeling from 100 to 120 threads a day, Sundays not excepted.

To perform this task the little pedestrian had to run ten and one-half miles, and this journey it performed with ease every day. A halfpenny's worth of oatmeal served one of these threadmill culprits for the long period of five weeks. In that time it made 3,350 threads of twenty-five inches, and as a penny was In that time it made 3,350 threads of twenty-five inches, and as a penny was paid to women for every hank made in the ordinary way, the mouse, at that rate, earned 9 pence every six weeks, just one farthing a day, or 7 shillings and 6 pence a year. Taking 6 pence off for board and allowing 1 shilling for machinery, there was clear yearly profit from each mouse of 6 shillings.

Mr. Hatton firmly intended to apply for the loan of the old empty cathedral in Dunfermline, which would have held, he calculated, ten thousand mouse mills; sufficient room being left for keepers and some hundreds of spectators. Death, however, overtook the inventor before his marvelous project could be carried out.

Canada's Interest in the Memory of Sir

Canada and New York have a joint interest in the memory of Sir William Johnston, the most picturesque persobality of the generation immediately preceding the commencement of the American revolutionary war. He was an Irishman by birth, but at twenty-three he emigrated to the twenty-three he emigrated to the wilds of the Province of New York to manage an uncle's landed estate which lay in the valley of the Mohawk River not far from Schenectady. All about him were the survivors of the great tribe which gave the river its name, and with these and others of the Iroquois confederation he became intimately acquainted in the course of the traffic which he carried on with them. By honorable dealing, an attractive manner, and facility in accommodating himself to their modes of life he acquired an ascendancy over the Indians that was as advantageous to the Government as it was profitable to himself.

When still young he was created military commander of the Six Nations, and through this appointment he was drawn into the frontier wars against the French. He took part in 1754 in the Albany Congress, which was in some sense the prototype of the later gatherings out of which was evolved the American federation. With the rank of "Major-General" he took part in the campaigns of took part in the campaigns of 1755-60, that ended in the capitulation of Montreal, at which event he was present as commander of the Indian allies of the British. His was present as commander of the Indian allies of the British. His great personal influence with the Indians of New York kept them from joining in the conspiracy of Pontiac three years later, and when the movement died down he it was who by a treaty of amity quenched at Niagara the smouldering embers of that curious uprising.

Sir William Johnston, in the enjoyment of a liberal pension and a Baronetcy, lived till 1774 on an extensive estate granted to him by the British Crewn close to the place which had long been his home. Johnstown, called after himself, was founded by him, and there a monument to perpetuate his memory will be unveiled this month. As the battle of Lexington was not fought till 1775 he was just spared the catastroph he fact agents. the of Lexington was not fought till 1775 he was just spared the catastrophe that scattered his family and drove them to reside near Montreal. His son, Sir John Johnston, fought on the British side in both the revolutionary war and the war of 1812-15. To those who admire patriotic statesmanship there is on this continent no shrine more worthy of a visit than the old home of this famous civilian soldier, whose reputation is the heritage of two nations and whose memory is unstained by and whose memory is unstained any act of savagery.

Story of Principal Buchan Not a fortnight after Mr. Buchan's Not a fortnight after Mr. Buchan's induction in 1881 he gave the whole Upper Canada College, Toronto, in prayer-hall assembled, a taste of his quality as a disciplinarian. There had arisen some slight frictien regarding, if memory serves, Day by you in Toronte News, a change in the rule allowing members of the Sixth Form, two, in place of three, afternoons' leave down town each week. Mr. Buchan made the change after deep consideration, and, after arternoons' leave down town each week. Mr. Buchan made the change after deep consideration, and, after receiving a deputation from the Sixth, promised to announce his final resolution the next afternoon at prayers. The statement was duly made, and it was that the change must take place. Suddenly from where the Sixth sat, came a sibilant, long-drawn hiss. The beys were amazed. Nothing of the kind had been ever heard in that hall before. Mr. Buchan gased towards the Sixth, and, in cold, even tones, said:

"The bey whe bissed, stand up."
In a second a tall, broad shouldered youth was en his set.
"A—," said the Frincipal, "you will take ten demerits."
The boy turned white and sat

The boy turned white and sat down. He and another were running neck and neck for the headship of neck and neck for the headship of the school, and the Prince of Wales scholarship. Ten demerits meant that a number of marks representing a fair month's work would be de-ducted at the end of the year. The judgment of the Principal meant death to the effender's chances; it was about the stiffest sentence that could be imposed, short of expulsion. The culprit, who is one of the lead-ers of his profession to-day, took his punishment gamely, but it was neith-er mitigated nor remitted although er mitigated nor remitted, although his rival and conqueror—as subsequent events showed—begged Mr. Buchan to let him take five of his demerits himself. This might have allowed a third boy to gain the coveted distinction, but this was doubtful, as the two lads mentioned were head and shoulders above their formmates. Mr. Buchan sternly refused er mitigated nor remitted, although mates. Mr. Buchan sternly refused to make any change, so the friend and advocate of the boy who hissed went ahead and cantered in with the honors. He was as much provoked at being denied the centest as he was pleased at his success.

Sir Melville Parker, Bart.

Sir Melville Parker, Bart.

The illness of Sir Melville Parker, Bart., is causing his friends much anxiety. Sir Melville, who is nearly 80 years of age, suffered a stroke of paralysis at his home near Cooksville a few days ago, and his condition is rather grave. Should he die, the baronetcy is ended.

Sir Melville is the second son of the late Admiral Sir Henry Parker, and is the sixth baronet, the title having been created in 1797. The Admiral settled near Cooksville, and had three sons, Henry, who married a sister of the late John Hector, Q. C.; Albert, who alse married in Canada, and Sir Meiville, who married Jessie, also sister to Mr. Hector, in 1847. He succeeded to the baronetcy in 1877. Their one child, May, married Lieut. Gordon of the Imperial parvice, afterwards Commodore Gordon of the Canadian nayal service. Lady Parker died sbout three years ago.
