

From the Bristol Times.
SPARROWS IN THE CRYSTAL PALACE.
Prince Albert pushed his cutlet and tomato sauce from before him, and rose up from the breakfast table, apparently too troubled in spirit to eat.
Her Majesty noticed the act, and inquired the cause.
"Those confounded sparrows!" cried the Prince, with great distress, "we can't get them out."
"Oh, sit down and eat your breakfast," interposed Her Majesty, soothingly, "and I'll write an order to the Horse Guards to send up a whole regiment of the line to take care of them."
The Prince groaned out, "Oh no! the cure would be worse than the disease—they'd break all the glass."
The Queen saw and felt for his distress. "I never liked the Exhibition," she thought, "but it is his hobby, and I must not let those stupid little sparrows make him unhappy." So she sat down at the escaratoire, and taking up a gold pen, wrote a note at once to the Premier, requiring his attendance at Buckingham Palace, as the Royal messenger was seen dashing at top speed into Chesham Place, people said "twas another crisis, but 'twas not."
"What's the matter, your Majesty?" cried the Premier, making his appearance, pale and out of breath.
"The sparrows," said Her Majesty, "in the Crystal Palace." And as she spoke, she nodded her head to Prince Albert, who was walking about at the upper part of the room, looking his forehead, and minding no one—his mind being occupied with the one thought.
"You know we can't shoot them, Lord John," observed Her Majesty, "or I'd soon silence them with a park of artillery."
"No, your Majesty," mused the First Lord of the Treasury, biting his nails; and after a pause, he added, "If we might not them."
"The Queen clasped her hands with gloom—'Albert, Albert!'" she exclaimed, "don't fret; Lord John has found a remedy—'we'll not them.'"
"Nonsense," retorted the Prince Consort, "rather gruffly and ungratefully; 'you can't—the place is too large."
Her Majesty's face fell at once, as she mournfully repeated her Consort's words, "'tis too large, Lord John—think again."
Lord John bit his nails, and thought again. "I have it," said he, after a longer meditation than before.
"The Queen's eyes sparkled. 'Have you?' cried she in an ecstasy. 'What, Lord John? do please say what at once.'"
"Fumigate the place; smother them with sulphur."
"Capital!" cried the Queen. "Albert, Albert!" she shouted out once more, "we have it this time; we'll smother them."
"Gentle!" softly related the Duke of Devonshire. "I thought of that myself—but 'twon't do. Stink all the goods and spoil them."
The Bishop of London now called by chance, and Her Majesty at once consulted him. "Bloomfield was always a courtier," he looked upon the Duke's service over and over, and said "he'd go home and look at the canons of his church."
"Don't mind it," interposed Her Majesty; "your canons always make a dreadful noise, but take no effect."
Still Prince Albert kept pacing up and down, and groaning out ejaculations from time to time, about these confounded sparrows; and every groan sent a pang to Her Majesty's heart.
"Have determined," said she, "I'll send for the Duke."
Another letter and another courier to bear it to Apsley House. The Royal message ran thus:—"My dear Duke—Do come at once; my kind and true friend in every emergency. Albert is in a sad taking about these horrid sparrows that have got into the Exhibition Building. You can do everything; you can help us to get them out—Ever yours, V. R."
The Duke was standing at the window when the Royal messenger alighted at the door. He knew the man by his livery. "Humph," cried he, "I hope Russell is not again in one of his resignation fits." He took the letter off the silver dish, and opened it. He seemed annoyed, and immediately set down in a pet to write.
"F. M. the Duke of Wellington presents his loyal duty to his Sovereign. F. M. the Duke of Wellington is commander-in-chief of Her Majesty's land forces, and as such, thinks the service upon which he is summoned out of his province. F. M. the Duke of Wellington is not a bird-catcher. F. M. the Duke of Wellington understands there are several following this line of life in the neighbourhood of the Seven Dials, to whom, if it be Her Majesty's pleasure, he will make known the Royal request. F. M. the Duke of Wellington has had considerable experience in capturing French eagles, but none in taking English sparrows."
His Grace read this note; gave a grim smile, then repented, tore it, and ordering his horse, said he would be at Buckingham Palace in 20 minutes. The Prince was still walking about restlessly, when the Duke arrived and but jumped into his arms, and reminded him of Quatre Bras.
"Oh! last and best resort of difficulty and danger, what do you suggest?" ejaculated the Queen.
"A Sparrow Hawk," said the Duke, bowing.
"Oh! over-fertile in resources," exclaimed the Prince; "to place a difficulty before you is to have a remedy. We'll have the sparrow hawk."
"We will," said the Queen; and an extensive order for sparrow hawks was immediately issued. In the meantime, the twittering colony in the Crystal Palace were not unconscious of what was taking place at the Buckingham neighbor, and had a couple of messengers of their own flying between the "two houses," with the hourly intelligence of the consultations held for turning them out of office. Thus, when Lord John Russell was with Her Majesty, a clever, sharp-eyed young sparrow alighted on the sill of the window outside, and overheard the whole of the conversation. As soon as the Premier departed, Master Sparrow was back again, and gliding in through one of the ventilators, was soon telling the whole story to a council of veteran twitterers assembled on one of the highest branches. This council was presided over by a grey-headed old sparrow, the Nestor of the flocks that flitted about the Palace.
When the young sparrow had told all that Lord John had said,
"Fellow!" cried the President of the Council. "Net us! and we forsath are-fools enough to go into the nets, while we have plenty of room to avoid them; Lord John has seen his best days. Unless they can get a wiser counsellor than that, we'll bother Prince Albert and his brother Commissioners, and break up their boasted Exhibition," and all the sparrows laughed and twittered, and provoked the Commissioners, who happened to be underneath, and who were out with more vehemence than ever. "Hang these sparrows!"
Another messenger sparrow flew in amongst the feathered council: "The Bishop of London has just left Her Majesty, and is going to eject us by Cannon Lane," and the whole of the council burst out twittering followed the announcement.
"The Bishop of London has 'enough to do to mind his own business,'" said the veteran sparrow; "let him first get some strange birds out of his own diocese, and then come to disturb us. But he had better not throw stones at us, ours is not the only Palace made of glass. I think we need not make ourselves uneasy, but go on building our nests."
"We needn't," cried all the sparrows, "we'll stay where we are."
"The Duke is sent for," exclaimed another messenger sparrow, making his appearance, and with some sign of trepidation.
"The Duke!" repeated they; but there was no banter in their twitter now.
But the President of the Sparrows' Council still sat a bold face on the matter, and said in a boastful tone, "The Duke would find he had not a Napoleon to deal with this time." Nevertheless the sparrows were noticed not to go on as usual with their nest-building as before, when a fourth messenger flew in and said he had just overheard the Duke suggest "a sparrow hawk."
"Then, I'm off!" exclaimed the veteran President of the Council, popping out through a ventilator. "That horrid old Duke, I was afraid he would hit on an expedient!"

DO NOT NEGLECT IT.
CONSUMPTION can be and has been cured in thousands of cases by this only certain remedy, JUDSON'S CHEMICAL EXTRACT OF CHERRY AND LUNGWORT, And no remedy has ever before been discovered that will certainly
CURE CONSUMPTION.
The most strongly marked and developed cases of Pulmonary Consumption, where the lungs have become diseased and ulcerated, and the case so utterly hopeless as to have been pronounced by physicians and friends to be past all possibility of recovery, and at times thought to be dying, have been cured by this wonderful remedy, and are now as well and hearty as ever. It is a compound of medicaments which are peculiarly adapted to and essentially necessary for the cure of
COUGHS AND CONSUMPTION.
Caution—This medicine is put up in a large bottle, and is strongly branded the name of JUDSON & Co., Proprietors, New York, on the splendid Wrapper around the bottle.
OF INTEREST TO ALL.
To the Old and Young!—Ho! Ye Red Heads and Grey!!!—Phenomenon in Chemistry!!!!
EAST INDIA HAIR DYE,
COLORS THE HAIR, AND WILL NOT THE SKIN.
This dye may be applied to the hair over night, the first night turning the lightest RED or GREY hair into a bright jet black. Any person may, therefore, with the least possible trouble, keep his hair any dark shade or perfect black; with a positive assurance that the dye, if applied to the skin, will not color it. By an occasional application, a person turning grey will never be known to have a grey hair. Directions complete with the article. There is no coloring in this statement, as one can easily test.
These facts are warranted by the gentleman who manufactures it, who is the celebrated Chemist, Dr. COMSTOCK, author of Comstock's Chemistry, Philosophy, and other works, and School Books, well known and widely celebrated by the public.
Dr. Spohn's Sick Headache Remedy.
Why will you suffer with that distressing complaint, when a remedy is at hand that will not fail to cure you? This remedy will effectually destroy any attack of headache, either nervous or bilious. It has cured cases of 20 years standing.
TO THE LADIES.
The Genuine Balm of Columbia for Restoring the Hair.
"Long hair is a glory to woman," says Paul, and all feel the truth of the pious quotation; Preserve it then, ladies, your glory may fall, unless you protect it with this preparation. If you are a rich, luxuriant head of hair, free from dandruff and scurf, do not fail to procure the genuine Balm of Columbia. In cases of baldness, it will more than exceed your expectations. Many who have lost their hair for twenty years, have had it restored to its original perfection by the use of this Balm. Age, rigidity, or condition, appears to be no obstacle whatever; it also causes the fluid to flow with which the delicate hair tubes are filled, by which means thousands (whose hair has fallen out) are enabled to grow again, and their hair restored to its natural color by this invaluable remedy. In all cases of fever, it will be found the most pleasant wash that can be used. A few applications only are necessary to keep the hair from falling out, and to restore it to its natural color. It imparts a rich glossy appearance, and as a perfume for the toilet it is unequalled. It holds three times as much as other miscellated hair restoratives, and is more effective.
Caution—Never buy it unless you find the name of Comstock & Co., proprietors, on the wrapper of each bottle, or you are cheated with a counterfeit article.
