He had spent the last three years on the continent, and wos so improved by his travels, and so altered, that Agatha hardly recognized him. He had learned to forget her. He had seen brilliant and beautiful women, but the calm, gentle face he loved had more charms for him than Venus herself would have had.

The was no doubt that that brilli seautiful face could express any pas or emotion.

"We had better arrange a proper gramme," said Lord Lynne. "I think will dispense with the dinner part of usiness. My mother thought of a ner-party; but it will be better to gi large party, including dancing and leaux. I owe an invitation to nearly he had loved so long.

he had loved so long.

He looked with surprise at the beau-tiful girl by Agatha's side. His father told him that Miss Lynne had been sent had pictured to himself a dark, foreign-losking girl, by the side of whom his beloved would shine like a star. He was not prepared to see the loveliest and most brilliant woman he had ever met. It was a merr yparty that sat during those warm, sunny hours under the great cedars. Yet Inez smiled half bitterly to herself as she noted that both the gentlemen were devoted to her sister. She wondered if they were charmed by her childlike gaiety, by her simple, ingrace of her manner, so kind and thoughtful. She wondered half bitterly why her own magnificent beauty had not more power, why those cold English hearts did not warm to her; she felt almost alone, did this strange, gifted woman. Perhaps there was something too regal and queenly in the style of her beauty, for it was evident that both Philip and Allan stood rather in awe of Spain, Miss Lynne," said Allan, "for I spent the last six months there." "How happy you must be to have travelled and have seen so much!" said "I would give anything to go

It was amusing to know that each It was amusing to know that each gentleman, as he listened, mentally resolved that her wish should be gratified "What makes you wish to go to Spain, Agatha?" asked Mrs. Lynne. "I think it is one of the most picturesque of countries," she replied. "I read the romance of the "Cid' some years ago, and most of my ideas of chivalry are connected with Spain."
"I will not disabuse you," said Allan,

"I will not disabuse you," said Allan, with a slightly cynical smile.

"You could not," said Agatha; "then I should like to see a Spanish lady in her mantilla, with a rose in her hair.

Lord Lynne held a glowing damask rose in his hand; a sudden thought seemstrike him as he looked at it.

asked her to gratify any little wish, for Lord Lynne was usually somewhat re-merved with his beautiful cousin. Although it was merely to please Agatha, and not from any interest in herself, that he made his request, she was glad d happy to grant it.

"I shall want a fan to make the cos-"You shall have a bough from that lilac tree," said Allan; "three tufts of lilac will make a pretty fan."

too tame; I must holding the crimson flowers to her bosom with the inimitable grace known only to Spanish women, and her splen-did eyes drooped before the admiring did eyes drooped before the admiring glances bent upon her.

"Good heavens!" said Lord Lynne to himself, "how handsome she is!" And for the first time her beauty seemed to reach his heart and his senses. Allan Leigh applauded loudly.

"You will make a capital actress, Miss wit, her asked Lord Lynne, as he entered the drawing room after dinner.

We do not want flowers and birds to distract us," replied Allan. "Let us remain here, if the ladies are willing, and settle the programme of our tableaux-vivants. Miss Lynne, will you accept the role of prima donna, and tell us what scenes from "the enchanted realms

Don't lie awake nights, nervous and feverish. Ten to one yoursleeplessness is caused by a torpid liver. A few days' treatment with Celery King, the tonic-laxative, will make your nights restrul and strengthening. So conts, at dealers, or by looked happier and brighter than usual. There was no doubt that that brilliant, beautiful face could express any passion

"We had better arrange a proper programme," said Lord Lynne. "I think we will dispense with the dinner part of the business. My mother thought of a dinner-party; but it will be better to give a large party, including dancing and tableaux. I owe an invitation to nearly all my neighbors. We can have a grand supper, mother," he added, smiling at Mrs. Lynne, "and that will console you for missing a formal, ceremonious dinner."

"You will have the old ball-room fit-"You will have the old ball-room fit-ted up, I suppose?" said Mrs. Lynne.
"Yes, it shall be decorated in what the Barfordshire Courier calls a truly mag-nificent style," he replied. "We will have hangings and flowers such as never were seen in Lynnewolde before."
"The drawing-room would be the best place for the tableaux," said Inez; "they could be arranged in the small drawing-place for the tableaux," said Inez; "they could be arranged in the small drawing-room, and the audience could be seated in the large one."

"That would do capitally," said Allan.
"We can have a curtain fixed under the arch, and it will be a perfect little the-

"Let us have the tableaux first," said Agatha, "and then we can begin the dancing afterward. It would spoil both to mix them."
"Certainly," said Lord Lynne. "Do you think, my little cousin, we should spring at once from a polka into a picture? Eclieve me, tableaux require a great dealof preparation. We will say, the they deal of the plantille (Tableaux et al.) as they do on the playbills, 'Tableaux-vivants at nine o'clock—dancing to commence at ten.' And now to business. What shall we try to represent?"

"Are you conversant with English literature?" asked Allan of Miss Lynne. "Yes," she replied. "I never had any-thing to do but read. I know Walter Scott almost by rote."

"Nothing could be better than a scene from 'Ivanhoe,'" said Allan. "Miss Agatha, you will be a perfect Rowena, and you, Miss Lynne, a still more perfect Rebecca."

"No," said Inez, "I do not think I ould look like Rebecca. Let me have something I feel at home in. Certainly I shall not do so in any attitude of patience, or self-sacrifice, or resignation. I do not like to be Rebecca. I should like to be prosperous, happy, and beloved. I do not think I should look at all patient loved best from me."

She spoke rapidly, with a curious ring of to strike him as he looked at it.

"If my mother will lend me her black lace scarf for one moment. Miss Lynne," seid, "we might show your sister the dreas of a Spanish lady."

Inez smiled as he handed her the rose.

Inex smiled as he handed her the rose. was the first flower he had ever fered her, the first time he had ever like," said Allan. "What do you think ked her to gratify any little wish, for of a scene from 'Kenilworth'? Miss Agatha would make an excellent Amy Robsart." Robsart."

"And I could take the part of Queen Elizabeth," said Inez. "Yes—I could look as she did before she knew who Amy Robsart was."

"That will do excelently for one, then," said Lord Lynne.

"Do let us have the balcony scene from 'Romeo and Juliet,'" cried Agatha. "Inez would make a better Juliet than the real one, I believe. You might be Romeo,

"But the color is too tame; I must have white or deep crimson to make a Lord Lynne."

"We must have some rehearsals," said "We must have some rehearsals," said picture," replied Inez.

"What an artist you are," replied Allan, gayly; and he made her a fan of dark, growing crimson flowers peeping between green leaves.

Inez was no coquette, but she knew the value of effects; she placed the black lace mantilla on her head, and fastened the flower in her hair. Then she rose and stood before Agatha, making a low, sweeping courtesy. She looked a low, sweeping courtesy. She looked the specific course is the state of the a low, sweeping courtesy. She looked surprise would be pleasant; better than wondrously beautiful as she stood there if people came all ready to see and criti-

So it was arranged. Allan Leigh undertook to bring his sister and Miss Dacre on the morning following, and Lord Lynne wrote to ask Bertie Bohun to join them.

The sound of silvery laughter and gay words was now heard in the old hall of Lynnewolder Inez was transformed; she was queen of the revels. Her ready wit, her brilliant repartees, her genius "You will make a capital actress, Miss Lynne, I am sure," he cried, eagerly. "Could we not get up some charades or tableaux?—I do enjoy them so much. What do you say?"

"I should like it above all things,' replied Inez. "I will restore your scarf, Mrs. Lynne, as our masquerade is ended," she said; but they would not allow her to be what Agatha called English again. Allan made her a throne of moss, and sat at her feet. Lord Lynne declared they only wanted a very brown gypsy, with a very old guitar, to make him think he was in Spain.

gypsy, with a very old guitar, to make him think he was in Spain.

"Come over this evening," said Lord Lynne to Allan, "and we will arrange for some tableaux. I owe my neighbors a party, and we will have one."

CHAPTER VI.

"Where shall we hold our committee?" asked Lord Lynne, as he entered the drawing-room after dinner.

"The rehearsals took place in the libration on they were pleasant to all; but to one they were dangerous as an intoxicating draught, or a sweet, honeyed poison. It was so easy to play Juliet with Lord Lynne as Romeo; it was so delightful to know that his eyes were talked about wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsals took place in the libration of the were talked about wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsals took place in the libration of the were talked about wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsals took place in the libration of the were talked about wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsals took place in the libration of the were talked about wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsals took place in the libration of the were talked about wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsals took place in the libration of the were talked about wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsals took place in the libration of the were talked about wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsals took place in the libration of the were talked about wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsals took place in the libration of the were talked about wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsals took place in the libration of the were talked about wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsals took place in the libration of the place with a look of the were talked about wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsals took place in the libration of the were talked about wherever men and women congregated. rapt love and devotion; to stand for that one moment and know that his very soul was in the look bent upon her. One of those rehearsals they never her, One of those forgot.

"Scene the Third!" cried out Allan Leigh—"Romeo and Juliet;" and Lord Lynne took his place and Inez hers.

Lynne took are exclaimed Allan; "only "Capital," exclaimed Allan; "only don't you think—excuse me, Miss Lynne—should you not look at Romeo? Those downcast eyes are very effective; but I think the other would be better

Yet the picture—the shy, loving, beauiful face, the downcast eyes, their ong black fringe resting on the cheeks —was so perfect it seemed wrong to atter it.

"Try," said Lord Lynne—"look at me.'
Timidly enough, she raised those dark liquid eyes. Lord Lynne never forgot her face as she did so. When she saw the expression on his, the earnest, almost adoring love that he tried so hard to represent, a crimson flush seemed to scorch her cheek and brow. For one moment her lips quivered like the lips of a little grieving chil. In that one look Inez told her secret. It, was well for her that no one read it.

"I am tired," she said impatiently. "I have been rehearsing all the morning. Let me now go, Lord Lynne; we shall manage it, I'm sure; and Mr. Leigh, you may be a connoisseur in such things but it does not seem to me that young ladies usually stand with open eyes to hear such speeches as Romeo made."

"But this is not real," said Allan in self-defence, "it is only acting;" and his words although true, were like a sharp dagger to the passionate heart so nearly betrayed.

It was "only acting," and yet it was

It was "only acting," and yet it was al! strangely real to her. She lulled herself with sweet dreams, she cheated herself into believing it was real, while Lord Lynne was only waiting until the evening of the fete to ask Agatha to be his wife.

evening of the fete to ask Agatha to be his wife.

Bertie Bohun was a handsome careless young fellow, who had just peased his examination, and was now at home at Bohun Court, awaiting a commission, for which his father had applied. He was a brave, honorable man, a good son to the aged father who loved him better than anything in the world. He was charmed with the brilliant society at Lynnewolde; the beautiful Andalusian had a most ardent worshipper in Bertie Bohun. He would have suffered any hardsup have borne any peril, have risked most ardent worsnipper in bette bunn. He would have suffered any hardsnip have borne any peril, have risked any and everything to win one look from those bright eyes, one smile from those perfect lips; but neither look nor smile came to him. Inez received his homage, as she did the homage of all other men, as something that was simply her due. She would have laughed with scorn if any one had told her that the handsome young fellow loved her. She talked to him about his profession at times until the boy's heart glowed, and he wished—ah, what vain wishes he had—that she were a captive, and he the knight who rescued her; that she were a queen and he might fight and die for her.

But in his wildest dream, no thought, no hope, ever came to Bertie Bohun of

But in his wildest dream, no thought, no hope, ever came to Bertie Bohun of winning this magnificent woman and making her his wife. Sometimes, after she had been unusually kind to him, he would resolve that before "he rode away would resolve that before he role has to war," he would tell her how mad and foolish he had been, and ask her to bid him "God speed!" But the marching orders were very long in coming, and poor Bertie dreamed the summer away poor Bertie dreamed the summer away at the syren's feet. Evelyn Leigh was a pretty lively girl of nineteen—just the least in the world given to flirting, and somewhat inclin-ed, Allan feared to be fast—still the pretty face and gay, lively manner had many admirers. Isabel Dacre was a tall, stately brunette, very good-humored, and given to great admiration of everything at Lynnewolde, from the young lord to his beautiful cousin.

She had not much intellect; but then, as Allan Leigh said, she had figure, and that was very requisite in getting up good tableaux. The invitations to Lynnewolde were issued for the eleventh of August, and very little else save this coming fete was spoken of, either in the Hall or out of it. Every one anticipated a dancing party, the tableaux were to be a sur-prise. Yet many wondered why they were requested to be at the Hall at nine were requested to be at the Hall at nine punctually.

Under the able superintendence of Allan Leigh the drawing-rooms were most effectively arranged for the tableaux; the inner and smaller one was divided from the large room by a long, sweeping curtain of rich crimson silk; a kind of stage had been erected, and in the large room the chairs for the guests were arranged in a circle.

room the chairs for the guests were arranged in a circle.

"I hope it will go off well," said Agatha to Lord Lynne, on the morning of the eventful cleventh.

"Never fidget, little cousin," he replied, with a smile. "Even supposing there should be neither wit nor sense, wherever there are flowers, lights, and music, people amuse themselves, and famouely, too."

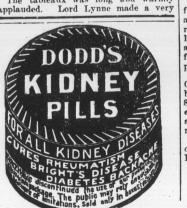

Soon after eight the roll of carriages Soon after eight the roll of carriages began, and burden after burden was deposited at the Hall door. The drawing-room was soon filled. There was much curiosity as to the curtain and what it burden was to the curtain and what it burden was to the curtain and what it burden was much curiosity as to the curtain and what it burden was much curiosity as to the curtain and what it burden was much curiosity as to the curtain and what it burden was deposited at the Hall door. The drawing the man was desposed to the curtain and what it burden was deposited at the Hall door. The drawing room was soon filled. There was much curiosity as to the curtain and what it burden was deposited at the Hall door. The drawing room was soon filled. There was much curiosity as to the curtain and what it burden was deposited at the Hall door. The drawing room was soon filled. There was much curiosity as to the curtain and what it Lynne, anxious to know what "charming surprise" he had prepared for them; but he refused to any he refused to answer any questions, telling them, that, when the clock struck would have the most com-When the silver chimes of the little clock rang out that "mystic hour," the lights in the room were subdued; there as a soft sound of music, and the curwas a soft sound of misst, and all each tain was drawn up on one of the prettiest tableaux ever arranged. It was copied from an old Spanish picture, called "The Surprise." One read the story at a glance. The centre figure, upon which the hight fell, was that of a beautiful the light fell, was that of a beautiful Spanish girl, represented by Irez Lynne, the black mantilla fastened coquettishly at the back of the head, fell upon the graceful shoulders and the half-quaint, half-artistic dress. One deep crimson rose glowed in the depths of her rich heir and she half a magnificant far in hair, and she held a magnificent fan in her white jeweled hands. Standing by her side, his handsome face peeping over her shoulder, was a Spanish cavalier, wearing the picturesque cloak and the plumed hat. It was a stolen interview, and at one window of the apartment stood a sister or friend, evidently watchstood a sister or friend, evidently waten-ing that they should not be surprised. The expression on the face of this kind-ly guard (Evelyn Leigh) was excellent in its mingled archness and anxiety. But alas, at the other and smaller windowforgotten both by the lovers and their friend—shone the angry face of the old father, who had unexpectedly appeared on the scene.

The tableaux was long and warmly

CONSUMPTION'S STARTING POINT

Lies In Weak, Watery Blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make the Blood Rich and Red.

handsome cavalier; but no painter ever the was a face so perfect as that of the young girl who stood by him. The rapt love, the coy, caquettish attitude—there was but one voice in its praise.

Then the curtain rose upon snother and far different scene. Half hiding in a kind of grove or artificial bower there stood a pale, lovely, fair-haired girl. Her sweet face told its own tale of terror and hope. Her fair had fallen around her like a soft, shiming veil, and her white hands were raised and clasped in snupplication. It was Agatha Lynne as Amy Robsart. Standing near her, looking with haughty eves and cold, disdainful face, was the royal lady, who would fain would have crushed the gentle life of the fair girl who stood between her and her love. A terrible moment was that in which the royal lady looked upon the gentle girl and knew who she was. It was faithfully rendered. There was something almost sublime in the concentrated passion of Inez Lynne. Little mercy would she feel or show to one who stood in the way of her love. There was something, too; in the pathetic entresty of the young face that looked into hers.

There was a hush when the curtain fell upon that picture. Those who looked felt its force and passion.

Then came the pretty balcony scene—the lovely love-lif face of Inez Lynne shining like a star in the depth of night, and Lord Lynne as Romeo, looking as he supposed Romeo to have looked after the words —

"Othat I were a glove upon thy hand, That I might touch that cheek!" Bloodlessness is the starting point of consumption. When your blood is thin and watery your whole health declines. Your face grows pale, your appetite fails and your heart jumps and flutters at the least exertion or excitement. You are always weak and wretched and lose are always weak and wretched and lose interest in everything. This is the point from which you may easily step into that hopeless decline that leads to consumption and the grave. What is actually needed to bring back health and strength and energy is the new rich blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. In all the world there is no other tonic medicine like them, and all who feel weak and easily tired should take these Pills at once, and regain new health.

Miss Ada Burke, The Range, N. B., says: "I feel that I cannot say too much in favor of Dr. Williams' Puk Pills. Iin March, 1907, I was attacked with whooging cough which clung to me with whooring cough which clung to me for several months, and when the cough disappeared I was left weak and run down. All summer I was ailing, but when the autumn came I seemed to be com-"O, that I were a glove upon thy hand, That I might touch that cheek!" the autumn came I seemed to be com-pletely worn out. For a whole month I never moved outside the house, and could scarcely walk about the house I was so weak. I had no appetite, my color was a greenish yellow. I had severe headaches and would be almost breathless at the least exertion. I took several bottles of medicine, but it did not help me and then my mother got me three. It was perfect as a picture; as a piece of acting it was wonderful. But there was neither semblance nor acting in the passionate heart of the beautiful Juliet; and when the curtain fell, and Juliet; and when the curtain fell, and the sounds of applause reached her ears, Inez raised her eyes once more to the face of Lord Lynne. This time the love did not die out of it; but he stooped gallantly, and kissed the little white jewelled hand. He meant nothing by it; but it was not in human nature to be blind to the love that glowed in that beautiful face.

There were other tableaux, taken from some of the most exquisite of the me, and then my mother got me three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, when I had used them I was much better, and I had used them I was much better, and by the time I had taken another three boxes I was again enjoying the best of health, with a hearty appetite, good color and renewed energy."

If you want new health and new strength try Dr. Williams' Pink Pille, a fair use of this medicine will not disap-point you Sold by medicine delera or There were other tableaux, taken from some of the most exquisite of the world's poems. One of Enid and Geraint, where Agatha and Allan Leigh acquitted themselves with great credit; another of Guinevere and King Arthur; and the last of all taken from a French picture. point you. Sold by medicine dealers or mail, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

REFUSED TO BE DISCHARGED.

music sounded again, the curtain fell and the tableaux were ended.
"Wonderful!" "The greatest treat!"
"The greatest surprise!" "So charming!" Scheme of Railway Brakeman Who Kept Himself at Work. and such like murmurs filled the room. They discussed Agatha and Evelyn, Lord Lynne, Bertie and Allan, but few named ture, where Inez, as Marie Antoinette, sat, the centre of a group, the most bril-liant and beautiful of all. Then the lnez, and when they did so, it was with lowered voices. They recognized the genius, the passion, the grandeur of her another. There was a wild, dizzy joy that filled her whole soul, and she murmured to herself, I love him so dearly and so deeply, he must love me in re-

(To be continued.)

Every mother is naturally anxious that her little ones shall be healthy good natured and bright. Every mother can keep her little ones in this mother can keep her little ones in this condition if she will give them an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets cure all stomach and bowel troubles, break up colds, destroy worms and make teething easy. Equally good for the new born baby or the well grown child. Mrs. W. E. Stewart, St. George, N. B., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my little

SLAVES IN MASSACHUSETTS.

The Old House in Which They Were Sold in Town of Hanover.

A relic of slavery days in New England in the middle of the eighteenth century, the old Tilden house on Winter street,

West Hanover, the only house in that town where slaves were kept for market, is now being demolished.

The house is one of the best known landmarks in Plymouth county and has stood for nearly 200 years. It was used as a tavern in its early days and later rapidly fallen into decay.

No one knows the exact date of the building of the house, but historians agree that it was long before the incorporation of the town of Hanover in 1727.

The Hon, Jedediah Dwelley, of North Hanover, who has spent much time in gathering facts concerning the early history of the town, says: "While there was more or less buying and selling of slaves (as in the middle of the eighteenth century nearly all the worthy families owned one or more) this probably was the only place where the traffic was carried on for revenue. I have seen two bills of slaves sold from this house. One was from Job Tilden to a Mr. Bailey, of Scituate, a negro child named Morrow, Syears of age, of good bodily health and kind disposition."

One of Mr. Tilden's slaves named Cuf-fee served as a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and according to an old payroll he was stationed at Hull, March 1, 1777. He was with Col. Bailey and died at Valley Forge. He was known as Cuf-fee Tilden, and was so inscribed on the printed rolls.

The books of the First Congregational Church of Hanover record the marriage by the Rev. Benjamin Bass on February i, 1751, of Jack and Billah, servants own-by Job Tilden, and also the death of a negro boy owned by Job Tilden, Feb-

There are many other brief records of slaves kept in different families in Hanover.—From the Boston Herald.

"My boy, be polite and honest."
"But, dad."

uary 12, 1760.

ents a box from The MOTHER'S CHIEF CARE.

BABY'S WELFARE

In Kansas the railroads have a good deal of difficulty in providing competent men to fill vacancies in the train crews and other positions which do not offer attractions that are especially inviting. At each division terminal there is usually maintained a "crew board" upon which is written in chalk twice a day a list of conductors and brakemen availnature. She was a new revelation to them, was that beautiful southern girl. The tableaux were ended, but the conable for the following twelve hours. This equences of them never ended for Inez ynne. Now that Philip had looked on her with such love in his face, even list is posted by the "caller" or some other employee familiar with the situation hough it were but acting, never could the bear to seee that same look bent upon rarious runs.

One day an accident happened which One day an accident happened which caused some dismay at headquarters for, aside from breaking up some cars and tearing up some track, it shattered the plans of the superintendent, who was about to start upon a vacation trip. Investigation developed that a brakeman had forgotten to close a switch properly and the following train ran into it, with the result noted above.

ent boarded a freight train at a way sta-tion on the division and, mounting the "doghouse" steps in the caboose, was much surprised to find that same brake

"What are you doing here?" inquired the surprised official.
"Workin'," replied the culprit, with a "Upon whose authority?" persisted the superintendent.

"Aw! I ain't lost no time a-tal!," answered the brakeman.

Further questioning brought out the fact that the industrious one had been the success of any operation in which on the crew board and in that way was being called regularly to go out on the run.

Asked why he had taken such a course to keep at work, he replied:
"Well, boss; my credit for grub is good as long as I keep busy, but when me pay stops me chuck stops!"
He is working yet.—Kansas City Star.

SAMPLE COPY FREE Would you like to have a sample copy of the Farmer's Advocate and Home Magazine?

THE BEST AGRICULTURAL AND HOME PAPER

on the American continent. No progressive farmer con afford to be without it. Published weekly. Only $1.50 per year. Drop post card for free sample copy. Agents wanted. Address:

THE FARMERS' ADVOCATE' Mention this paper. 1261. London, Ont.

First Printing Press West of Missouri. The first printing press west of missouri.

The first printing press in the United States west of the Missouri was set up at Santa Fe early in the last century. History does not disclose the date or its origin or its ownership, but there are extant printed proclamations dated 1821 and having the Santa Fe imprint. anteand having the Santa Fe imprint, ante-dating by fourteen years the first newsdating by fourteen years the first news-paper, Ei Crepusculo, prophetically nam-ed the Dawn, which was first published in 1835 at Taos and was in the main a periodical tract to make propaganda for the peculiar religious and moral ideas of Padre Martinez. The first English newspapers in New Mexico appeared in 1847, shortly after the occupation of Santa Fe by General Kearny. They were the Santa Fe Republican and the Santa Fe New Mexican, both published at Santa Fe.—Santa Fe New Mexican.

A GOOD ONE.

"The watch advertised in another col-umn of this paper is a BEAUTY, and you will be more than pleased with it."

A country can never be greater than es it's pretty hard to be both at

MODISH NOVELTIES.

Rose-fringed Scarf-Waistbandsthe New Skirts.

Upon some of the new scarfs, Upon some of the new scarrs, there a deep fringe of little roses and daisies nodding from long stalks. Gold, crystal and silver fringes are also being used by the dressmakers as a completing touch of elegance upon teagowns, evening toilettes, and full dress cloaks.

The latest novelty in waistbands owes its existence to the craze for the sash. The fashionable waistbelt of to-day is The fashionable waistbelt of to-day is made to appear like a sash as much as possible. It is high, and swathed, the broad ribbon ends weighted with long tassels being brought over the hips and loosely knotted in front. The sash appearance so gained is very charming, and gives an up-to-date touch to one's gooden.

gowns.

The close fitting skirt that follows the lines of the figure with ease is to be the leader. It is not probable that the great makers will take a marked departure makers will take a marked departure from its lines for the next few months at least. At its best such a skirt is very graceful and suits all sorts of costumes. Walking skirts continue short. During the summer they have been anywhere from an inch to five inches from the floor. The fall walking skirts are still a bit uncertain, but they will be short and probably of as many lengths as those worn now.

Beware of Scolding.

Perhaps most of the scolding done in the world is between husbands and wives or between parents and children. Par-ents must instruct their children; they must sometimes reprove them. They must often counsel them. But they are in great danger of "providing them. great danger of "provoking them to wrath"—in the wise Biblical phrase. Children have the keenest possible sense of justice; they are also very easily hurt, and when their minds are bruised the and when their minds are bruised the result is estrangement, and that is as said a thing as can ever be. An imperious scoolding father or mother frightens the children away, drives them into all manner of evasions and subterfuges, and brands their minds forever with the memory of cruel and blistering words.

Barred Linens and Lawns.

This material is of the greatest im-This material is of the greatest importance this season, and the indications are that it will be used extensively for fall wear, instead of the plain linen or lawn, for shirt-waists, children's dresses, aprons and handkerchiefs. It wears well, launders beautifully and comes in various widths designs and qualities. Table ous widths, designs and qualities. Table linens of plaids and stripes are the very

The Teeth.

They must be cleaned. There should be three cleanings a day. There should be three cleanings a day. A brushing after each meal is best. Even a restaurant diner may use dental floss in the toilet room.

Many business women may manage to rinse the mouth with lime water.

A rinse made of a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda in a gill of water is

Persons who eat all their meals at home have little excuse for not using both brush and floss after each meal. A brush should be chosen with me-dium soft bristles, and it should be shap-ed, else only the front teeth will benefit Doctors 'Privileges. Rudyard Kipling, addressing a recent medical gathering in London, remarked that among the privileges of physicians was one which they shared with kings. Policemen would not stop them if they exceeded the speed limit on their cars. A visiting card would take them through the dearty work turbulent erowed. By flying a yellow flag they could turn a centre of population into a desert, and by flying a red-cross flag they could turn a desert into a centre of population. would crawl on hands and knees. They they were interested could, if necessary, stop, in mid-ocean the fastest Atlantic liner with her mails. They could the up traffic and without notice order house traffic and without notice order nouses, streets and whole quarters of a city to be pulled down, calling, if need be, on the nearest troops to see that their prescription was carried out.

A Forbidden Weapon. Every traveller knows that there are every traveller knows that there are certain restrictions upon the introduc-tion of arms into foreign countries. Among the weapons which it is forbid-den to take into France is the "tromblon," which is expressly mentioned in the penal code as a weapon the carrying and sale of which is not allowed. And yet the "tromblon" is not a firearm which is commonly used nowadays, for it is nothing else than the blunderbuss, a weapon which old caricatures show to have been carried by the guards of have been carried by the guards of coaches as a protection against highway-men and to have been hung over his fireplace by John Bull at the time of the scare of a Napoleonic invasion a hundred years ago. The blunderbuss had a flint lock, a short barrel and a surveyle like a trumpat the hell mouth muzzle like a trumpet, the bell mouth being designed to scatter the slugs with which the primitive piece was charged. Any one who buys one at an old curiosity shop had better take care how he entroduces it into France for the penalty for doing so is a fine of 200 frames. London Globe.

Most Powerful "Dreadnought."

It is a curious anomaly says the Scientific American, that the most powerful Dreachought afloat should belong to a South American Republic, but it cannot be denied that the Minas Geraes is entitled to this discount of the same of the Minas Geraes is entitled to this dis-tinction. She is the only warship mounting 12-inch guns, and they are so placed that she can concentrate eight ahead and astern and ten on either broadside, as against four ahead and astern and ten on either broad-side, which can be done by our new North Dakota and Delaware.

Their Golden Bond. "How did these two ever come to marry each other?"

"Well, she was the only woman he ever knew that would listen to his anecdotes over five minutes at a time, and he was the only man she ever knew that could look at her that long without getting neuralgia."-Puck.